Marking Bridal Silver. There is a fancy just now in certain families to have wedding silver marked with the initials of the bridegroom rather than the bride.

As the silver is given to the bride, often by her own family, the American form of marking is more appropriate and is much more used.

A rather new marking that is a revival from colonial days is a compromise. Plain block letters are used. A single one at the top is the initial of the bridegroom's family name, while directly under it is the initial of the first name of the bridegroom to the left and that of the bride to the right.

There is a crest in the family of the bride it is often used in marking the silver above the monogram or initials. Though sometimes done, it is not good taste to mark the wedding silver with the crest of the bridegroom's family, especially when the silver is given by the bride's people as friends.

It is in equally bad taste when a girl has been given old family silver that has come down through generations in her fiancé's family to mark it with her own initials. Should there be no children such heirlooms naturally should go back to the man's family, though the bride may have a life interest in them.

To Clean Paint. The ordinary whitening sold by grocers and stores is excellent for cleaning paint, and does not injure it in the least.

Mix it with cold water to the consistency of cream; wipe a clean cloth over the warm water, success it as dry as possible, dip it in the whitening mixture and rub the paint until all the stains disappear.

A wooden skewer, such as butchers use, is excellent for pushing the cloth into crevices and corners. Rinse off the whitening with warm water and a clean cloth, and then wipe the paint as dry as possible.

If rubbed until quite dry, the polish will be restored to the paint, and it will look like new.

To Remove Stains. Mix soft soap with powdered starch, half as much salt and the juice of a lemon. Lay this on the part with a brush, and then lay the article on the grass day and night until the stains entirely disappear.

Strawberries have themselves risen to 20 cents a quart. The other popular fruit for this season, peaches, is in the market to be sure, but still a little high and disappointing in flavor. Peaches sell at 25 and 30 cents a dozen. Apples are more plentiful and much improved in quality, selling at 50 cents a basket of 10 and 15 cents a dozen.
