DAVIDSON LIKES OWEN BILL

Heartily Advocates Cabinet Minister on Health and Education.

SAYS ALL CONFEREES WANT IT
Returns from Washington, Where He Was Called to Discuss Merits of Creating This New Secretaryship.

Dr. W. M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, has returned from Washington, D. C. He was called there last week on a telegram from United States Senator Owen, to consult on a matter of vital importance to the national bureau of education.

Dr. Davidson found that the matter under discussion was indeed of high import. "It is nothing less than the establishment of a new cabinet officer, to be known as the secretary of public health and education," said Dr. Davidson.

"For some time the American Medical Association has been advocating the establishment of the office of secretary of public health, with a seat in the cabinet. Senator Owen's bill to create such an office apparently was drawn and introduced without consultation with the medical men, but it fits right into their movement. When they found it was introduced, that at once got away. Then came the thought to somebody that the ideal thing would be a department that would combine the care of public health with the development of public education. So a few men considered, by virtue of the position they held, to fairly represent the National Educational Association, were called in, and the meeting was held in Washington in the senate building last Saturday.

Men at the Conference.

"The men representing the American Medical Association were Dr. Welch, president, who is attached to Johns Hopkins University and considered one of the greatest medical authorities living today; Dr. Reed of Cincinnati, secretary of the association, and two or three other prominent physicians. Representing the educational side were Dr. James Y. Joyner, superintendent of public education of North Carolina, president of the National Education Association; Dr. Brown Ayres of Knoxville, Tenn., president of the National Association of State Universities; Prof. John W. Cook, president of the State Normal school at DeKalb Ill., who is chairman of a committee to cooperate with the bureau of education; Dr. Luther H. Gulick and Dr. Leonard P. Ayres, representing the Russell Sage foundation, and myself, as president of the department of superintendence of the Nebraska Educational Association.

"After discussion it was generally agreed that to reframe the Owen bill to cover health and education would be very desirable. It was decided the American Medical Association should at once take a referendum on the question of so amending the bill, and that the proposition will be submitted to the national convention of teachers when it meets at Boston in July. Besides the school men named, we consulted with several others who could be reached, and all agreed to use their influence to have the proposed measure endorsed by the teachers of the country.

What Bill Provides.

"Should the bill be redrawn as outlined it would provide for a secretary of public health and education, with two directors general under him, one immediately in charge of all matters relating to public health, the other having control of all matters concerning public education. The two things would be correlated actually then, as they have been to some extent voluntarily in recent years, since preventive medicine has made such wonderful progress.

"If this law can be enacted and this end achieved, my own view is that it would be one of the greatest pieces of legislation ever undertaken for public education throughout the nation. Then it would be one of the greatest movements for the conservation of human life ever attempted in the history of the world.

"Everybody present at the conference was in hearty accord on the desirability of such a law, and there is not much doubt that it will be endorsed by both the physicians and the teachers of the country."

Bricklayers to Get Seventy-Five Cents an Hour

They Will Allow Two Apprentices to Five Journeymen—Agreement Effective May 1.

After trying for some time to come to a satisfactory agreement upon the question of revising the wage scale members of the Bricklayers' union and Builders' exchange had a conference Monday night at which the matter was settled harmoniously. Beginning with May 1 the bricklayers are to receive 75 cents an hour instead of 50¢, as at present. In return for this concession those contractors who employ five or more men throughout the year will be allowed two apprentices instead of one.

The bricklayers claim that they are union men because membership in the organization has resulted in bringing their wages up to a living basis, but they say that the fundamental principle of the Bricklayers' union is arbitration. Secretary George Routt of the local union said that the laws of the general body require all matters to be arbitrated when such action is possible.

"Our motto," said Mr. Routt, "is not peace at any cost, but peace if it can possibly be brought about by reasonable arbitration. Our union was the first one in this country to suggest a system of arbitration. We were not satisfied with our present wages under existing conditions, but we didn't go ahead and cause a lot of turmoil by striking. We took the matter up with the contractors in a reasonable manner and we accomplished results.

"Working conditions are to be about the same as at present. There will be an eight-hour day, with Saturday as a half holiday.

"In the matter of apprentices there has been a small revision. The union has agreed that contractors employing five or more men throughout the year be allowed two apprentices instead of one. However, one of the apprentices must have served two years before another can be employed by the contractor."

POLISHED THIEVES AT PRAY'S

Burglars Carefully Select $500 of His Choicest Goods.

TAKE ENOUGH FOR WARDROBE
Visit the Store Early in Morning and Detectives on Their Trail Believe They Have the Correct Clue.

Some esthetic and discriminating thieves visited the haberdashery store of George Pray, 50 South Sixteenth street, early Tuesday morning. They must also have known something about this gent's furnishing goods business. Their visit means about $400 or $500 loss to Mr. Pray.

The burglars entered by tearing down a screen window in the rear of the store. Then they dragged out to the rear a large and varied assortment of the best goods and made their selections with as much care and discrimination as if they had been the most desirable customers waited on at the counter. They left much of the goods there, as evidently being a little below their effete standards, taking only the very choicest in each line. Here is what they took away with them:

- Box of soft shirts with collars attached and detached, sizes 14, 15 and 16.
- Three high grade suits of clothing.
- Box of silk half-hose, size 3.
- Two bunches of collars, sizes 15 and 16.
- Underwear, drawers 2 and 3 in size; shirts, 36 and 38.
- Handkerchiefs and neckties to match their shirts.
- Several Stetson hats.
- Pieces of the best jewelry, also to match other garments.
- Nightwatchman Marvin, who has that "dog" block in charge, says he called on his regular round at 4 a. m. and found all well. At 5 a. m. he stood at the corner of Sixteenth and Farnam streets, cast a glance down toward Howard and saw policemen standing on the corner in front of Merchant's drug store.
- "Well," bespeaks he to himself, "if the police are on the job, I suppose it's no use for me to bother about going down."
- So he did not go.
- Evidently the burglary occurred between 4 and 5, and it is believed the burglars had their visit well timed, as intelligently timed, in fact, as was their selection of haberdashery.
- Detectives are at work on the case and they have precisely the clue that will soon lead to the arrest of the burglars, whom they take to be a pair of three smart, young chaps about town.

FLORENCE DEMOCRATS TRY TO MAKE TOWN A COW PASTURE

Make Campaign on Platform of Opposition to All Measures for Improvement.

With the approach of the election to be held in Florence next week the democrats have assumed an air of activity in pursuit of office in connection with their general anti-development campaign which looks to the conversion of the town into a cow pasture. The one issue turns on the question of public improvements. The democratic attitude toward the generally endorsed movement for a better city is as it has been, one of continuous opposition.

Republicans won last year and have given a new pavement on Main street and a mile and a half of cement walks, a great deal of grading, improved street car service and a considerable addition to the street lighting equipment.

While doing these things for the city they had the ineffectual but persistent opposition of the marplot democrats, who sought these improvements with injunc-

P. CHRISTIANSEN FINDS STEPS AT GUNTER'S HARD AND LONG

Old Gentleman Runs Into Young Man's Strong Arm When He Goes on a Tastrum.

Paul C. Christiansen, 518 Pierce street, found the steps at his daughter's residence very hard and long. Also he discovered that his son-in-law is something of a man when it comes to defending himself and his household against an obstreperous father.

Mr. Christiansen had quaffed a few draughts of his favorite nectar and was feeling richly inspired. He bestrode the way to 130 Center street, where dwelleth Charles Gunter and family. Mrs. Gunter being the daughter of Mr. Christiansen.

Scarce had Mr. Christiansen reached the home of the Gunthers than, so Mr. and Mrs. Gunther averred, his nectar began to work on him.

"He waved a big knife around and offered to annihilate the whole household," testified the Gunthers in police court. "And this is not the first time he had done such a thing. He gets on these tantrums often."

Paul Christiansen's face and head were living testimonials to the eloquent fact that he annihilated nobody; that he failed to make good on his dire threat, but that on the contrary he came dangerously near getting annihilated himself.

The Gunthers made charges against Christiansen. Judge Crawford listened to the charges, listened to the recital of the events of that dramatic evening, viewed Christiansen's bridled face and head,

BURLINGTON PATRON ASKS FOR GYMNASIUM CARS

Athletic Steel Magnate Files Request for Change to Excelsior White He Travels.

Railroad officials, like men holding important positions under the government often get amusing communications through the mail, which are filled with suggestions varying from advice as to how to run the road to other less important details. A patron of the road and found the service iron magnate, who travels frequently from Denver to Chicago, sent a letter to Burlington officials at the general office advocating gymnasium cars.

The man said that he had been a frequent patron of the road and found the service excellent; in fact, he said that he couldn't possibly improve but one thing, and that was accommodations for passengers who wished to take exercise while enroute. The writer said that the dining service was all that one could ask for, but owing to the lack of exercise while riding he said that he suffered from indigestion.

Enumerating the advantages of traveling by sea the scribe declared that something ought to be done by the railroads toward providing for the physical well-being of their passengers. He suggested that the company fit up gymnasium cars with dumb bells, Indian clubs, chest weights and mats for boxing, with suitable gloves. A few rings hanging from the ceiling of the car were also suggested.

It is rumored that the Burlington considers action upon the suggestion and as

The efficacy of Chamberlain's Liniment in the relief of rheumatism is being demonstrated daily.

Some fat reducers are happy though during the process, but these neither exercise nor diet. They lose fat—as much as a pound a day, in many instances—but they do it without missing a single, righteous meal or lifting an unnecessary finger. These emancipated ones reduce either in hot water or cold without either or having to change their eating quietly and secretly, and even cunningly—one little Marmola Prescription Tablet after each meal and at bedtime.

That's all. They get their tablets (made after the formula of the famous prescription) in large, generously filled cases at a cost of seventy-five cents the case from any drug store or from the makers, the Marmola Co., 313 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
