ELKS DEDICATE NEW HOME
Grand Exalted Ruler Sammis Presides at Ceremony.
ADDRESSES BY LEADING MEMBERS
Keys of Building Presented to Board of Trustees—Reception to Friends of the Order During Day.
Thursday, April 21, 1910, was a big day for the Elks of Omaha. It marked the progress of the order in Nebraska and was the date upon which the new Elks' home at 313-317 South Fifteenth street was dedicated. Five hundred enthusiastic members were present when Grand Exalted Ruler Judge James U. Sammis of LeMars, Ia., conducted the dedication exercises according to the Elks' ritual.
The keys of the building were presented, through Judge Sammis, to the chairman of the board of trustees by Vice President Gould Dietz of the building committee. President T. B. McPherson of the building committee was not present as he was called away from the city on important business. General Charles F. Manderson made an appropriate address upon the works of the building committee, giving it words of praise for the able manner in which it carried out the duty imposed.

Several selections were given by the Elks' quartet and a finished oration was delivered by Arthur C. Wakely, Sheridan lodge of Shenandoah, Ia., presented Omaha lodge with a beautiful hand colored photograph of the American flag in flowers, the original of which was given to Sheridan lodge by the members of the Omaha lodge on the first flag day celebrated by the lodge. A handsome silk American flag, 6 1/2 feet, was presented to the Omaha lodge by Colonel Cornelius Gardner, commanding at Fort Crook, on behalf of his brother officers who are members of the order. This was given as a token of appreciation for the courtesies which were extended to the officers during the Ak-Sar-Ben and the military encampment last fall.
The presentation of the flag was followed by a stirring speech on "Our Flag," by Colonel J. M. Banister. He told of the triumphs of the flag and said that the patriotic principles of the Elks made the flag dear to every member of the order. Very Rev. George A. Beecher, chaplain of the Omaha lodge, followed with appropriate remarks.
Judge Sammis, the supreme head of the order, who is making his second visit to Omaha, gave an address in which he spoke of the patriotic and home protection principles of the Elks. He had words of praise for his brothers in Omaha and spoke feelingly of the pleasure it gave him to preside over such an important function. He arrived early in the afternoon and was entertained at dinner at the Hawthorn at 6 o'clock by the officers at the Omaha lodge.
After the formal dedication exercises were brought to a close the Omaha Mace-bearer chorus, composed of thirty voices, enlivened the evening with song. Dean Beecher thanked the members of Council Bluffs lodge for appearing in such large numbers and for the beautiful basket of Easter lilies they brought with them.
It is estimated that 2,000 invited guests visited the new Elks' home Thursday afternoon, when the members of Omaha lodge held a reception for all Elks, their families and their friends. The rooms were beautifully decorated with ferns, potted plants and cut flowers and the parlor mantle was banked with hydrangeas. Music was furnished by Danick's orchestra.
Officers of the lodge met all visitors in the hall and escorted them to the reception committee, where they were made welcome to the Elks' new home in Omaha. The guests were received by Sidney W. Smith, exalted ruler; Gould Dietz, vice president of the Elks' Building company; Mrs. Dietz, General and Mrs. Charles F. Manderson, Judge and Mrs. E. Wakely, Rev. George A. Beecher and Mrs. Beecher, Mayor and Mrs. James C. Dahlman and Mr. and Mrs. William I. Kierstead.

On the third floor of the building is the parlor, library, offices and billiard hall, all of which were opened for inspection, and each contained a punch bowl and refreshments. The main lodge room is situated on the fourth floor and is beautifully finished in Essex. At one end of the hall there are two life-sized elks looking as natural as if in their forest home. Upon the speaker's table was the magnificent floral offering of Easter lilies brought to Omaha by the members of the Council Bluffs lodge.
YOUNG ARTISTS' BENEFIT RECITAL WELL ENJOYED
Misses Marie Meek and Alice V. Davis and Cecil W. Berry Appenzel, Assisted by Miss Loveland.
A benefit recital was given Thursday night in the First Baptist church by Miss Marie Meek, Miss Alice Virginia Davis and Cecil W. Berry, assisted by Miss Hazel Loveland as vocalist. The program was principally sustained by the three first names, who are going to Europe to pursue their musical studies. The concert was enjoyed by a well-filled house and the audience showed its thorough appreciation. The three pianists displayed marked proficiency on the instrument. There was not only knowledge of technique, but the artist's desire of interpretation.

Chopin's polonaise in A flat was rendered by Mr. Berryman with firmness and decision, and Miss Meek in all her contributions, and particularly in the five waltzes preludes to op. 24 of Faldini, showed the importance of light and shade in laying bare the purport of tone poems.
Liszt's ballade in B minor by Miss Davis was one of the tidbits of the recital. She captivated the audience by her mastery execution.
Miss Loveland again sang the "Una voce" aria from "The Barber of Seville" and was obliged to respond to an encore. Pretty was her interpretation of that sweet melody by Reynaldo Hahn, "Were My Song With Wings Provided." The work of Madame Borglum as accompanist added to the success of the concert. The accompaniment to Bachmann's "Floods of Spring" is a solo in itself and it was played with the skill and good taste of the virtuoso.
