Miss Jane Addams of Chicago Presides and Delivers Annual Address-Problem of Poor.

ST. LOUIS, May 20 .- The thirty-seventh National Conference of Charities and Corrections opened here last night with more than 1,000 registered delegates in attendance. It promises to be one of the largest in the history of the association. Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, Chicago, and president of the conference, presided and delivered her annual address. Mayor Fred-erick H. Kreissman welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city. Governor Herbert S. Hadley, performed similar office on behalf of the state and in his address congratulated the conference on the growth of the work and the success, which attended the affairs of the eaders and members. The conference will continue its sessions daily, concluding on the night of May 26. Sectional meetings will be held during the week at ten different places in the city. Rivalry for the privilege of entertaining the conference next year has begun and eight cities have been entered in the lists. They are Fort Worth, Seattle, Oklahoma City, Boston, Nashville, Detroit, Brimingam and Milwaukee. "Dividing the great body of philanthropsts into two groups, the charitable actuated by 'pity for the poor,' and de radicals, 'fired by hatred of injustice,' Miss Addams declared that both are coming to realize that the world needs a contain power of compassion in our solar atmosphere. "Sheer experience in the complexity of life has at last united both groups in sentinent as well as in conviction," said Miss Addams.
