Normal, healthy blood contains millions of tiny red corpuscles, which are the vitalizing and nourishing element of the circulation. These corpuscles are constantly forming in healthy systems by the extraction of nutriment from food eaten, and this nourishment is then supplied through the circulation to every portion of the system. Any system which does not receive the proper amount of blood nourishment is not prepared to withstand the countless disorders that assail

it. Bad blood can not nourish the body, the circulation must be pure, rich and strong if we would enjoy good health. Bad blood manifests itself in various bilious and malarious, with sallow complexions, torpid liver, etc. If the germs and impurities in the blood are of a more virulent nature then bad blood becomes more serious and produces Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, and like troubles.

Nothing equals S. S. S. for bad blood. It is Nature's own blood purifier, made from roots, herbs and barks. It goes into the circulation and removes every impurity or poison, strengthens and enriches the blood, and in this way supplies the body with the proper amount of nourishment to maintain good health. S. S. S.

is likewise the finest of all tonics and while purifying the blood builds up every portion of the system. S. S. S. cures every ailment coming from bad blood, and it does so simply because it purifies the circulation. Book on the blood sent free to all who write,

"I bore the name of Thomas Hebbs until was 21 years of age," replied Theodore Kharns, defendant in the suit of the United States for using the Unted States mails for purposes to defraud, now on trial in the United States district court, in response to the question put to him by United States Attorney Frank Howelf, Friday morning. Kharas' attorney strenuously objected to the question, but the court overruled the objection with the remark: "The jury has the right to be informed if the defendant about 10 o'clock Thursday night. "The name of Thomas Hobbs was given ne by a family with whom I lived, and upon reaching my twenty-first birthday I changed my name to Theodore Kharas, continued the defendant. He gave no particular reason for changing his name, other than that he did not like the name of Hebbs. He gave the date of his birth as

January 19, 1875. He taught school for a while under the name of Hobbs until he was 19 years of age. Since that time he had been engaged in various vocations-newspaper work, real estate, practiced osteopathy and for a while was a magnetic healer. He had also engaged in the patent right business prior to going into the movable street car sign busi-

Admits Circulars.

He admitted that when he sent out his street car sign circulars that he had not yet received his patent, but that he thought it might be issued at any time. The only patent he had was for an improvement upon some previous patent, the improvement being issued to him June 22, 1908. He had sent out circulars prior to the formal issuance of his patent, stating that such patents had been issued, or were pending, for the purpose of interesting investors in his enterprise, and had used the mails for such purpose to a "limited extent."

He further admitted that at the time he published the circular stating that patents were pending in all nations of the globe where street car advertising was in vogue, no such patents were pending except in the United States and Canada, These statements having appeared in a circular he had caused to be printed and circulated bearing date of January 7, 1908. It was not until the latter part of January, 1908, that he had learned that another movable sign device had been invented and patented. He claimed further to be the inventor of the movable car sign advertising device, but admitted that while he advertised in his circulars that he had three patents on the movable car sign device he had in fact but one patent.

He stated that some of his correspondence would show that he afterward corrected this statement to the effect that he had but the one patent, but that the government had these letters and had not thus far produced them in evidence.
