Five Days' Fine for Caning Boy

Aged Man Sentenced in Police Court Following Vain Attempt to Get Him to Plead.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, your honor and the jury."
"Hold on, there. You're not up to make a speech; besides there's no jury here." This little exchange occurred in Judge Crawford's court Wednesday morning, and served as a prelude to a study in psychology.
William Andrews, an aged man living at Tenth and Pierce streets, who was being arraigned for having struck a small boy over the head with a cane, made the opening address.
"What do you plead?" continued Acting Prosecutor Mahoney, after the excitement had died off.
"Why they thrash rocks at me," responded the defendant.

"I know, but what do you plead?" persisted Prosecutor Mahoney.

"It's the Greeks and Bohemians," answered Andrews.

For five minutes Mr. Mahoney did his best to learn whether Andrews pleaded guilty or not guilty to the charge of assault. At each query Andrews gave vent to a short, interrupted address on the tendencies of Greek and Bohemian boys.

"The Irish boys don't do it," he declared. "It's the Greeks and Bohemians. They throw stones."

It was incidentally learned that Andrews had no visible means of support, and was garrulous in his ideas.

Judge Crawford sentenced him to five days in jail.

COLD DOES NOT DAMAGE CROPS

Fruit is the Worst Sufferer from the Recent Frigid Spell in Nebraska.

In Nebraska the wheat crop has not been improved by a cold and windy week, according to the Burlington crop report, although there was no serious or perceptible damage done. Reports from the agents over the district show prospects as compared with an average crop as follows:

Lincoln division, 70 per cent; Omaha division, 73 per cent; Wynne division, 81 per cent; McCook division, 81 per cent. The prospects for fruit in the Nebraska district are exceedingly bad and very little fruit can be reasonably expected on account of the cold and freezing weather since fruit trees commenced to bud. Sugar beets are being planted.

The timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will prevent pneumonia.

Innocent, but Broke, His Plea

Prisoner in Judge Estelle's Court Would Confess Guilt Because of Lack of Money and Friends.

"Might just as well plead guilty," declared Samuel Breakhill to Judge Estelle. "I ain't got no lawyer, no friends, nor no money."

"Well, you won't plead guilty in this court if you are not," said the court with emphasis. "If you have no money, the court will appoint an attorney and will bring in what witnesses you say you need. But, mind you, if you are convicted you will go to the penitentiary."

Like other judges sitting on the criminal bench, Judge Estelle takes umbrage at the men who come before him, declare they really are innocent, but ask permission to plead guilty.

Breakhill was arraigned for breaking and entering. Two other men, George O. Marks and Harry Logan, entered pleas of not guilty of charges of wife abandonment and desertion, respectively.
