NEW TRIAL WITHOUT HEARING

Judge Sutton Announces He Will Grant it Without Arguments.

ATTORNEYS ARE SO NOTIFIED

Trial Judge Says He Will Give Reasons for Unusual Proceedings When He Makes a Formal Ruling.

Stephen Egan, the Armour company watchman convicted of murder in district court, is to be granted a new trial by Judge Sutton. Judge Sutton has called in interested attorneys and notified them that this is his intention. Entry of a ruling on the motion for a new trial has not yet been made.

The news will create something of a stir, because Judge Sutton has made this decision without first hearing argument by counsel, and this has no known precedent in Douglas county.

Judge Sutton refuses just now to discuss his action, saying that he will explain his reasons when he makes a formal ruling early in the week.

A man close to the court gives it as his opinion that Judge Sutton thinks a finding of guilty of murder in the second degree was excessive and that manslaughter should have been the limit. Also it is believed that Judge Sutton thinks that the jury was influenced by hostility to the corporation which employed Egan, and which sent its own attorneys, T. J. Mahoney and J. A. C. Kennedy, to defend him.

County Officials Silent.
Egan was prosecuted by Deputy County Attorneys A. G. Eilick and L. J. Pratt.

New Drug Cures Fever and Ague

(From the New York Graphic.)
Of all the prominent men gathered at the medical convention last week, none attracted more attention than Prof. G. W. La Torre, whose new karsene treatment for chills and fever and all forms of malaria has been so successful.

While karsene is known as a blood purifier and liver invigorator, its value as a cure for malarial attacks was not recognized until recently. Its use is growing rapidly, not only because of its wonderful merit, but also on account of its low cost. You can make a full quart of karsene tonic by dissolving one ounce of karsene and 1/2 teaspoonful of sugar in 1/2 pint of alcohol and then adding 1 1/2 pints of boiling water. The dose is a tablespoonful before each meal and before retiring.

Karsene tonic is doubly valuable in the spring, when the system needs toning up. Taken regularly for a few weeks, it will do away with that tired feeling, restore lost energy and ambition, correct deranged digestion, arouse a torpid liver and purify and enrich the blood, enabling it to cast out of the system the impurities that cause sallowiness, blotches, pimples and similar symptoms of impure blood. If your druggist is out of karsene, ask him to get it for you.—(Adv.)

NOV TO GET BUTTER MARKET

"This is the Logical Time," Says David Cole Anent Elgin Trouble.

OPPORTUNITY THROUGH PROBE

No Need to Listen to Dictation of Illinois Town Board When Primary Market Can Be Created in This City.

Now is Omaha's chance to get the butter market.

"This is the logical time for Omaha to reach out and simply take it," said David Cole when the declaration for an investigation of the Elgin butter board by Attorney General Wickersham was called to his attention.

"Nothing more is needed than for the Omaha men to get together. Omaha is as logically the seat of the butter market as the corn market which we have. We are located in the heart of the corn territory, also we are the greatest producers of butter in the country. We have the goods to sell, why not sell it here?"

"There is nothing else to it but the mere concerted action of the Omaha producers and dealers. The butter market can be ours."

"The Commercial club is up and ready to do anything that can be done to aid in the location of the market here. Omaha does not need to listen to the dictation of the Elgin board on butter prices and it remains only a question of bringing the buyers here. We have the producers."

Occupation Tax Due on Friday

Second Installment from Public Service Corporations Will Put Good Sum in City Treasury.

Next Friday, April 15, is the date on which the second installment of occupation taxes will be due from the Omaha public service corporations. This second payment will cover four months, December, January, February and March, and is expected to put a substantial sum of money in the city treasury.

Originally the ordinances provided that payments were to be made quarterly, on the first of December, March, June and September. At the time the first quarter's payment was due it was found that to foot up the business of the corporations and make correct returns was practically impossible. Hence ordinances were introduced amending the originals, to make returns from the companies fall due on the 15th of the months mentioned, beginning with April. The amendatory ordinances were passed, giving the companies fifteen days after the close of each month's business in which to compile their returns.

DOG IS BOTH SPITZ AND BAD

Fuzzy Pup Convicted in Police Court of Having Black Heart Under White Coat.

"You are charged with harboring a vicious dog," announced Prosecuting Attorney Dickenson to a negro defendant Saturday morning.

"No, sir, he is a Spitz dog," responded the defendant.

George Williams was the defendant. The fact that his canine possession had bitten a tenant of Williams' house formed the charge. Judge Crawford decided that a Spitz dog can also be a vicious dog, and he fined Williams $10 and costs, the fine to be remitted when Williams surrendered the dog at the police station.

Exposition Badges Stolen from Library

Only Complete Collection Remaining from Transmississippi Show is Taken.

The only complete collection of the official badges of the Transmississippi exposition was stolen from the Public Library late Friday afternoon. The artful manner in which the theft was accomplished was revealed by the fact that the collection was removed from its fastenings on the medals and badges, said Miss Edith Tobit, librarian. "It was the only complete collection and could not be replaced or duplicated. The collection stolen was among the many contributions to the museum from the exposition."

The stolen badges were contained in a small beehive case with the usual glass front, wired to the wall between two other larger cases. Many more valuable objects and curios, equally accessible, were within easy reach of the thief or thieves who robbed the museum Friday.

The robbery of the museum has been reported to the police and detectives have been assigned to the case. The search for the thief presents unusual problems, in that it does not bear the marks of having been done by a common crook.

The wiring by which the case was secured was arranged according to an intricate and peculiar system. The wires were severed by sure, deft strokes.

Lost Hat Proves Costly Article

Delaney Refuses to Stay at Home Until the Lost Headgear is Recovered.

A persistent search for his lost hat Friday afternoon cost John Delaney, a defendant before Judge Crawford Saturday morning, lost $10 and costs. Delaney hazarded the information that he could have bought four very excellent hats for that amount.

According to the police who appeared against Delaney the latter was drunk Friday and insisted on wandering through the streets looking for his hat. The policeman declared he had secured Delaney home three times and each time the man returned again to the quest for his hat.

TEAM SHORTAGE BALKS WORK

Omaha Contractors Refrain from Bidding Because Animals Are Scarce.

WEST IS TAKING THEM ALL

Teams Have Reached an Almost Prohibitive Price and Still They Are Scarce for All Kinds of Work.

Scarcity of horses and mules for teaming purposes in this territory is proving of serious import to contractors. In Omaha it has reached the point where bidding on excavation work is actually restricted because of the inability of contractors to get drayage facilities for the removal of earth.

The shortage has had the inevitable result of putting up the prices to record figures. As fast as teams can be secured they are snapped up by contractors and shipped out on the big railway contracts of the northwest and west. Contractors declare that teams now cost from $5 to $11 a day and are almost impossible to get at that figure.

A case in point is that of the excavation contract for the new Union Pacific headquarters building, where 40,000 yards of earth are to be removed and hauled for a long distance. One of the largest firms in the west, having its headquarters in Omaha, refused to bid on the job because it was impossible to be certain of having teams to handle the work. This firm had figured on a bid of $1,500 below that of the successful bidder, but was deterred from entering the competition by the horse and mule shortage.

West Takes All Can Get.
The scarcity of the animals is attributed to the heavy demand of the big railroad contracting concerns now working in the western extensions. They are credited with having depleted the supply of their big shipments of the early spring and late winter in preparation for the work of the season.

The firm of Shirley & Phelan which is doing the grading on an eighty mile stretch of the Canadian Pacific has taken hundreds of teams out of Omaha, along with their trainload of machinery shipped out to Alberta. Thomas Foley, another contractor, working gangs in Wisconsin, is a heavy buyer of fine mules.

"Contractors about Omaha are just about sewed up by the lack of teams," said Roy Pollard of the Polard-Campbell Dredging company. "Horses can't be had at any price whatever, and it is seriously affecting the contemplated building activities."

Nels Thompson is shipping five cars of mules into Omaha weekly to be distributed through northwestern Nebraska. This importation of mules has been going on steadily without an apparent slackening of the demand.

Supreme Court Likes Omahans

John L. Webster and W. D. McHugh Get Compliment for Arguments in Rate Cases.

A tribute was paid incidentally to Omaha lawyers by one of the United States supreme court judges who sat at the hearing in the Missouri river rate case which was argued Tuesday and Wednesday at Washington. Representatives of the railroad, Interstate Commerce commission and the jobbers were present, but after the arguments had closed on Wednesday, one of the judges said that the only two speeches which amounted to anything in the line of argument were made by W. D. McHugh of Omaha, attorney for the railroads, and by John Lee Webster of Omaha, attorney for the Missouri river jobbers.

These men have returned to their homes after being in Washington, where the case was tried. The closing argument in the case was made by Mr. Webster and when he noticed that his time for argumentation had expired, he motioned to the clock and signified that he would bring his speech to a close. The court indicated to the attorney that it was willing to hear more of the case and he continued to argue the matter until the court adjourned.

Mr. Webster maintained that the Missouri river jobbers are important enough to receive recognition on their own account and that they are not and should not be dependent upon New York.

Fellow Servant Rule is Working

Overtime in Court

Justice Fawcett Says it Has Been Pressed So Strong that Even Congress Takes Notice.

Robert O. Fink's 14-year-old son is held by a majority of the state supreme court to have been a "fellow servant" of the domestic in the house, because the Fink child was bringing up a hod of coal from the kitchen. Two justices, Fawcett and Reese, disagree with the others on this point, which is involved in the reversal of a suit for damages.

It was announced some time ago that the supreme court had granted a new trial in the suit of Malissa Waxham against Mr. Fink, but the mandate has just been written out and received here. The plaintiff received a verdict of $50 for injuries suffered in falling through a trap door at the Fink residence, December 18, 1907.

Judge Fawcett has some vigorous remarks to make about the applicability of the "fellow-servant rule" in this case, saying:

"I concur in the judgment of reversal, but not upon the ground stated in the majority opinion. The doctrine of fellow-servant has been made to work overtime during late years by the courts of the country. So much so that even congress has taken notice and given some relief along this line. I concede that under some circumstances a minor son will be held to be a servant of his father, but it is extending the rule beyond the bounds of reason and common experience to hold that a 14-year-old son is, in his father's home, a fellow servant of the kitchen girl or housekeeper. Such a theory is to my mind not only un sound, but repulsive."

Judge Fawcett goes on to say that he thinks the domestic should lose and the case be remanded for trial because she assumed the risk of falling down the trap door in the Fink home, which the boy had left open.

Justice Reese writes that he concurs in the remarks of Justice Fawcett about the fellow-servant rule.
