Do you know, dear, I've always wanted to take that trip to Befmuda and the season has been so backward that I would just love to get away to a place where the sun in shining and "Burt B. Corliss, formerly connected with the flowers are all in bloom."

"That's a great idea," agreed the Boss, enthusiastically, "I suppose $100 would about cover our traveling expenses and we could have the rest for hotel bills and incidentals, and just to blow in." There was a long pause, during which the Boss reflected in silent rapture upon the delights of the contemplated trip. "Say!" he exclaimed finally, "what's the matter with going next week! I can get away from the office then and I've no doubt you could pack up in no time!" Now up to the moment of reading the

BUSY PUTTING DOWN FIGURES

I feel almost as if I were on the verge of a nervous breakdown. A sea trip will just about fix me up. I'll arrange for the transportation the first thing tomorrow morning and I guess you can get ready all

"Oh, yes," agreed the lady. And then as a new idea occurred to her a faint frown furrowed her usually placid brow.

"Of course, dear," she began hesitatingly, there are a few little things I will have to buy. People have got to be just as dressy on the sea trips as if they were on put down figures. land. And I think, too, you'd have to make several purchases." "Sure!" the Boss cordially assented. "Suppose we get up a list now of all the things we need and I'll draw you a check right away so you can go down town tomorrow and get the complete outfit." "That'll be fine!" exclaimed his delighted

"Things are cheap now; I can get one "Forty dollars!" repeated the Bos, and wrote the amount in his roundest and firmest figures. "What else?"

"Well, really, I think I'll have to have another hat. I know I bought two new ones only last week and that I've had four since Easter, but, you see, every one is either flowers or feathers and besides being inappropriate sait water would rule any one of them in three minutes. I cas get a very nice traveling hat for $15." "Fifteen dollars!" echoed the Boss courageously, and duly set it down. "And I really must have a new dinner dress. I've nothing I could wear on board and everybody dresses for dinner. I might get some little net thing for about $50 that would do-and a parasol! My last summer's parasol had flowers on it and the sun faded them out. Put down $10 for the parasol, though I might be able to get one for $9.89."

The Boss looked up from his accounts which were growing complicated, and was startled to observe his wife's glowing face, Her eyes shone, her cheeks were flushed and there was no doubt that she was experiencing all the delights of a real shopping tour.

"What next?" he asked quietly, so as not to disturb the spell. Thus encouraged the Boss' wife launched once more on her list of immediate necessitles and for five minutes her lord silently Suddenly the lady paused. "Of course, there are a lot of things I should have, but I realize that we have a limited amount of money and that you need some new things, too. You see, $300 isn't really so much money after all." "I see it isn't," replied the Boss, who had been doing some frantic addition while she spoke.

And then he said in a queer, subdued voice, "I don't think I could go to Bermuda without a straw hat and a dozen new collars. Six dollars ought to cover those. Now, I'll add 'em all up!" His wife leaned eagerly over his shoulder

"What you need to get started for Bermuda comes to $289.75. With my $6 that makes $296.75, or a balance of $4.25 for hotel bills, incidentals and traveling expenses," announced the Boss with cold deliberation, (Copyright, 1910, by the N. Y. Herald Co.)
