

Nebraska FAIRBURY POT BOILS OVER Governor Will Appoint Special Day to Hear Cases.

MAYOR'S HEAD IS SOUGHT City Executive In Turn Seeks Seal of the County Attorney for Defending an Alleged Drunkard.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
LINCOLN, June 23.—(Special.)—Governor Shallenberger, in all probability, will set aside a day to be known as Fairbury day at which time all the soiled linen of that little city may be washed out for the edification of everyone interested.

All of this will come under the head of the Sackett law, which provides for the removal of delinquent officials. He has now on file in his office charges against the county attorney and charges against the mayor of the city, in each instance removal being asked for, Mayor Hurlburt asked for the removal of Mayor Hurlburt because the latter defended in police court a man charged with being drunk. S. Well, a business man, asked for the removal of Mayor Hurlburt because the latter is not enforcing the ordinance which prohibits the construction of signs across the sidewalks.

In his letter to the governor this morning Mr. Well sets out that he had stretched a canvas sign across the sidewalk to advertise his goods. He was at once notified by the mayor's chief of police to remove it. After looking up the city ordinance he discovered that he had violated the law, so he removed the sign. Then he went on a tour of inspection and discovered that numerous other merchants were violating that ordinance and had been doing so for years. He notified the mayor of the existing conditions, but the mayor refused to take any action. He demands that the office be declared vacant so that the city can get a mayor who will enforce the laws impartially.

Law Officials Mixed Up.
County Attorney Rain in reply to the charge filed against him, wrote the governor this morning that Elmer Beals had been arrested on a charge of intoxication. Beals retained the lawyer for whom Rain is a member to defend him. Rain said he investigated the case and was confident that Beals was not guilty and he appeared in police court for him and the city attorney prosecuted. Objection was raised at that time by his appearance as a defendant's attorney, but no charges were made.

The court found Beals guilty and an appeal was taken. At that time he informed the city attorney he would file the information in district court and have the city attorney made special counsel to prosecute and he himself would not appear on either side.

This he said was satisfactory to the city attorney. While he said he realized that complications might arise by him appearing as attorney for the defendant in such cases, at the same time he said he believed it was his duty as county attorney to see that justice was done a defendant as much as it was that he is prosecuted. No one had ever asked him to do the prosecuting and for years it had been the custom for the city attorney to look after such cases. The governor probably will hear both cases at once though he has not yet set a date for the hearing.

Trying to Help Students.
Joseph Sparks and E. J. Bodwell, members of the State Examining board, have gone to Peru to check up the students of the State Normal school there whose credits did not entitle them to graduate. The fact that Principal Crawford informed a large class that each member was entitled to a certificate and gave out the information that 152 students were to be graduated has made the position of the students most embarrassing. The credits furnished by Mr. Crawford showed that a large percentage of the students were not qualified for admission in much more time. The examining board, however, concluded to go over the records thoroughly and see if it is possible to squeeze through some more of the class.

Prize for State Flag Pole.
Fred E. Hankins is anxious to construct a flag pole 300 feet high near his home, six miles from Ravenna, providing the state will give him a prize for performing the feat.

He agrees to run the flag to the top of the pole each morning, see that it flies in the breeze all day and at night he will hook up a gas light at the top of the pole. All of which he has written to Governor Shallenberger. The executive word back that while he believes in being patriotic and he loves to see the flag fly, yet great money for money for paying prizes for raising flag poles.

Money for Wayne Normal.
State Auditor Barton has written to Superintendent Bishop that if the normal board opens the Wayne Normal for business this fall he will issue warrants on the $30,000 remaining from the $70,000 appropriation for the purchase of the building.

Demopop Candidates for the Legislature are getting in shape to do some double-crossing on the senatorial election if the opportunity presents itself. Several who have filed personally have agreed to alter the Oregon plan of voting for the candidate for the United States senate who receives the highest number of votes at the November election. Then, when accepting the filing by petitioners as a populist they do not conform to statement No. 3. If elected these candidates will have agreed in one instance to abide by statement No. 1 and in the other they have not so agreed. Secretary of State Junkin intends to place those names on the democratic ballot as having agreed to stand on statement No. 1 and on the populist ticket as having refused to stand on statement No. 3. This will enable the demopop to get votes coming and going and at the same time leave them free, if elected, to do as they please about voting for a republican for United States senator.

Maguire Files for Re-election.
John Maguire, congressman from the First district filed his name today as a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress. Mr. Maguire was elected two years ago, after friends of W. B. Price had filed his name for state auditor when he wanted to file for congress.

New Club for Omaha.
East Omaha People's club, East Omaha, Nebraska, is the new organization which filed its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state today. The club is to have rooms to be used for social, political and charitable purposes. The capital stock is to be $2,000 and the shares $2 each.

Nebraska Incorporators are George Townley, George Scheschy and George Scheschy, Jr.

Place Amendment on Ballot.
According to Secretary of State Junkin, Governor Shallenberger could have got his initiative and referendum proposed amendment on the ballot up to July 24 at least. The secretary will receive no filings after July 18, but it requires five or six days after that date to get the sample ballots sent out to the various county clerks. That would leave him at least twenty-four days for the legislature to have acted had the governor issued his call for it to convene July 1. Had he given ten days' notice of election in those districts where vacancies exist, that would still leave twelve to fourteen days for the legislature to work on the bill. One of the proposals advanced by the governor for turning down Mr. Bryan was that there was not sufficient time to call the legislature and get the bill passed and the proposed amendment printed on the primary ballots.

Alliance Ready With Great Show For Stockmen

Fourth of July and Stockmen's Con- vention to Be Combined in Big Celebration.

ALLIANCE, Neb., June 23.—(Special.)—At a general meeting of the Alliance Commercial club, the movement of combining the Fourth of July celebration with the fourteenth annual convention of the Western Stockmen's association was inaugurated. The president was authorized to appoint committees to take charge of the matter, and a finance committee was appointed, raising the sum of $2,400 by popular subscription in the city.

The Box Butte County Fair association was then called upon to co-operate, and with the combined efforts of these public bodies and the enthusiastic support of all her citizens, Alliance will this year do things on a scale which will mark an epoch in the history of the city, and in fact of all western Nebraska.

The Western Stockmen's association with headquarters at Alliance, was inaugurated fourteen years ago, and since that time this body has always convened in Alliance, in the month of June.

This year, however, the idea promulgated in the Business Men's club of combining the celebrations of the great national event with the important events of the convention was met with universal approval.

The Box Butte County Fair association, whose officers comprise the leading business men of the city, have in view of the forthcoming events, more than doubled the number of the accommodation of the expected thousands of people and horses.

An additional grandstand has been erected which doubles the seating capacity at the fair grounds, and the stall accommodation has also been more than doubled, to accommodate the horses for which applications have already been received.

An elaborate program has been arranged, embracing numerous features of great interest to the western man, a synopsis of which follows:
July 4.—Salute at sunrise, then will follow a cowboy parade, races, band concerts, etc., and in the evening, at 8:30 a display of fireworks.

July 5, 6 and 7.—Free entertainment morning and evening in the opera house will be furnished by the city to the visitors. On Wednesday evening the grand Stockmen's ball will take place, which is an event in this part of the state, whilst during the four days there will be racing, broncho "busting," rough riding, etc., for valuable prizes.

Governor Shallenberger and other prominent men will be present and several special features will be introduced at this convention one of the greatest events in the history of the state.
"Lady Weaver," the guileless wonder will go against her suit, without a guide or pacemaker, being directed only by the eyes of the spectators.

The entire regiment of the Eighth United States cavalry will be encamped here during the celebrations, furnishing the music and engaging in military sports and exhibitions.

A large delegation from South Omaha will attend the convention and entertain the stockmen. This delegation will have moving pictures prepared, which will show the steer from "the cradle to the table." This exhibition will be given daily free of charge.

Owing to the valuable purses offered splendid and several of the best and current well-known horses will be here to compete.

ASHLAND, Neb., June 23.—(Special.)—Condemnation proceedings were begun in County Judge Slama's court at Wahoo this week by A. B. Fuller and Nelson Sheffer, representing, as directors, the Ashland drainage district, to remove the mill dam in Salt Creek belonging to James H. Smeltz. Hamilton and John DeLank, all of Wahoo. The mill and dam were constructed in 1890. ONE MAN KILLED IN CAVEIN Charles Brown Meets Death, Others Narrowly Escaping, at Hastings.

HASTINGS, Neb., June 23.—(Special.)—Charles Brown, a Negro, was killed today in a cavein of a ditch between the water pumping station and the cooling tower in the city park. Night Chief Engineer Tom Wittstruck and Charles Jones were also buried under the earth but both were saved. FOUR WIVES IN A ROW How a North Carolinian Cheers Num- ber Five with Lawn Deco- rations.

"Ever hear of Buckleberry?" said a man from North Carolina the other day. "Well, it is a district in Lenoir county, about twenty miles from Goldsboro. Twenty years ago it used to abound in crows' characters."

"Always," said a body in the neighborhood who was named Sutton. At the time of which I speak about the most representative citizen of the community was Ben Sutton. Ben had one of the nicest, neatest little one-story houses you ever saw, and when one day I met him on the road and was invited to partake of his hospitality at midday dinner I accepted with alacrity.

"We entered the house from the rear and almost immediately sat down at a table that literally groaned under the weight of ham and sweet potatoes, collards, corn pone, turnips and huckleberry pie. Ben's hospitality made him see that I got away with the whole of an enormous second helping.

"I strolled out upon the front porch after the meal and to my horror there stood in the yard just in front of the house, a row of four handsome tombstones, each with a grave attached. My host had lingered inside, so I went out and inspected the stones. One bore the inscription, 'To my beloved wife, Annie.' The second was 'To my beloved wife, Kate.' The third read, 'To my beloved wife, Maggie,' and the fourth, 'To my beloved wife, Jennie.'"

"Good heavens! I have struck a Blue-bered!" I exclaimed.
"Then I looked at the dates of death. They were from two to five years apart. I turned around and there was present Mrs. Sutton looking at me with a smile on her face.

"Look pretty, don't they?" she said. "You seem like to sit over here on the porch and look at the tombstones and tell me what a good wife Annie or Kate or Maggie or Jennie was to him. It doesn't hurt me, and he gets lots of fun out of it."
"But you can bet your sweet life there is no place here for me. In the first place, I made him promise me before we were married that he wouldn't put me over his head in any way. In the second, I mean to outlive him. You see, Ben looks pretty husky, but he is nearly 60, and I am not yet 30."

"Oh, no, I don't mind the tombstones or the graves. For one thing, they keep their place away from our place. You see there is the chicken coop on one side of the yard and the watermelon patch on the other, and you couldn't get a party to go into either after sundown for any number of chickens or watermelons.

"The only thing I mind about it is that people try to tease me and tell me that Ben's always got my tombstone ready lettered and all, except as to the date of my death, but I guess I'll fool them. It doesn't do any good, but I'll do it."

"The whole trouble was that it was too good to last. From the very moment that the monument for the uplift of fatherhood started it was certain that the pendulum would swing backward and very probably hit him in the eye. The mother movement was based on a very firm foundation and will always go on, but as soon as the exploiting of fatherhood started his complete downfall was assured."

"It was always father who held the family from the achievement of its social ambitions. It was father who made blunders that put the family to shame. Father never would take to the new-fashioned ideas. He was against the domination of the younger generation, against suffrage, against women's clubs, against the teaching of French to the children; in a word, a natural reactionary. It was but natural, therefore, that father should become generally known as a back number, useful only in bringing home money and writing checks.

KRUG JURY BLAMES SCHULTZ Coroner's Inquest Held Over Body of Brewer.

URGENT CHAUFFEUR PROSECUTED
Verdict Says Evidence Shows Criminal Negligence on His Part in Running Car at Criminal Rate of Speed.

"We find that Al Schultz is guilty of criminal negligence as shown by running his car at a terrific rate of speed. We recommend that the county attorney hold him for prosecution."
The foregoing verdict was rendered by the coroner's jury yesterday afternoon in the inquest over the body of William Krug. This jury was sworn in with practically no trouble, the following men composing it: S. P. Bostwick, foreman; Nathan Roberts, S. S. Montgomery, Charles Lewis, W. F. Doolittle and C. H. Simm.

W. H. Wallace of 204 North Twenty-fourth street took the stand as the first witness. Wallace was the driver of the Stearns car in which Mr. Krug was riding when it was hit by the Schultz machine, but he escaped with few injuries. He testified that his machine was way within the bounds of the law when the accident occurred, but that he judged that the Schultz car was coming at the rate of at least forty miles when it hit his machine.

An interesting feature in connection with this case has come to light after the accident happened. It seems that the corner of Leavenworth and Thirty-fourth streets has long been called the "blind corner" by the automobilists of Omaha for the reason that the trees grow right up to the corner and occupants of a car coming in any of the four directions can not see into the other street until he has gotten half way across it. The F. P. Kirkendall car was hit in a similar manner to the Krug accident a year ago last November because of this trouble.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE For the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood

The following letter expresses his gratitude: "I wish to praise Warner's Safe Cure for Bright's Disease. I hardly know how to start, because I cannot say enough in praise of it—it has been of such great benefit to me. I was first taken sick with rheumatism on Oct. 4, 1908. I was in bed most of the time until April 10th, 1909, when I came home. I could hardly walk with a cane. My doctor found I had Bright's Disease, large amount of albumin, palpitation of the heart, weak stomach, blinding sensation, shortness of breath, pains all through my legs and body. I doctored until the first of June, and was getting worse all the time. I got so they had to help me in and out of a chair. I was almost gone. My mother advised me to try your remedy, as they cured her brother-in-law twenty-five years before; so I did. After the second bottle I began to get better. I have taken eight bottles, and I also took one of Warner's Safe Pills at bed time every day. I am getting fat, feeling fine, the albumin has disappeared and every bad feeling is gone. I hope my letter will be the means of helping every person suffering from kidney or urinary troubles." Roy A. Poole, Brookings, S. D. "They started the father cause. It began with paragraphs in the newspapers. Why not give the fathers a boost? Why not let it graduated into the song, 'What's the Matter With Father?' the answer being, 'He's all right!' From all sides father was receiving what he considered his well-earned praise. He was being lauded to the exclusion of mother, sister, baby brother and the cook.

It was too good to last. It simply turned father's head. One of the species, W. D.
