COLLINS FUNERAL IS DELAYED

Services Will Not Be Held Until Relatives Arrive, Probably Tuesday.

Pending the arrival of a number of relatives from various parts of the country the funeral arrangements for the late John S. Collins have not been announced, though it was said it probably would take place Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Collins died Friday about noon following an attack of apoplexy which occurred Wednesday.

Mr. Collins was a director of the Nebraska National bank and a retired saddlery and leather goods dealer. He was one of the earliest pioneers of Omaha, having lived in the city more than fifty years. He was 72 years old at the time of his death.

Mr. Collins was born in Galena, Ill. During his active life he was engaged for a long time in the saddlery business with his brother, Gilbert M., till the latter's death years ago.

Mr. Collins traveled widely, making numerous trips across the country and to Europe and Alaska. He was an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman and is noted for an excellent book concerning his travels entitled "Across the Plains in '64." Mr. Collins was unmarried.

WANTS THOUSAND A SMITE

Boy Who Mixed Up Laundry Sues Because Angry Man Gave Him Quiffing.

Charles W. Kruger, a real estate man, was impatient, says a petition filed in district court, when he called at the office of the Sanitary Cleaning company on Farnam near Nineteenth, and found that a young employe had wrapped up several articles in one bundle instead of putting them up separately, as previously directed.

Whereupon, alleges the petition, he fell upon this employe, James E. Connor by name, and smote him grievously. Connor says he was hurt in the sum of $1,000.

Five Auto Drivers Pay Their Fines

Morning Session of the Police Court is Taken Up by Speeding Automobileists.

Five automobile drivers were brought before Judge Crawford Saturday morning on a charge of speeding and other phases of auto driving irregularities. One was fined $25 and costs, one suffered a $15 and costs fine and three were made to pay $10 and costs. Police court was converted into almost exclusively a tribunal upon the ethics of auto driving. The first represented efforts by motorcycle patrolmen and policemen in several sections of the city acting under the special orders of extermination against speeders.

Following were those who suffered the wrath of the court: S. A. Hauser, livery dealer, fined $25 and costs; E. V. Rickenback, fined $15 and costs; Lemmon Gearhart of Gretna, Neb., fined $10 and costs; A. T. Klapp of the Klapp-Bartlett Printing company, fined $10 and costs, and Homer Byers, fined $10 and costs. All paid their fines.

MC'REA SETTLEMENT LIKELY

Friends Have Arranged with Live Stock and Sundry Companies for an Adjustment.

A settlement of the William McCrea defalcation case has been reached among interested persons and companies and it is likely that the charge of embezzlement reached in county court will be dismissed. An effort to this end made Saturday morning was a failure. McCrea, his attorney and the attorney of the National Surety company, together with several of McCrea's friends, visited the court house and called County Attorney English from Judge Redick's court room, where Mr. English was engaged in arguing a motion on the Connor will case.

Mr. English refused to allow a dismissal of the case to be entered at once and declared that the interested persons will have to come and see him at more length in the matter.

It is likely that this will take place Monday. The date set for McCrea's arraignment in county court is Tuesday at 9.

It is understood that McCrea's friends have put up either $1,500 or $1,000 and this with the securities worth $700 which McCrea himself put up will make what now appears to be the deficit.
