Cortland Man Said to Have Admitted Killing of Neighbor Because of Lawsuit.

BEATRICE, Neb., June 17.—(Special Telegram.)—The mystery surrounding the death of Fred Schlake, a farmer, living near Pickrell, has been cleared up by the confession of a man named Nevill on his death bed, according to the Cortland Sun.

Schlake was found dead near his home west of Pickrell on August 14, 1909. It had been to Beatrice with a load of hogs and started home late at night with considerable money. The next morning Schlake's body was found about a quarter of a mile from his home with a hole in his head. The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Schlake's death was due to unknown causes. Nevill stated that he killed Schlake by striking him on the head with a 2x4 scantling with a nail in it. According to Nevill's story the two men had trouble over a lawsuit, which ended in the murder of Schlake.

CATHOLIC ON CHURCH UNITY

Feature of Mission Conference is Letter from Bishop in Italy.

PRAISES PURPOSE OF MEETING

He Believes that an Interchange of Ideas Leads to Leveling of All Real Barriers Between Denominations.

EDINBURG, Scotland, June 17.—Today's features at the World Missionary conference were the reading of a letter from Monsignor Bonomelli, Roman Catholic bishop of Cremona, Italy, and the presentation of the speech of the commission on "Education in Relation to the Christianization of National Life."

The communication of the bishop was in response to an invitation for him to contribute a message. The invitation explained the purpose of the conference in the following language:

"A world missionary conference is to be held at Edinburg, Scotland, Christians of all churches in the world are freely invited. It is merely a conference on how all Christians of every name may better understand each other and better combine to make Christ and his church known to all men.

"The conference will only confer; it will not pass resolutions or take any definite action; no convictions are to be compared; no principles sacrificed. Will you write a letter to be read at the conference advocating better feeling, better knowledge, holier relations among all who believe in Christ as God, in order that we may all come together in God's good time into the universal body of Christ—the one, holy, Catholic and Apostolic church?"

Text of Bishop's Letter. Monsignor Bonomelli addressed his reply to Silas McBeck, an American delegate, who presented it to the conference. It read in part as follows:

A conference of representatives of all the Christian denominations, held with the noble aim of bettering knowledge, holier relations among all who believe in Christ as God, in order that we may all come together in God's good time into the universal body of Christ—the one, holy, Catholic and Apostolic church?"

Again, all of you feel the need of a church which may be the outward manifestation of your faith and religion, and the vigilant custodian now and here of Christian doctrine and tradition. It sustains and keeps alive religious and individual activity, in spite of that strong power of suggestion which collectively always exercises on the individual.

Finally, from the various churches and religious denominations into which you are divided, the Christian religion, a unifying element, a noble aspiration, restraining too great impulsiveness, leveling dividing barriers and working for the realization of the one holy church through all the children of redemption.

On this common ground, gentlemen, having your minds liberated from all passions or sectarian intolerance, animated by the spirit of Christian charity, bring together into one focus the results of your studies, the teachings of experience, whether individual or collective, calmly carry a research and promote discussion.

May truth be as a shining light, illuminating your consciences and making you all of one heart and one mind. My desire for you is the echo of Christ's words, which have resounded through the centuries. Let there be one flock and one shepherd.
