GATHER TO GREET ROOSEVELT

Delegations from North, South, East and West Are All Present.

NO CASTE DISTINCTION VISIBLE

Millionaires, Rough Riders, Miners, Farm Hands and Day Laborers Rub Elbows in the Big Crowd.

By FRANK CHARLTON. NEW YORK, June 18.—(Special Telegram.)—The original return from Elba had nothing on the so-called duplicate here today. The Little Corporal was never more vociferously welcomed than was Colonel Roosevelt at the hands of Americans gathered from every section of the United States. From the far west, the north, the south and the east they came and each delegation seemed to vie with its neighbors to see which could give the most emphatic voice to its welcome.

Such other-time friends as United States Marshal Seth Bullock of Deadwood, S. D., Marshal Jack Abernathy of Oklahoma, Colonel Alex Brodie of St. Paul and the rough rider boys rubbed elbows with members of President Taft's cabinet, United States senators and governors.

There was no cast distinction. The multimillionaire got the same show from Colonel Roosevelt that the rough riders got who are the line of march, the north, the south and the east they came and each delegation seemed to vie with its neighbors to see which could give the most emphatic voice to its welcome.

One Hundred from California. George R. Meade of Los Angeles, Cal., headed a delegation of 100 members of the Billiken club, a famous Roosevelt organization in California. Colonel A. P. Moore of Pittsburg headed a delegation of 300 Pittsburgers who took an active part in the welcome. Dennis Kelly, secretary of the W. M. Anderson and W. E. Heakett of Columbia, O., made a special trip over to invite "Teddy" into the Buckeye state next month.

To enumerate the statesmen who were here would be like cutting pages from the political calendar. Vice President Sherman and Governor Hughes did not take part, but Secretary of the Navy Meyer and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson were on hand as representatives from President Taft. They were accompanied by Captain Butt, the president's aide.

In the great enclosure at Battery park, where Mayor Gaynor spoke the address of welcome on behalf of New York City, the assemblage was a varied and representative one.

nole folks were Judge Hatten of Chicago, Charles J. O'Connor, former secretary of the club, Judge Fishback, ex-aiderman.

Among the distinguished southerners were Lee Richardson, representing the governor of Mississippi; A. J. Wells, postmaster at Nashville and representative of Governor Wilson of Kentucky; H. L. Russell, republican national committeeman of Little Rock, Ark., heading a delegation of tried and true followers of the grand old party from the environs of Arkansas.

John C. Greenwood of Coleraine, Minn., brought a batch of staunch Minnesota republicans with him. Mr. Greenwood was formerly a Rough Rider and is now an attaché of the United States Steel corporation.

Around the Hotel Buckingham, where the Rough Riders are stopping, there was a concourse for reminiscences at every available opportunity. Marshal Ben Daniels, quiet of voice and keen of eye, who hails from the sun baked territory of Arizona, was the center of a great deal of interest.

Bill Lang, ex-captain of the Arizona Rangers, who has seen as much violent death as any man, rode in the procession, paying no attention to his horse, but nearly dislocating his neck trying to get a peep at the roofs of some of the Lower Broadway buildings.

"Chief" Colbert, a pure-blooded Choctaw Indian, whose grandfather fought under Andrew Jackson at New Orleans, was another in the khaki line.

Many newspaper men gathered at the Buckingham hoping to get some of the "inside" news. Dennis Kelly, secretary of the Rough Riders to tell true blood and thunder tales of the good old days in the west, but the older chaps would rather ride in the subway and admire the Metropolitan tower than to spout about their adventures.

Same Old "Charlie." Charley Mavelok, who used to reside in Texas, but who now lives in effete New York, was another Rough Rider who enjoyed the reunion. Charley is a lawyer and has cleaned up about a million dollars getting New Yorkers out of scrapes, but he is the same old "Charlie" that he was when he scamped up San Juan hill.

Colonel Brodie, who hails from St. Paul and who is a straight, lithe man of 40, swapped a lot of stories with General Cooper, I. A. A. Despite his years, Colonel Brodie is as spry as a youngster, and he could probably give a mighty good account of himself in a skirmish, too. The colonel is a West Pointer. He was attired in civilian clothes this evening and when you were introduced he gave you a grip that made you secretly wonder if he had got his early training in a blacksmith shop.

giant, even on this day of cheers—and from the moment he heard it until he actually stepped ashore, his ear was wholly deaf to those who bid for it on board. He seemed hungry to put foot again on neutral soil of the United States.

Glad to Get Home. "Ah, it will seem good," he cried to half a dozen of us standing near, and that "good" had true Rooseveltian emphasis.

Upon land the welcome which had greeted the returning traveler upon the water repeated and multiplied. All New York was fluttering with busting, with a notable exception. Down in Wall street, where at the time King Edward died, the black display of mourning was profuse, there were but two little flags to fly on this day when the live ex-president returned. Elsewhere the display of rejoicing was tremendous and was shown in every way that an enthusiastic populace could find to show its welcome. Hundreds of private residences, flat houses and business buildings flew the flag and many were elaborately decorated far from the line of march.

And the line of march itself was a continuous blaze of red and white and blue. Only Dewey's wonderful return from the far east has ever made New York so festive with the colors of the national standard. In the procession on the water, vessels of all kinds had joined, from battleships to drab steamlighters; in the land, parades had the committee signified its willingness, there would have been as great diversity. As many applications for positions in the line were refused, I am told, as were accepted. All avenues of travel that led toward the line of march were woefully congested early in the morning.

When I started out at 5 o'clock, the Jersey trains were pouring in their thousands and the street cars were completely filled with sightseers anxious to get good positions on the line of march.

At the Speaking Stand. When the Androscoggin dropped its precious passenger down at the Battery, that great space was filled with struggling thousands and along the long miles of the line of march the crowds formed a dense mass—well handled by the way, by that police force of which the man they honored once was head.

As the colonel climbed up to his place in the great stand from which he made his speech of thanks to his fellow citizens he waved his hat and his waiting family waved his hat and the crowd thronging crowd. He did not wave it at that crowd—he shook it, almost as a fighter might defy a threatening mob. But the defiance did not go beyond the gesture of the fist. The face which beamed above it was "de-light-e-d." The crowd roared to its gleefully and again he lovingly shook his big fist before he started on his speech.

The course of the parade uptown was full of interesting incidents. On the ship the man whom he had kept with most persistence close to him was Captain Cosby; early in the line his carriage, evidently to his surprise, came upon a party of Rough Riders who have been coming to New York by two and three during the past week. There were several hundred of them. At first he did not see them; then rang above the crowds' conventional hurrahs the wild yell of the regiment. It was plainly, wholly unexpected, and for a second he did not respond, but sat astounded.

INTERURBAN TO CROSS IOWA

(Continued from First Page.) AD DES MOINES witnessed the massacre and she was carried off by the Indians and afterwards the state of Minnesota offered a reward of $10,000 for her rescue. She was rescued and some years ago wrote a book telling the whole story of the experience. She is now here to get out a sixth edition of the book. She bought the ground on which her parents settled and including the cabin in which the massacre took place and she lives there now. She is still engaged in gathering historical information.

Will Contest for State Office. Members of the state executive council have received unofficial information to the effect that there will be a contest before that body next week in the matter of the nomination for railroad commissioner. There is a weak spot in the law where there are two candidates to be voted for, as it is not clear how to determine the number necessary to secure a nomination. The claim will be made first that only one was nominated, and then the claim also that neither one was nominated and the convention will have to decide both positions. The vote is so close that this element of uncertainty affords a chance for conflicting views to prevail.

ROOSEVELT GETS ROYAL WELCOME

that he was forced to say emphatic negatives to so many of the gentlemen in frock coats and silk hats who crowded close to him and who whispered in his ear. He "No, sir; I positively cannot do it," came very frequently while the recognition on the Androscoggin's deck progressed. His voice was always audible. Often the voices of the men in the frock coats were not.

POLICE PREVENT PRIZE FIGHT

(Continued from First Page.) W. O. Thomas of this city the following message: "Reserve training quarters at Moana Springs and accommodations for fifteen people. Wire you further particulars later."

Moana Springs is already being put in shape for Jeffries. The springs are just outside the city limits and are connected with the city by an electric line. Johnson's representative has engaged Lauton's Springs as his training quarters. It was given out last night that Johnson will be here Monday.

San Langford's representative today wired for reservations at Coney Island, where he will train in case Reno lands the two contests. Coney Island is located on the line of the Southern Pacific and is accessible by trolley. It is within a short distance of the proposed site of the big fight.

Auto Found and Four Men Taken

Detectives Get Men Charged with Deserting Machine in Weeds at Arlington.

Four men alleged to have stolen the brand new $7,000 automobile of J. F. Stroud and driving it into a clump of weeds at Arlington Friday night, were arrested Saturday. Detective Donahue and Heifeld captured the first two men near the car barns at Twenty-fourth street and Ames avenue and Detective Van Dusen arrested the other two at the Union station.

Burdah, 403 North Twenty-fourth street. The machine was found near Arlington, with its gasoline tanks empty. According to the police the men deserted the machine when the gasoline gave out. The machine was taken from the corner of Ames avenue and Twentieth street yesterday afternoon.

ROOSEVELT'S STRAIGHT TALK ON BUYING REAL ESTATE

Gentlemen—I wouldn't buy a piece of property anywhere on earth unless Herd made the abstract. Bear in mind the adage "Better be safe than sorry"

Is the title to your home secure?

Is the title to your home secure? A mighty good lawyer probably drew your title deeds; and yet there may be a loop-hole. If so, it will give you trouble—maybe now, maybe ten years from now.

The wise man looks ahead

Are you going to wait until someone alleges a piece of your lot before you get the title investigated? Do you love a law suit? Don't fool yourself into thinking you will win. How about the attack of the Sulphur heirs on the estate of George A. Joslyn?

It is our business to protect you against title troubles. We show up the title—from Uncle Sam to sundown today. If there's anything wrong, we know how to fix it.
