Officer Engelman testified that he had taken after Knott on West Farnam street and found that he was going over thirty miles an hour. After a long chase by the motorcycle he was overhauled.

In police court Knott did not deny he was driving fast, but his excuse was that he did not know what the speed limit was in the outlying districts.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Eight Men Bound Over on Assault Charge.

STATE HAS MUCH EVIDENCE

County Attorney Declares Important Witnesses Have Been Allowed to Get Out of State—Clean-Up Orders.

Joe Kratoch, Joseph Vendra, William Sedlack, Willard Stanley, Joe Drahos, Anton Korinek, Thomas Cauley and Mike Slager were bound over to the district court by Judge James Callanan of South Omaha Tuesday afternoon under $1,000 bonds each, being charged with criminal assault.

It was found necessary to change the complaint when Attorney James English learned that the real name of the injured girl was Ida Mikkelsen, instead of Edith Michaelson, as he had supposed up to that time. This caused some objection on the part of H. E. Fiehring, counsel for the defense, but it was permitted by the court.

The evidence submitted to the police court was much stronger than had been supposed, although a number of the witnesses for the prosecution testified unwillingly. Most noticeable of these was Albert Slager, who admitted having been one of the party, and to have helped carry the beer. He tried to establish the fact that he was too drunk to know anything about the case, but he remembered that all the party in the court room had been at the scene. Reluctantly at this end he declared that he had been an eye witness to the assault.

Albert Slager was placed under $200 bonds as a witness. He was apparently the more unwilling to testify because he is a brother to one of the defendants, Mike Slager.

The state claims to have much more evidence than has been produced at the preliminary trial.

Joe Vondra and Albert Slager secured bonds and have been released until the court demands their presence.

County Attorney English appeared considerably irritated at what he declared was lack of interest on the part of the police department of South Omaha. He said he was surprised that certain important witnesses had been allowed to get out of the city.

Perina Orders Clean Up.

Chris Perina, the new sanitary inspector, has announced an active policy, now that his appointment has been confirmed and he expects to begin by serving notices for a general cleaning up of the alleys and back yards of the city. He said that the notices would permit the residents three days in which to comply, then if their premises were not cleaned he would at once order their arrest for violating the city ordinances. He held the position that much of the summer season, diseases, including diphtheria and scarlet fever, come from poor sanitation, and for this reason will take active measures that no blame will rest on him for not being active in his office. He said it was not necessary for people to wait until he served notice on them, but that he hoped they would take the hint and clean up.

H. E. Dilly Arrested.

New Ritual for Modern Woodmen

Large Number of Delegates Expected from Nebraska and Iowa.

About 5,000 out-of-town people will swarm into Omaha to attend the district ceremony of the Modern Woodman of America Thursday evening at the Auditorium, according to local officials of the order. The occasion of the gathering is an exemplification of the new ritual, which has been planned for some months. This ceremony is the second one of its kind the order has had in twenty-four years and is considered a most solemn event.

According to arrangements there will be 200 uniformed men in the actual performance of the ritual. Communications have been received at the local headquarters indicating that Plattsmouth will send a full team of twenty men, besides a large delegation. Council Bluffs is to send a delegation of several hundred persons, and Fremont, Blair, Kennard and a score of other towns in Nebraska and Iowa likewise will be represented by hundreds of members.

W. R. Talbot, head consul of the order, will be present. J. O. Davis, the national lecturer of the order, living in California, is also expected to take part in the ceremony and deliver an address. Among other distinguished attendants will be E. E. Kester, late deputy, and Editor Van Galder of the Modern Woodman, the society journal.

A unique feature of the Thursday evening program is to be a stereopticon view entertainment, with views depicting scenes about the Modern Woodman of America sanatorium at Colorado Springs.

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Assistant is Given "Doc" Breed for Inspecting Slaughter Houses.

VIADUCT MATTER TO COMMITTEE

Council Instructs City Clerk Butler to Find Out What is Done in Forty Other Cities.

"Doc" Charles S. Breed, recently appointed assistant city veterinarian and slaughter house inspector was voted an assistant by the city council last evening. It had been indicated to the council that the assistant veterinarian would be forced to resign, were his resignation for an assistant not granted. The new functionary shall have a salary of $30 a month.

The only hitch that arose in consideration of the request was the question, whether it involved the creation of a new office, in which case an ordinance would be required. The council in the end decided that an assistant to an assistant properly was merely an employee and not an official, and that therefore, the council could act without framing an ordinance. City Clerk Butler received quite a task, when the council, upon a resolution from Councilman Berka, ordered him to gather data from forty cities to be used in consideration of the petition from the Omaha Electric Light and Power company, for an ordinance. Mr. Berka's resolution recommended that the clerk write to the forty cities, asking information relating to their terms, conditions of light companies, where the latter were not under municipal control.

The council referred to the committee of the whole the task of forcing the railroads owning the viaducts at Sixteenth street south of Leavenworth street and at Nineteenth and Mason streets, to improve and rebuild them respectively.

Will Pay Light Company.

The committee of the whole was also empowered to proceed in arranging to pay the Omaha Electric Light and Power company, for the maintenance of four lights, which since August 1908, have been used without cost to the city. This action was in response to a resolution of the city council that the lights would be discontinued and an effort made to collect for back light charges, if an agreement were not reached by June 1, 1910. The lights in question are located at Seventh and Marcy, Seventh and Mason, under the Thirtieth street viaduct and Twentieth street and the Union Pacific railroad tracks.

Council unanimously accepted the request from the Grand Army of the Republic to take part in the Memorial Day parade and attend the Grand Army of the Republic services in the Auditorium on that day, May 30. It was also moved to donate money to the Gettysburg Centennial and the Grand Army of the Republic, for celebration purposes on Memorial Day.

A communication from an architect dealing satirically with the proposed ordinance, regulating the height of buildings, caused considerable mirth in the meeting. The entertainment, respectively recommended that the minimum height of buildings hereafter be fixed at one story.

AYLESWORTH ON SUFFRAGE

Finds Woman at Meeting Who Takes Opposite View of Question From Him.

Both sides of the suffrage question were represented Tuesday afternoon when Dr. Barton O. Aylesworth, lecturer and organizer for the National American Woman Suffrage association, spoke at the Young Women's Christian association, under the auspices of the Omaha Woman's Christian Temperance union. Dr. Aylesworth, whose lecture was on "Woman and the Ballot in Colorado," was the chief speaker, but he was not the first to express himself. Mrs. H. J. Kirschstein had the first opportunity as she led the meeting in the singing of the opening hymn and made this a chance to declare that she was not a suffragist, though indeed she was open to conviction.

Before taking up the subject of the western suffrage, Dr. Aylesworth gave a few pictures of the recent strike of the shirtwaist girls of New York. In these pictures he paid tribute to Mrs. O. H. F. Belmont, whose support was instrumental in bringing victory to the strikers, and also to Miss Anna Morgan, who encouraged the strikers to stand out for the last concession, recognition of their union. He emphasized the glimpse this strike offered of the splendid way in which the young women of wealth exemplified in their assistance to the strikers the true meaning of democracy.

It is planned to have Dr. Aylesworth address other meetings in Omaha this week, but aside from his address before the Central Labor union Friday evening definite arrangements to date have not been made.

Mrs. I. S. Leavitt, vice president of the Omaha Woman's Christian Temperance union, introduced Dr. Aylesworth.

STOOKEY RETURNS FROM EAST

President of Bellevue says He Finds Eastern People Look with Favor on This Section.

"The east feels right toward Bellevue college and Omaha as the seat of a great western institution of learning," declared President Stookey on his return from a journey to the east yesterday. "I was assured time and again of the confidence that the east feels in the country which centers about our western metropolis. They have, too, an appreciation of the great opportunity for the college in this field and are willing to co-operate in helping the development of the school."

"But at the same time I feel most sincerely," said Dr. Stookey, "that the local interest and initiative will be the measure of such co-operation and practical help."

Dr. Stookey's journey was not without material fruits, either.

"The trustees were happy to receive a substantial addition to the current funds of the college," he added, "although this is not the time of year to canvass for funds."

"The college needs about $25,000 more than has thus far been pledged to cancel all obligations."

WOMEN IN MISSIONARY WORK

Women of Methodist Churches Conduct Successful Campaign to Increase Membership.

In the campaign which the foreign missionary societies of the Methodist Episcopal churches have been waging for new members, which closed with a luncheon at the Hanscom Park church Tuesday, 145 new members were gained. A large part of these new workers and those who gained their interest were represented at the banquet, 146 attending.

The affair was a most notable event, the enthusiasm which had gained the new members lending its influence and talks by Dr. Stephens, a missionary to India, and Mrs. Lawrence of Persia, added new fuel. The Walnut Hill church was the guest of the other churches, the thirteen original members having obtained thirty-three new ones. At Mt. Zion church an entirely new organization was formed, Mrs. I. S. Leavitt and Mrs. F. W. Stallard acting as organizers.

Music

May Festival at the Brandels.

The first concert of the Omaha May Music Festival of 1910 was given last night at the Brandels theater. It was practically the curtain raiser of the festival, as the Minneapolis symphony orchestra and Mr. Oberholfer will not make their bow until this afternoon.

As a curtain raiser and without the orchestra, it offered a very interesting program of choral and solo numbers.

The chorus, consisting of between seventy and eighty voices, gave a good account of itself and showed plainly the hard work which the members had done under the direction of Mr. J. H. Simms, who made his first appearance as conductor of the society. Incidentally, the sopranos and contraltos added much to the general appearance by the red rose and green leafed stem carefully laid against the white background of each gown.

In the "Hymn to Music," a most appropriate opening number, a choral ode, with music by the late James Dudley Buck, the chorus sang with firmness and precision, obeyed carefully the baton of Mr. Simms, who left nothing unsure, and gave a very welcome presentation of the music. This was also true in the "Hunting Song" by Mendelssohn, and in the "Land-sighting," by Grieg. Mr. Haverstock offered a nice bit of singing in the baritone solo incidental to the last named number. In each number there seemed to be a very well balanced choral effect, even where the parts divided. Mr. Simms received a huge bunch of roses and he is to be congratulated on this concert, which is surely only a foretaste of the big work, "King Olaf."

Mr. Czerwonky was applauded to the echo over and over again and responded to encores after playing groups of violin solos, including very decidedly to sweet-sounding long-drawn-out, but perchance our young genius hath fallen in love since his last visit here. But one can forgive the "sentimental" in consideration of other things that he did with breadth and skill.

Madame Langendorff did not come up to expectations. It is a mistake to herald "second Schumann-Heinkes" unless one really has them. Madame Langendorff has a splendid voice, which she uses well in the lower and middle parts, and in the upper portion when she sings very softly, but only then. It is a pity, because Madame Langendorff has an appealing, a very appealing manner, and she is full of temperament. The best work she did was in the "Cry of Rachel," wherein she did some remarkable dramatic work, but not beautiful singing.

The appointments were taken care of by Mr. Martin Bush and Madame Borglum, the former playing for the chorus and for the violinist and the latter for Madame Langendorff.

The following program will be given this afternoon at 2:30:

- 1. Overture.....Mozart
- 2. "Surprise" symphony.....Haydn
- 3. Adagio-allegro, (b) theme and variations, (c) minuetto, (d) allegro di molto.....M. Czerwonky
- 4. "You Plaudit Your Beauty" from "Golden Threshold".....Liza Lehmann
- 5. "The Merry Widow".....Sibelius
- 6. Gipsy Airs.....Sarasate
- 7. "In the Mountain Village".....Mozart
- 8. "The Merry Widow".....Sibelius
- 9. "The Merry Widow".....Sibelius
