pambs on sale this morning, as packers have hammered springers for ruinous losses lately, current quotations showing declines of $1.00\text{S1.50}$ as compared with last week's close. Extra choice grades would hardly sell over $5.00 and it would take a very good lot to command $7.50 or better.

Inquiry for all classes of stock has been almost lifeless since the middle of the week and a more unsatisfactory market could hardly be imagined. Over supply at all principal markets in the east, largely caused by heavy runs from southern sections, is 'ne main reason for the demoralized condition of trade Local receipts have been liberal and quality on an average very good for this season.

Quotations on sheep and lambs: Choice spring lambs, $7.50\text{S27.00}$; good to choice wethers, $5.00\text{T.50}$; fair to good wethers, $4.00\text{T.50}$; fair to good ewes, $4.00\text{4.90}$.

There was also a very small supply of cows and helters today and the market, as usual on a Friday, was without any great amount of life or interest. Buyers, nowever, took the offerings, paying about steady prices. The market is now 190200 lower on the medium and in-botween kinds of cows and helters as compared with last week, while canners and stock cows and strictly good corn-ied cows and helters week, while canners and stock cows and strictly good corn-ied cows and helters have shown comparatively little change.

There were no stockers and feeders of any consequence on sale this morning, and the market was without any noteworthy change.

Cotton Market.

NEW YORK, June 17.—COTTON—The market opened steady at a decline of 2472 points under scattering liquidation and beat pressure, encouraged by lower cables and good weather in the south. At the decline, the southern bulls bid for large blocks of July and August, and a bullish private condition report caused some covering, on which prices railled from the lowest during the early trading.

Spot closed quiet, 19 points lower; middling uplands, 15.05c; middling guif, 15.30c; sales, 2.614 bales. The Cotton exchange here will be closed Saturday, July 2, and Monday, July 4.
