AGAINST PRINTERS' BRANCH

President Lynch of Typographical Union Assails Proposed Plan.

HE DECLARES FOR AUTONOMY

Idea of Previous Speakers to Form Printing Trades Branch of International Union Turned Down—Kellogg Speaks.

H. N. Kellogg, president of the standing committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, and James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical union, made addresses before the convention of the stereotypers and electrotypes Friday morning. At the conclusion of their talks the two gentlemen were tendered a rising vote of thanks.

President Lynch, alluding to the speeches made before the convention on Wednesday by Presidents Berry and Wolf of the pressmen and photo-engravers, respectively, took issue strongly with some of the statements they made. He served notice in clean-cut, forceful language, that the proposed move to form a printing trades branch in the American Federation of Labor would not be tolerated. "These international organizations now have autonomy," said President Lynch, with an emphatic swing of his big right arm, "and by the gods, so far as I am concerned, they are going to remain autonomous."

This sentiment met with enthusiastic applause, and the president of typographers went on to define the position of his organization on the question of the ownership and control of the allied trades label. "That label must be used in a way that will conserve its power and effectiveness for the good of all these organizations," he said, "and we will never allow its ownership or control to be placed in that situation where it might be used against us by unscrupulous employers."

Tells of Victoria. President Lynch paid high compliment to the organization now holding its convention in Omaha as one of the most powerful and influential, numbers considered, represented in the joint council.

Incidentally, President Lynch told of several increases in wage scale recently secured and of some others now pending which promise to eventuate. The main case mentioned was in the case of New York, "Big Six," which has just received for its members a payment of $200,000, dating back to the beginning of a difference over wages. "We wanted $60,000," said Mr. Lynch, "but on a showing made we compromised on the amount stated."

Mr. Kellogg, after a nappily worded opening, said there were some matters of trade interest he desired to touch on and spoke briefly of them. He said in part:

No Friction, He Says. "There have been no serious differences between your organization and our association during the last year. I trust and believe no serious differences will arise in the future. There have been, of course, a considerable number of differences between local unions and local publishers, but these have all been amicably adjusted, or are in process of adjustment."

"We have unfortunately had serious differences arise in two cities between local unions of one of the other printing trades and our members which resulted in strikes being called, which took the united effort of the international officers and our committee to bring to an end. I fear these differences left some hard feelings between local parties on both sides. I trust, however, that time will remove the animosity. I am much gratified that nothing of this sort has occurred between your subordinate unions and our members.

"Your international officers have invariably taken up all questions of difference promptly and have in every instance met the issues fairly. We sincerely appreciate this spirit and heartily reciprocate."

Cases Decided. Just before the noon recess the convention finally decided an appealed case from Chicago local No. 4, which has consumed much time in committee and on the floor. The final action was to sustain the decision originally made by President Berry and confirmed by the executive board. The case was that of Edward Brautigam against Chicago union No. 4, and involved the priority right to a situation. The decision was against Mr. Brautigam.

Tuesday afternoon the visiting women were entertained at luncheon at the Hotel Loyal by the Omaha auxiliary, and in the evening the delegates were guests of Omaha union, No. 24, at a smoker at Washington hall.

Real Corn Weather Has Finally Come

Old Sol Blazes Forth and Pedestrians Sweater After Morning Shower.

Omaha experienced genuine corn weather Friday and Old Sol smiled so hard at the thermometer that the mercury did a few stunts in aviation and rose to 88 degrees at 3 o'clock. The weatherman wouldn't predict how warm it would be before the day was over, as the mercury seemed to be filled with springs, which resulted in an upward rise every few minutes.

Mortals sweated in the heat and superfluous moisture gathered under their hats and bands. Straw hats were out in all their glory and those who were still wearing felt top pieces looked enviously at their neighbors with straw. The slight rain which fell during the morning served to clear the air so that the sun's rays could reach the earth more easily, and, after the shower, it gradually became hotter and hotter.

"Phew! It's hot!" "Great weather for corn!" "It's here at last!" Such were the expressions caught by a walk on Farman street during the noon hour, when large numbers of people were going and coming from lunch. Many remained speechless upon the weather, and confined themselves to making up faces as they passed some friend on the street, but the general topic of conversation was the weather.

PROTEST AGAINST PARK BOARD

Some Citizens Do Not Like Way the Scheme is Worked Out to Have Boulevard Fixed Up. Certain citizens in the district affected do not like the proposal of the Park board to turn over a part of Florence boulevard to the city, so that curbing and guttering may be ordered in. Under the law as it stands the Park board cannot order curbing and guttering along the boulevards, and the only way to have the work done is for the council to take charge of the street temporarily, then turn it back to the Park board when the work is finished.

Governor Still Side-Stepping is Mayor Jim's Idea

He Declares Opposing Candidate Holds Palm for Shifting Responsibility.

"Governor Shallenberger's declaration, made at Central City Thursday night, is very tame, after all," said Mayor Dahman. "There is nothing new in it, so far as I can see. This thing of referring everything to the proposed initiative and referendum is an easy way to avoid a positive declaration of belief or intention. We may get the initiative and referendum in two years, or we may not get it in effective working form for a dozen years. In the meantime, I am in favor of candidates taking positive position on questions before the electorate, so that there can be no mistake made, and no dodging of issues.

"To me it looks at this time as if Governor Shallenberger is due to take the voters into his confidence without any shifting of responsibility to the initiative and referendum. The governor must quit dodging and make this position clear."

"Would-be" United States Senator "Bill" Price, called on Mayor Dahman today for a social chat. Mr. Price is returning from a trip to Iowa, and expressed the view that things are coming his way. He predicts success for his candidacy with an expansive smile and discusses the pending contest like a real optimist.

Judge Willis Reed, also a democratic candidate for the nomination as United States senator, was mixing around among his friends and holding conferences at the Henshaw hotel, where he is staying, and elsewhere.

"One thing about the democrats who are running for office is notable," said Mayor Dahman. "They are so confident they are to win, and if they do not win, that their part is going to. That means the republicans must get up and hustle, and there will be some fun in the campaign, which will suit the voters all right."

Captain Campbell C. Babcock and Captain Lawrence P. Butler, Fourth infantry, have been detailed as instructors to the officers and non-commissioned officers of the organized militia of the state of Missouri at Nevada about July 1.

Man Who Bumped Self is in Bad Way

Injury Much More Serious Than at First Suspected—Still Out of His Head.

James McCormick of 1012 North Sixteenth street, the laborer who injured himself at the Updike mill Thursday morning, is now at the St. Joseph hospital and his condition is but little improved. He was working in a tunnel cementing cracks in the wall and raising suddenly bumped his head, which at first seemed but a slight injury, though since has grown more serious. Within a short time after the accident occurred the man became delirious and has not been in a sane condition since. It was stated Friday afternoon that McCormick has acted strange about the mill for the last few days, and that Thursday morning when he came to work he did not feel well. Men who were working with him asked him what was the trouble, but he would not answer them, saying simply he was all right. He has been employed at the mill for about ten weeks.

GRADUATES GIVE TABLET

Remembrance to Be Left at the High School by the Class Just Leaving.

A bronze tablet, costing about $200 will be left to the Omaha High school this year by the senior graduating class. This decision was reached yesterday at a meeting of the class held then. The formal invitation of the Omaha High School association was read to the members of the class. The tablet proposed probably will be placed in the new building as an especial honor to the class which is just leaving.
