Democrats Vote Away Their Occupation Tax Issue in Council.

SUSPENDS IT ON CAR COMPANY

Driven in Corner, They Take Action that Shows Up Platform Completely—New Election Officers.

The democratic members of the city council voted away the only political issue they had in the present campaign Friday morning, which was that an occupation tax should immediately be levied on all the public service corporations.

The democratic members of the city council voted away the only political issue they had in the present campaign Friday morning, which was that an occupation tax should immediately be levied on all the public service corporations.

As to the position of the republicans on this question that has been publicly known and is presented without apology. All the republicans voted for the proposed amendment because they believed it was right.

The following is the amended section of the ordinance which was passed by the unanimous vote of the city council relating to the occupation tax issue of the campaign:

Section 7 of said ordinance shall be amended to read as follows:

The South Omaha city council met in special session Friday morning for the purpose of transacting long-delayed business of the session.

Criticism of Newcomer.

W. R. Daly, who presumes to say things in the South Omaha municipal campaign through the columns of the democratic papers, is a man hardly qualified to enlarge on municipal affairs, having been in the city of South Omaha less than a year.

The Council Meeting.

The South Omaha city council met in special session Friday morning for the purpose of transacting long-delayed business of the session.

This matter was settled without any friction between the democratic and republican members. John Hasburgh introduced the resolution making the appointments and naming the men which each party had selected. This was unanimously adopted.

The democratic councilmen, under advice from the city attorney, proposed to purchase the P. J. Barrett property, consisting of six acres to be added to Mandan park in the southeast section of the city.

The routine matters contained the report of the finance committee allowing all bills and salaries for the month and allowing transfers to balance several funds on the books of the city treasurer.

J. D. Jones, live stock inspector, reported the condemnation of fourteen cattle and three sheep during the month.

Father Charles Mugar entered a protest against paying taxes on certain church property in accordance with the state law. The matter was referred to the committee on finance.

The council approved the contract and bond of the General Contracting company for the pavement of Hector boulevard with creosoted wood block.

A resolution of condolence and sympathy was recorded concerning the death of the late David C. Garratt, chief of the fire department.

London Papers

Now Side with Col. Roosevelt

Saturday Review Says he Blundered Into Egyptian Politics, But Cleverly Blunders Out.

LONDON, April 2.—Colonel Roosevelt's speech before the students of the University of Egypt at Cairo last Monday contains a meaty subject for the editorial writers of the London newspapers.

The Saturday Review says: "Though Colonel Roosevelt rushed into the Egyptian problem, he has not, at any rate, spoken like a fool; but had he had any idea of the extreme delicacy of the position in Egypt he would have kept upon safer ground."

The Spectator says it is surprised to see a speech so wise and so honorable in the man who made it characterized by the Westminster Gazette as an indiscretion, and thinks that all good men should welcome the wholesome doctrine it contained.

The Outlook also considers that Colonel Roosevelt touched upon tender grounds. It says, however, that the movement for Egyptian independence sustained a sharp setback from a quarter from which its promoters expected sympathy, if not support.

The committee appointed by Mayor Dahlman on March 19 to take up with Charles Mulford Robinson the matter of securing a plan for a more beautiful Omaha met Friday afternoon at the city hall.

City Beautiful Comes Too High

Charles Mulford Robinson Will Not Be Engaged to Decorate Omaha Now—Education First.

Charles Mulford Robinson will not be engaged to decorate Omaha now. The committee appointed by Mayor Dahlman on March 19 to take up with Charles Mulford Robinson the matter of securing a plan for a more beautiful Omaha met Friday afternoon at the city hall.

Mr. Robinson wrote the committee that he would come here and make such a plan to be worked to through a series of years, for a lump sum of $250,000 or on a per diem plan. The latter would involve paying him $125 a day, $30 a day and expenses while traveling to and from Omaha and $50 a day while working on the preparation of the report.

The outcome was a decision to await the return of Mayor Dahlman from the convention to be held at Rochester in May, where city planning and the care of municipal resources is to be the theme.

Mr. Robinson will then call another meeting and the mayor will be asked to make a report and give his views with a view to inaugurating a campaign of education.
