Romance in the Theatrical Marriage of the Governor of French West Africa-A Fortune Teller Puzzle.

BY PAUL VILLIERS. PARIS, May 14,-(Special Dispatch, to

The Beg)-Not content with being the gayest city in the world and the most beautiful, in the minds of all true Parisians, Paris is preparing to spend some $300,000,000 in the improvement and embel lishment of the city.

It is doubtful if any city in the world has ever seriously undertaken so ambitious a scheme of betterment.

The present plans for these improvements is simply to complete the scheme of Baron Haussmann. This great "demolisher" conceived a Paris of which the two axis would intersect at right angles-the Rue de Rivoli and Rue St. Antoine and the Boulevards de Sebastipol, du Palala and St. Michel. This Paris, in his plan, would contain a circle of inner boulevards, the great boulevards, popularly so-called, and the Boulevard St. Germain. Radiating highways would bring the inner bould vards into communication with the outer and with the center. Finally a triple girdle of highways was projected, to consist of the boulevards laid out under Louis XVI. the military boulevards and an almost un-Interrupted series of wide streets connecting these two lines and forming a curved highway, especially notipeable on the left bank, where it bears in succession the names of Rues de-Tolbiac, d'Alesia, de Vouille and de la Convention.

One-half at least of the money which is to be raised by the new loan is to be devoted to the piercing of arteries of communication, to the improvement of the old streets and to the demolition of some scores of the ancient highways in quarters which have remained untouched since the period of Henri IV or of Louis XIII. As far back as last December a bond issue of $180,000,000 was authorized for this
