Mr. Dixon presented the compromise Senator Heyburn Interposed a point of order that the new amendment was not in order under the unanimous consent agreement, which, he claimed, contemplated a vote only upon matters pending at the time the agreement was made. This led to a wrangle, but Vice President Sherman finally overruled the point of order, and the vote was taken resulting in the adoption of the compromise amendment.

After the vote several senators asserted that opponents of the long and short haul amendments had been compelled to accept a provision which they had denounced as revolutionary, Mr. Bacon openly taunted Mr. Aldrich with being willing to accept anything to preserve his prestige and prevent an appearance of defeat. "I hope the senator has not forgotten, interposed Mr. Alarich, "the adage that 'he laughs best, who laughs last.' Mr. Bacon promptly interpreted, this as confession that Mr. Aldrich was counting upon having the provision stricken out in conference.

"I do not mean anything of the sort. I believe the provision can be defended on the principles that I have been advocating. replied the Rhode Island senator blandly Mr. Heyburn, who fought the amendment at every stage, closed by asserting that it had been "a great day for the railroads." "Their flag has been flying to the breeze by this coalition," he declared. "They have got all they want, and no doubt there will be great rejoicing among them when they hear what has been done."

We have no means of knowing how the barbers of Waterloo, Neb., regard the ordinance that threatens them with a fine ordinance that threatens them with a fine if they eat onions during working hours. It may be that there are tonsorial experts among them, who will savagely resent this interference with their diet. It is possible that some of 'hem will go so far as to start an insurgent barber shop, defying the municipal ukase and appealing to the patronage of all lovers of untrammeled personal freedom.

It is even possible to imagine these in surgent barbers placarding their window with bills like this: "We cat online here also garile—also limburger. Come in sur be shaved by barbers." also garlic-also limburger. Come in be shaved by barbers who stand for sonal liberty. Show your abhorrence and liberty by having your h papers in his arms, which he threw to the floor with every indication of anger.
