Trolley Ride Postponed—Lothrop school has postponed the proposed trip to Fairmount park until Monday next, because of the threatening state of the weather Friday morning. The trip will not be taken Monday unless late weather prevails, as the crowd of children and parents will be so large that no adequate shelter would be available in case of rain. It is figured at least a dozen street cars will be required to carry the pupils and teachers and those parents who will accompany them.

Two Thousand Children Sing Children's Sing Juvenile Warblers Gather at Auditorium to Rehearse for Saengerfest.

Two thousand children of the public and parochial schools of Omaha rehearsed to sing the songs they will sing in the saengerfest, for the first time at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. They sang "America," "Star Spangled Banner" and "The Watch on the Rhine." Miss Fanny Arnold has had charge of their training during the last two months. Prof. Reese was at the piano.

The chorus of school children will sing at the matinee on Friday, July 2. Another rehearsal, which will be their final assembly together before the concert, will be held in the Auditorium July 18, when the children will be accompanied by a sixty-piece orchestra.

Singers from ten states will be present to take part in the concert. It is probable that there will be 200 musicians from Illinois alone. The German editors are to hold a convention in the city during the week of the Saengerfest.

R. C. Strehlow, Peter Lutz, Fred Lehman, Val J. Peters and Theodore Slinhart comprise a committee to make a concert week for Chicago and Milwaukee, where large musical concerts are to be given. They will meet many of the singers who will take part in the Omaha Saengerfest.

THE Spring Suit Sale of 1910

This is not an ordinary sale, nor one that might be duplicated, but is the one men's suit sale of the season and will be remembered by everyone as the suit sale of spring 1910. We offer men's and young men's strictly made to sell at $15.00, $18.00, $20.00, for $9.75

this is the reason:

Clothiers—from east to west and north to south—all have suffered from the cold weather and backward season of this spring.

Consequently makers were badly overstocked and especially so in the case of makers of high priced clothing.

In order to dispose of their stock they were forced to come to a store like this, knowing that with our enormous outlet, we could sell their overstock easily and quickly. These makers offered us an enormous reduction, on condition that we should not use their names, for the very good reason that these garments are sold in other Omaha stores at $15 and up.

However, we give you our guarantee that every suit in this sale is a strictly high-grade, hand tailored garment.

The suits include all the novelties of this season, in greys, sand tans, fancy blues, Scotch mixtures, pin checks and plaids.

None were ever before sold below $15; most of them are $18 and $20 suits. Your pick commencing

FIFTEEN LEAVE BELLEVUE

Commencement Exercises Held in Presbyterian Church.

ADDRESS BY DR. T. G. SOARES

Lecturer from University of Chicago Speaks on Modern Philosophy of Life—Alumnus Hold Reunion.

The quaint old Presbyterian church in the village of Bellevue witnessed the passing of another commencement, sending forth another group of young men and women. Five young women and ten young men received degrees. The graduates are as follows: Edith Atwater, A. B., Beatrice, Florence M. Clark, A. B., Leavenworth, Kan. Eva H. Woltemath, A. B., Bellevue. William J. Primrose, A. B., Primrose, Neb. Sojuro Shimizu, A. B., Ueda, Japan. W. C. Atwater, B. S., Beatrice. Edward C. Hansen, B. S., Bancroft, Neb. Dean M. Mohr, B. S., Ponca, Neb. William H. Smith, B. S., Omaha. Florence Baird, Ph. B., Plattsmouth, Neb. Don Enfield, Ph. B., Lyons, Neb. Fred A. Jones, Ph. B., Valentine, Neb. Carl O. Larson, Ph. B., Plattsmouth. Margaret Quigley, Ph. B., Valentine, Neb. Leslie Sweetland, Ph. B., Loup City. Members of the Alumni association at their banquet last night completed their $20,000 endowment fund by pledging $2,300 of the balance needed. True, we should find that life grows more complicated every day.

Phelps pronounced the invocation. Miss Eva Woltemath gave a rendition of "La Regata Veneziana" from Liszt. This was followed by orations from two of the graduates. Miss Edith Atwater gave a discussion upon "College Values." William Primrose spoke on "College Standards for Leadership." Mr. Primrose is also a graduate of the Omaha Theological Seminary. Glen Rice rendered two musical selections. Address by Dr. Soares. Dr. Theodore G. Soares of the University of Chicago gave the address of the day, "A Modern Philosophy of Life." Dr. Soares made it plain that he was not speaking of an academic philosophy, but of a practical, every-day working creed. "Most people," said Dr. Soares, "have a philosophy, whether they be conscious of it or not. One of the most dangerous philosophies of the present day is the doctrine of opportunism. Life is a struggle and we must take the nice things in life or some other fellow will. 'We must live,' he said, 'is one of the most common justifications put forward in justification of graft. But do we have to live? May we not pay too great a price for living? Do we expect the fireman or the policeman to say to us in moments of peril and need, 'We must live.' 'The philosophy of the simple life is as right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough. True, we should find our desires, but to the contrary we find that life grows more complicated every day.' The address of Dr. Soares was followed by a few remarks from Dr. E. H. Jenkins of Omaha. He spoke very hopefully of the future of the college, saying that the college had a great friend raised up in its behalf in the person of Dr. Robert McKenzie, the new secretary of the college board, whom he personally knows. Dr. Stookey, acting for the Board of Trustees, conferred the degree of doctor of divinity upon the Rev. R. W. Taylor of Tekamah. The presentation of the year's prizes and athletic letters was a feature. The afternoon was devoted to an alumni reunion. Prof. Willis Kerr, '09 of Westminster college, delivered an address upon "Attitude." The week closed with the alumni banquet at Fontenelle hall and the president's reception. $5,200 in Eighteen Minutes. At the annual alumni banquet held at Bellevue college last evening, the members of the Alumni association completed their $10,000 endowment fund by raising $5,200 in the short space of eighteen minutes. Mr. C. E. Dickson of Omaha, an old time student responded to a toast and after describing the needs of the college, called for subscriptions. Four thousand eight hundred dollars had been previously pledged by alumni and ex-students, and the remaining $5,200 was secured in just eighteen minutes. The amount ranged from $50 to $500 and there was hardly a pause. Dr. Ernest of Bellevue, the chairman of the finance committee expects that when the members of the association who were not at the banquet are heard from the total will not be less than $15,000. The banquet was a great success outside of the money raised. Mr. Willis Kerr, '09 of Omaha was toastmaster. The silver-loving cup, presented by former president Guy W. Wadsworth, was won by the class of 1903, Mrs. Dr. Patton of Omaha, president, for the largest representation present of their former class. Eighty per cent of the graduating class returned after a seven years' absence, and nearly 60 per cent of their total undergraduate enrollment. H. T. Clarke, sr., of Omaha, founder of the college, was present the latter part of the evening and expressed great pleasure at the spirit shown. Following the banquet a reception was held at the home of the President Dr. R. W. Stookey. Persistent Advertising is the Road to Big Returns.

Wants to Make Music Count. OMAHA, June 8. To the Editor of The Bee: Just now, when the schools are in the public eye, I would like to call attention to what seems a defect of no slight importance, the mere dying of which would not entail a cent of extra expense, nor any additional labor. It would not affect all pupils, nor, perhaps, any considerable portion of them, but those whom it would touch, it would, I believe, be inestimable benefit. To make myself clear, and to present the case as briefly as possible, I will take a concrete example. In my family of four children is one possessing sufficient musical talent to make its cultivation worth while. During her work in the grades she had sufficient leisure from her school duties to give all the time necessary to her music. On entering the high school all this was changed. The amount of work exacted made it impossible to give the time she ought to her music. To enable her to carry on her music, I had her take but half the work laid down in the course of study, so that she necessarily required two years to do one year's work. This gave her plenty of time for both her school work and music without any danger of overwork. However, after taking two years to do the first year's work, there was a decided objection on the part of her mother and herself to continuing in that way, as they figured it would take eight years to get through the high school. Consequently, her music since that time has taken a secondary place, while by rights it should have had an equal chance, at least. Of course, she might have discontinued her school work and given her time to music. Possibly that would have been wiser. Still, I did not wish her to give up her school work. She finishes her work in the high school this year, so the remedy which I suggest can be of no avail in her case. Our high school requires for graduation a certain number of "points." These "points" are to be gained by completing certain subjects, some of which are "obligatory," and some "optional." A considerable latitude for choice is permitted the pupil. Now, as an "optional," why not allow the pupil to take music in the place of some other subject, such as German or French, for example. I would not attempt to minimize the value of these subjects, or others I might mention from an educational standpoint, but on one, I think, would deny for some persons an equal value for music, whether considered from either the educational or "bread and butter" standpoint. In case of the girl cited there can be no question that the same time and energy that she has given her German could it have been given to her music would have been worth many hundred per cent more to her. I would not have the school authorities furnish the music teacher. The pupil would take her instruction from her music teacher just as at present, but would receive the same credit for the work done as though she were taking some other subject as now laid down in the curriculum. Doubtless, certain details would have to be worked out, but as it appears to me, that would be a simple matter. I am not making this suggestion as a theorist merely, nor without consideration. I wonder if there are not other parents who are of my way of thinking. J. T. MOREY. GUILTY OF SLAYING WIFE Verdict Against James Hall is Returned on First Ballot of Jury. James Hall, a colored man, was quickly found guilty of manslaughter yesterday afternoon in district court. The jury was out only half an hour finding the man guilty on the first ballot. Hall was arrested April 16, the death of his common law wife, having seemed suspicious to the attending physician, Dr. Jesse Howard Hutton. The woman was found dead with a large contused wound about one eye, and Hall admitted having "slapped" her but declared this happened the day before death occurred. State Dental Session. PIERRE, S. D., June 10.—(Special Telegram.)—The State Dental association which is in session in this city, starts today with good representation from over the state. Several papers were read at the morning session and the afternoon. D. E. Ford, Des Moines, delivered an address on their work at the evening session. The Key to the Situation—See Want Ads.
