Dupont Manufacturer Says that Com pany Has Saved Government Large Sam by Economical and Technical Methods.

(From a Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9 .- (Special.) Guspowder probably was invented by the Chinese something like a thousand years ago. But gunpowder as it has been manufactured for the last century or morecombination of saltpetre, sulphur and charcoal-is said to be the invention of an English bishop, Landloff. Just why bishops or other prelates should engage in concecting explosives for the destruction of life has never been explained.

lintil a few years ago no, Fourth of July in any city was considered complete without the Chinese brand of gunpowder But the demand for a "safe and sane Fourth threatens to extinguish noise and patriotism in the American small boy. It will not however, curtail the manufacture of gunpowder to any large extent, and explosives will continue to be made by private corporations notwithstanding the fact that every once in a while a wave of protest sweeps the entire country over the alleged greed of the powder makers.

About a year ago every newspaper office in Washington was flooded daily with fetters from some patriotic citizen in the middle west who declared that the country was, being robbed by a so-called powder trust. These assertions fibelly led to a congressional inquiry, conducted by the committee on naval affairs of the house. The committee called Col. E. G. Buckner, vice president of the DuPont Powder company the other day, and his statement to the committee forms an interesting chapter in the history of the manufacture of explosives and the relationship between the corporation with which he is connected and the federal government.

Colonel Buckner's statement was replete with illuminating details and developed a hitherto unsuspected historical interest at taching to every period of the country's career, particularly in times of great crises. First Powder Mill.

All forces, he said, were concentrated to fill the order, the commercial plants being robbed to strengthen the plants making the government powder, and on its own Initiative, as warranting it to take that step, the company reduced the price to 25 cents a pound. It even remitted $12,000 to the government to bring the contract within the lowered price basis. Thus in the midst of war the DuPont company reduced instead of increased the price of
