the next treatment. To get results from a sun bath all pins must be removed from the hair. If they are not the hair will burn and the scalp be untouched. The scalp practically never burns and a girl who has exposed her head much during sunny days when playing tennis, etc., will remember that near the head the color is unchanged, however much the remainder may be streaked. This is because the scalp olls protect the roots: Therefore, when taking a sun treatment the tresses should be parted, so the head is free. If the air is warm enough to blow directly on it so much the better. Sun and air are powerful tonics. After five minutes of sunshine another division must be made, that another portion of the scalp shall be exposed, and this is repeated until every part of the head has felt the direct rays of the sun. If one is sitting in a comfortable chair during the process the bath will be found restful to the nerves as well as to the head.

When there is a pronounced weakness of the scalp and the hair is thin or is falling a previous massage with a tonic will ncrease the benefit. I have two good formulas, one suited to hair which is dry
