BARKALOW-PECK AT TRINITY

Ceremonies and the Various Functions Attendant Upon So Many Weddings Keeps Society Busy All Week.

When Love Cut. Love had cut the two as partners And, as all the rules demand, On the deal the happy lover showed a diamond in his hand.

Later, "If there he a reason
To divide this man and maid,
Now declare it," spake the Parson,
"Boldly call a spade a spade."

But hearts was the declaration, And, with none to intervene. Ere the parson said: "I double," Father gave away the queen.

At this sight rejected sultors,
With remarks were profane,
Took to clubs, nor hoped for honors,
Since they only had chicane.

FOR LITTLE MONEY

Seven of Prussian Court Paint. er's Finest Efforts Now on Exhibit at the A. Hospe Co.

Similar Pieces in Boudoir of Empress of Russia. Possessed by Hospe in a Peculiar Manner.

By a queer throw of the dice of fate seven European paintings of great value are offered for comparatively trifling sums by an Omaha art store-The Hospe

Co., of 1513 Douglas street. Strickenbach, of Germany, the wielder of the brush that produced these exquisite works of art, is court painter to Princess Henry of Prussia, and has also many of his pleces in the royal castles of the Czar of Russia. Strickenbach's studies of still life are known, not only the length and breadth of Germany, but internationally as well, and yet he found time to execute seven favored pieces for an old boyhood friend -Dr. Krouse of Millard, Nebraska.

Dr. Krouse upon receiving the paintings last year, found himself poorly situated to exhibit treasures of this sort, and saw fit to sell the entire lot of seven to the A. Hospe Co., where one may see them now-some framed-others just as they left the famed Cerman artist's easel

Strickenbach today never paints a picture for less than $500, yet here are seven of his most beautiful conceptionsthousands of miles from his studios-at prices ridiculous when one considers

Five of the subjects will be offered at $60 each-one at $50-another at $70. If you've appreciation-a knowledge of the REAL spirit of art then don't fail to see these seven paintings by the artist who paints for royalty.

The paintings may be viewed, for a limited time, in the third floor art salon of the A. Hospe Co., 1513 Douglas street.
