The Milk in the Coconut.

Remarks of the father of Cardinal Merry Del Val, and of an eminent ecclesiastic of Rome, tend to give a much clearer vision of the circumstances that prevented the audiences between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Fairbanks and the pope.

It is not the church, but the private act of the Spanish secretary of state against the colonel of the Rough Riders in Cuba. This is the explanation offered by a high church dignitary.

Methodist proselyting, after all, may not have had as much to do with the case as deep down Spanish hatred of the nation that freed oppressed Cuba.

The annual tug-of-war between the wets and drys in the spring elections of Nebraska towns has just taken place, with the usual pendulum-like results.

Some towns which were dry have gone wet and some other towns which were wet have gone dry.

The returns so far in apparently indicate that the wets have the better of it and have regained the ground they lost last year.

Every member of Omaha's Board of Fire and Police Commissioners is under oath not to be controlled by political considerations in making appointments or promotions in the police and fire departments.

The World-Herald concedes "there is merit" in the suggestion of the editor of The Bee that the court house square be made the beauty center of Omaha and specially adapted for use on festive occasions as a court of honor.

Mr. Bryan may have said that he hoped it would not be necessary for him to be a candidate for senator this year, but it begins to look as if he would have to say "Yes" or "No" without any ifs or ands about it.

Bishop McIntyre and Archbishop Ireland are not showing the same amount of self-restraint as Mr. Roosevelt has shown.

As if the Methodist church had not enough already to keep it busy, the three aged Wardlaw sisters of New Jersey, accused of the Sheard murder, have thrown themselves upon the church for assistance.

Mayor "Jim" thinks the police force should be reorganized as an assistant street cleaning department. A good idea. But even that would not relieve his street commissioner and assistants from primary responsibility.

Who Tipped It Off? St. Paul Pioneer Press. William Jennings Bryan says he wants no ovation when he returns from South America. Now, who you suppose it was tipped off to him that a popular uprising is imminent?

On the Main Line. Baltimore American. It is not likely that the administration railroad bill will be either side-tracked or run into a switch.

"Ignorance is Bliss." Chicago Tribune. Unless you wish to know that when drinking that ostensibly innocent and exhilarating beverage, ginger ale, you are taking merely "air and red pepper" into your system, don't read the official reports of the government investigators.

An Insurgent Prophecy. Emporia (Kan.) Gazette. Joe Cannon discussed the hereafter in a general address the other day, and practically confessed that he doesn't know what it will be.

Passed Along to Consumer. Springfield Republican. No less than seven important eastern railroads granted wage increases last week.

It is to be noted that a livery man and wagon dealer won at the unofficial election instituted by Congressman Hamilton Fish to determine the post-office contest.

The local democratic organ is squealing about the defeat of the head of the democratic ticket in South Omaha by talking about the "vast amount of money" at the "demand" of the republicans, when everybody in South Omaha knows that all the money was on the democratic side.

President and Public Domain.

The president's consistent fight for a public land bill that will meet the requirements of the country and at the same time best promote the interests of the general conservation movement, is evidently bearing fruit.

The main feature of this bill, on which it has been so difficult to secure unanimity of sentiment, is that regulating the right of the president to withdraw public land in the United States and Alaska for public uses.

It is a good thing to have democratic simplicity prevail in the government. But if every president saw and greeted every individual who wanted to make a fortune, would have very little time for anything else.

Around New York.

Mipples on the Current of Life as Seen in the Great American Metropolis from Day to Day.

When Prussia can converse by wireless telegraph with Cameroon in West Africa, over the Alps and the sea and the highlands of the North African coast, it seems that wireless messages all the way around the globe must soon be possible.

Numbers of people entertain the notion that the right to pass the portals of the residence of the chief magistrate and grasp his hand is one of the privileges of American citizenship.
