

OTHER THE FUTURE FORCE

Edison Talks of a Great Power Yet Undiscovered.

FAR SUPERIOR TO ELECTRICITY

Traveling in the Air to Become Safe When the Changes Are Made in the Aeroplanes.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(Special Telegram.)—A force exists in the surrounding ether, far in advance of electricity as a source of power. This is the belief of Thomas A. Edison, and Mr. Edison is after it. In an interview the famous inventor said:

"I cannot guess what this power will be. It will be discovered, but its discovery will be an accident. There are any number of accidents of this kind right here in this room, but what they are we don't know."

"And so there is to be a discovery in the domain of motion in the ether, something that we shall be able to carry on wires to great distances, and that, perhaps, will afford us power, but I cannot guess what it will be."

In the meantime, while this hypothetical force remains undiscovered, what may we expect electricity to accomplish in the immediate future?

"Lots of things. It is the power of today and nearly everything which requires motion will soon be in the form of electricity. It will entirely displace gasoline in automobiles, in motor transport."

In the cities it will bring about a complete revolution. There will be a vast improvement in the telephone, especially as to volume of sound and clarity of articulation.

To Better Telephones.

"Today you cannot send over the telephone a message which contains, say, a lot of Hungarian names. The articulation ought to be better than on the phonograph, and it must be made. I believe the telephones will eventually displace the telegraph on railroads."

"Another big advance in the electrical field will most likely be along in the line of high efficiency of the wind motor, which will produce power for isolated communities and there will also be hope for the sun motor in the arid regions."

"The motor solved the airplane problem, but the problem of making the airplane safe and commercial is another matter, and this will be solved by chance in the aeroplanes."

"Progress in electricity will continue during the next twenty-five years. The demand for everything is unlimited. The more light you have, the more light you want. And in its possibilities electricity seems unlike almost anything else—unlimited."

A question was put to Mr. Edison as to the possibility of the use of electricity in warfare, with the suggestion that a European war is said to have completed an invention for projecting a ray that will kill within a radius of many miles, but the inventor was not apparently inclined to discuss that phase of it.

"The war matter will be settled by all the governments going broke equipping for it," he declared. "There will be popular uprisings one of these days against this military business."

Recently Edison took a trip through the western country, where he was deeply interested in the irrigation systems which he saw, but he is seemingly disgusted with what seems to him a waste of effort in that line.

Can't Understand This.

"I don't understand why they go to the trouble and expense of digging those long costly ditches where they could make their water power manufacture electricity right up in the hills and then take it down on slender wires to the land to be irrigated," he said.

"The system of digging ditches is the brute way. I don't believe in exercise aside from that caused by a man's or woman's occupation. Considering the human body as a dynamo, it takes in enough fuel to supply its needs in the ordinary discharge of its occupations."

"People don't know how to feed the human dynamo; they are killing themselves by overeating. They eat because it gives them pleasure. Considering the human body in the light of a dynamo again; if they were to eat just enough to feed it properly and keep it going right, they would be better off."

"I don't believe there is any such thing as brain food. I eat everything. I don't restrict my diet except in point of quantity. I eat very little—four to five ounces of meat—and I eat any time I feel hungry. I go to my meals regularly, but if I don't feel hungry I leave the table without eating. I sleep six hours and sleep at any time and any place—I could sleep in a boiler factory if I were hungry."

"What will you go into next, Mr. Edison?" he was asked.

"Ah," he said slowly, "I am an old man. I don't know."

arguments by which the future was worked out, and the rebellion was suppressed."

Mr. Taft, lined tonight with Representative Charles E. Townsend, Senators Burrows and Smith also were there. Townsend is an announced candidate for Senator Burrows' seat, but during the two days of the president's visit to Michigan there has been a sort of armed truce between them.

CASE WITHOUT PRECEDENT

Jefferson Candidate Dies After Primary Ballots Are Printed.

JEFFERSON, Ia., June 5.—(Special.)—Just when he was about to realize his desire for re-election to the office of supervisor, George W. Jackson, one of the most popular men of the county, passed to his eternal reward. The official primary ballots are already printed bearing his name. The primary law makes no provision for this kind of an emergency and County Auditor Goss is very uncertain as to what to do in the matter. E. C. Howard, attorney general, has gone to Des Moines to consult Attorney General Byers regarding the matter. The political effect of his death will be to make the nomination of E. H. Riley and A. E. Cole unanimous. The unexpected term of the late Mr. Jackson will be filled by appointment, the county auditor, county clerk and county recorder having it in charge.

before him, those who got the ballots would comprise a better congress than the present one. "For in that case," said the judge, "there would be no Cummins, Dillworth or LaFollette."

Upward of 1,500 men and women packed the theater to hear Congressman Smith. The audience gave vent to a hearty reception to him and applauded frequently.

John W. Stone, former attorney general of Iowa, introduced Congressman Smith. He precluded what the congressman was to say with a hearty eulogy of the latter.

Mr. Stone said in part:

"Congressman Smith entered political life years ago during the presidency of William McKinley and he supported the policies of that lamented chief. He aided to the full extent of his abilities the policies of the world-renowned Roosevelt. It is a point worthy of notice that these two positive and aggressive men, agreed in everything save one, and that was a mere matter of detail on a minor matter of expediency as to a subordinate question in one of the departments."

Supporter of Taft.

"He is a supporter of President Taft and of his policies and administration. He does not conceal it; he proclaims it. If he, like President Taft, cannot get for the people all he thinks they ought to have he takes for them what he can get and bides his time to get more."

"He voted for the new tariff law, not because it contained all he thought it ought to contain, for it did not, nor because it omitted all he thought it ought to omit, for it did not, but because, on the whole, meeting with nearly 600 other minds, possessing equal power in making law, it was the best he could get, and he believed it a better one than that which preceded it."

"Thus it was his duty to vote for it. Because of this, he has, in some quarters, been condemned."

"This is not an ordinary man we have in the Ninth district of Iowa. Two United States senators have recently made two 1,500-mile trips, mainly or in part, to do his bidding in his own party and theirs. What hopes and fears must lie burning and active, though concealed in their ambitious breasts. Hopes, if they can defeat him; fears, if they shall fail."

"This is no ordinary man that the president of the republic, elected by the republicans, hopes to see returned, in order that the country may have the aid of his services in behalf of the great policies which that president is trying to carry out."

FATHER WINS SUIT FOR CHILD

H. W. Burdick of Center County Gets Judgment After Long Trial.

BROKEN BOW, Neb., June 5.—(Special.)—Because a father wished to gain possession of his three-year-old daughter, a battle of neighbors thought they had better fight it out in court. It was an interesting case before Judge Holcomb in probate court that only terminated last night after a week of bitter fighting.

Harry W. Burdick, of Ansley township, instituted habeas corpus proceedings to recover the child from the custody of Mr. and Mrs. Kaelin, who had taken her when she was five days old, and when he was the mother. Burdick testified that he gave the baby to Mrs. Kaelin with the understanding that she and her husband should keep it until he wanted her and that they were to be given reasonable compensation for their services. A contract was drawn up in the city of Omaha, but it did not specify how long the child should remain in the keeping of its foster father and mother. He also claimed to have demanded the child when it was only nine months old, but was put off until 1909, when Mr. and Mrs. Kaelin refused him point blank. Both sides had a host of witnesses and several days were consumed in "taking testimony" that was both complimentary and otherwise to the parties involved. Some of the testimony was intended to show that Burdick was not the proper person to bring up his daughter; and Judge Holcomb thought differently, and in his ruling declared the contract to be against public policy. He accordingly gave the child to its father.

Marking Oregon Trail.

KEARNEY, Neb., June 5.—(Special.)—The daughters of the American Revolution have arranged elaborate exercises for the unveiling of a monument which will mark the place where the old Oregon trail crossed Central avenue in this city. The service will take place on June 9 and is the first monument in the state of Nebraska to commemorate the old trail that was beaten in the foot of the pioneers by the gold hungry men who crossed the continent in the forties. The stone will set within a few feet of the Union Pacific railroad track in the park adjoining the depot, and is a huge piece of dark red granite.

Judgment for Kearney Church.

KEARNEY, Neb., June 4.—In district court Saturday afternoon Judge Hostetter gave judgment for $4,260.25 to the St. Luke's Episcopal church vs. Francis J. Keens, this being the full amount prayed for. The case was brought to recover on a note given by defendant, contract to pay one-fourth of the cost of erecting the east eighty-two feet of the new St. Luke's church. Mr. Keens had paid one-fourth of the cost of the foundation, but set up a claim for relief from payment of one-fourth of the cost of the building, for the reason, as alleged, that changes had been made from the original plans, and that an edifice had been built at an excessive cost with considerable indebtedness upon it.

Money Snatcher.

Excitement Caused on a Burlington Train Near Seward When Robbery is Attempted.

SEWARD, Neb., June 5.—(Special.)—When the Burlington train from the west was approaching Seward between 12 and 1 o'clock, two men snatched $136 from a passenger with whom they had been playing cards. The man who was robbed notified the conductor, and one of the money snatchers was caught. The other jumped from the train at a point where the track runs on a high embankment.

The train was backed up and the man who had jumped off was found unconscious at the bottom of the embankment. One of his legs was broken in two places, and he is so badly injured internally that he can not live, it is said. The money was recovered in his possession. The two prisoners, who refused to give their names, are now in jail, and the man from whom the money was taken is held as a witness.

GETS AUTHORITY TO MARRY

License is Issued to Young Roosevelt and Miss Alexander.

NUMBER REGARDED A LUCKY ONE

Wedding Does Not Occur for Some Days, but the Groom Wants to Be Ready When Called.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(Special Telegram.)—Theodore Roosevelt Jr., and his fiancée, Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander, secured a marriage license to wed and to-night Mr. Roosevelt gave a bachelor dinner for twenty of his cronies at Delmonico's. It was a gay affair and young Roosevelt was toasted and congratulated on all sides. He said he was the happiest young man in the United States.

While the marriage will not take place until June 20, practically all the arrangements have already been made for it.

Mr. Roosevelt said this afternoon he did not care a rap for the publicity which attended his private affairs, although he was trying to spite the feelings of Miss Alexander, who did not like it.

"I'm getting used to seeing the Roosevelt name in the newspapers," said the son of Colonel Roosevelt, with a smile.

Speaking seriously, the young man declared he believed it the duty of every man to marry, no matter whether his father had urged such a course or not. "I think about those things about the same way that father does," said Theodore, Jr.

"Every young man ought to marry. It will make him more stable and a better citizen. The responsibilities of citizenship and those that attend the state of being a husband and perhaps a father, ought to go hand in hand. Of course I do not believe in indiscriminate marriage. I like the old fashioned ideals the best."

"I know just what father's counsel will be after he arrives home. In his letters to me he has congratulated me and told me he believed I had chosen a wise course in life. He knows Miss Alexander and knows she is a mighty fine girl. My mother knows her, too."

"I know I shall be the most contented husband alive. Why, I am just so happy now I don't know what to do."—and here the son of the house of Roosevelt cast about for a fitting simile to show just how joyous he really is. Continuing, he said that while he is only 22 years old, he did not believe for a minute that 22 years is too young for marriage.

"A chap of 22 is aged several years for the responsibilities of a husband," he added. "I don't mean that he loses any of the joys of life in this aging process, for the views of married men are more tolerant and sane than those of a bachelor. The bachelor is not to be condemned so much as he is to be pitied. He is getting only half of the happiness in life."

"I used to think I was a happy, careless life absolutely devoid of the responsibilities of domesticity, but that's when I was younger than I am now."

Young Mr. Roosevelt wore a natty grey sack suit when he visited the marriage bureau this afternoon and toyed with a rafter cane. He was accompanied by Miss Alexander, Chief Scully of the marriage bureau knew of their coming in advance, and had everything ready for them.

Fred A. Collins, private secretary to Collector Loeb of the port of New York, acted as the guide of the couple.

"I'm afraid I could never have dodged the reporters alone," said Mr. Roosevelt as Mr. Collins led him through the portals of the bureau.

Mr. Roosevelt described himself as "single, aged 22, a resident of Oyster Bay, and a manufacturer." According to the license he is the son of Theodore Roosevelt and Edith Carey Roosevelt.

Miss Alexander was smartly attired. She wrote her name and gave her address as 4 West Forty-seventh street. She is one year younger than Mr. Roosevelt. The number of the license is 13,727, which, among policy players, is known as "The happy six." It is supposed to be a very lucky set of numbers.

Evans Says Bryan Signers Are Many

Representative from Hamilton County Reports that Democrats Are Taking to the Plan.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, June 5.—(Special.)—Representative Evans of Hamilton county, who is attending the populist state committee meeting, is feeling very good over the reception accorded his Bryan petitions.

"So far, only two democrats have failed to sign the petitions," said Mr. Evans. "One of these said he did not believe Mr. Bryan should mix in state politics. We are now circulating the petitions in about eight counties that I know of and possibly in many more, as I have written to all my intimate friends in the legislature and asked them to send them on to their friends, so they are probably all over the state."

"I favor Bryan because I believe he can do more good for the state than any other and not because our people have it in for Mr. Hitchcock. I would like to see Roosevelt elected in New York; I favor LaFollette in Wisconsin and Cummins in Iowa. They are the class of men I favor and to get men of that class I think the democrats should nominate Bryan. I have no idea how many signers we have. Just as soon as a petition is filled out it is sent to Bryan. It is addressed to W. J. Bryan, Lincoln, and I suppose his secretary takes charge of them and will turn them over to him. The petitions are to Mr. Bryan and urge him to consent to be a candidate for office, but how he can refuse in the face of the petitions which will be signed by thousands."

Mr. Evans is in favor of the extra session, but he expressed a doubt as to the advisability of putting county option in the democratic platform. He is for county option, but thinks it better to settle the matter in the various districts.

ALDERSON TO FILE FOR CONGRESS

Urged by His Friends, Madison Man May Consent to Use of His Name.

MADISON, Neb., June 5.—(Special.)—Friends of T. E. Alderson, a member of the legislature of 1907 from Madison county, are urging him to file as a candidate for representative on the republican ticket, and it is probable that he will consent to do so, having been assured of united party support.

GOVERNOR'S DREAM MAY FAIL

ing the state platform as he will go to the convention with 104 Douglas county delegates at his disposal. Adding the 16 from Adams, 11 from Cumming, 18 from Dodge, 12 from Gage, 15 from Hall, 16 from Osceola, 17 from York, he has some 200 men on his hands to put county option in the state platform. One member of the committee from York county said Mr. Bryan would not be able to get a single delegate from that county in favor of Hamilton.

Mr. Bryan, who is in charge of the campaign, is opposed to putting county option in the platform, though himself an ardent county option advocate.

It was common talk around the committee last night that Mr. Bryan had served notice on the governor just what he had in mind. He was not alone standing for county option, but he was bringing out against him. How the news got out of the committee was not learned absolutely, for both C. W. Bryan and the governor were on the ground. Either may have tried it.

To prevent Mr. Bryan from carrying out his threat, friends of the executive are saying: "Do as you would have your county option candidate. Such a move may nominate Dahlman, who is opposed to county option. If Dahlman is elected governor, who will be to blame for the back set to county option? If you, Mr. Bryan, are a temperance advocate, why will you jeopardize the state platform by doing so?"

"If you want to help Dahlman sail in and bring out your candidate. Let your candidate take the blame for the nomination of the Omaha candidate." A talk like the above has been made to Mr. Bryan and it is being talked among the prohibitionist friends of the governor. The executive does not want a three-cornered fight.

Board of Censors Obeys.

The Board of Censors of the New Jerusalem has issued the ban on the publication of illustrated stories of prize fights in the official organ of the kingdom and that paper this morning appeared without its usual illustrated prize fight page.

The story of the prize fight of course is still there, but as one would have to read the headlines before he knew what the story was about, it is not a great deal of fun. Here, too, just a casual glance at the page would indicate that the story was about two men fighting and either looking on, because a quarter of a page picture was there to do the depicting.

Some there were who looked for a great deal of news in the publication of the order of the censors, and they believed the official organ would at least attempt to church some members of the board for looking at a Sunday newspaper, but the official organ decided to follow instructions and the story appears without the picture.

CONSTIPATION

MUNYON'S PAW-PAW PILLS

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by way that never puts them into action. They do not grip; they do not weaken; they do not start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts them into action. They are a healthy condition and correct constipation.

In my opinion, constipation is responsible for most ailments. There are thirty-two feet of human bowels, which is really a sewer pipe. When this pipe becomes clogged, the whole system becomes poisoned, causing biliousness, indigestion and impure blood, which often produces rheumatism and kidney ailments. No woman who suffers with constipation or any liver complaint can expect to have a clear complexion, or enjoy good health.

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weakening; they enrich the blood instead of impoverishing it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope, they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic. Price 25c. each.

Scientist Tries to Buy Pictured Window Pane

Dr. L. B. Capron of Central City Offered $250 for Glass with Woman's Photograph on It.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., June 5.—(Special.)—Dr. L. B. Capron, who owns the large window pane on which is imprinted the electrical picture of which there is but one other known to exist in the whole country, has been offered $250 for the glass, but refuses to accept the offer. This bid was made by a Lincoln scientist connected with the State university and who did not wish to have his name made public. The picture can only be seen on the window when the light is strong on that side of the house, and at such times it shows very plainly.

The picture shows the bust and head of a woman, with apparently dark and hair and eyes, wearing a white waist, with red jacket, and hat trimmed in blue and red. The peculiar thing about the glass is that when it is examined closely it appears as clear as crystal, and the picture can only be seen when the spectator stands at a distance of three or four rods from the window. This natural curiosity has attracted a great deal of interest and hundreds have viewed it this week, many coming from a considerable distance to view it. It is the theory of Dr. Capron that the picture was stamped on the window by a brilliant flash of lightning. He believes that some woman had called in to visit his wife, and that a storm had come up and that she was standing close to the window looking out when the flash of lightning stamped her image on the pane.
