

LABOR UNIONS LOSE FIGHT

Are Held Liable Under Anti-Trust and Commerce Laws.

HOUSE REFUSES THEM IMMUNITY

Agrees to Senate Action Declaring Organizations Not Exempt Following Lively Debate—Hughes' Amendment Defeated.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Labor organizations have lost their fight to gain exemption from prosecution under the anti-trust and interstate-commerce laws.

When the sundry civil bill was before the house that body tacked on an amendment by Mr. Hughes of New Jersey, a democrat, providing that no part of the appropriation for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws shall be spent in the prosecution of any organization or individual for entering into any combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours or bettering the condition of labor or for any act done in furtherance thereof not in itself unlawful.

The senate struck out the amendment. The house then instructed its conferees to stand by that provision, and the senate conferees, representing such an iron-clad direction, refused to consider the item.

Today, Mr. Tawney of Minnesota, one of the conferees, moved that the house recede from its position, and concur with the senate's action. The motion stirred up a hornet's nest.

Hughes' Amendment Lost. On the final vote, which gave a knock-out blow to the Hughes amendment, and left the way clear to an earlier agreement on the sundry civil bill, the following republicans voted with the democrats for the Hughes amendment: Austin, Tennessee; Carey, Cooper, Lenroot, Nelson and Stafford, Wisconsin; Davis, Minnesota; Fish, New York; Greene, Massachusetts; Poch and Reynolds, Pennsylvania; Hubbard, Kendall and Woods, Iowa; Hayes, California; Kronmiller, Maryland; Lundin, Rodenberg and Wilson, Illinois; Murdoch, Kansas; and Poindexter, Washington.

The democrats who voted with the republicans were: Bartlett, Nevada; Sherry, Kentucky; and Page, North Carolina. There were six present who did not vote and numerous pairs of democrats with republicans.

President Taft spent the entire day and bent every energy toward the defeat of the house amendment, which proposed to exempt labor unions from the operation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

It was the president's fight on this amendment to the supply bill which caused rumors to spread today that there would be a delay in the adjournment of congress.

Mr. Taft felt he had a longer fight before him than proved to be the case, and was doubtful of the result until the vote was finally taken. When informed of the result he made no attempt to conceal his gratification.

During the debate leading up to this vote Mr. Taft said he hoped the house would recede and concur with the senate on this amendment. The result, however, was that the amendment was defeated.

Mr. Hughes denied his purpose was political. He said the charge of demagoguery was easily made and that in the ordinary acceptance of the term a demagogue is a man who tries to do after election that which he would not do before election.

There are members," he shouted, "on the republican side of the house whom I am glad to acquit of the charge of demagoguery. It is significant that the republican party, built on the idea of striking the manacles from the black slave, should seek now to put manacles on the white slave.

Mr. Madison of Kansas denounced the Hughes' amendment as an attempt to write into the law a legalization of secondary boycott. The bill was sent back to conference with the Hughes' amendment eliminated from further consideration.

The action of the house of representatives today in receding from its labor amendment to the sundry civil bill marked the successful termination of an all day fight by President Taft against what he termed class legislation of an improper sort, and apparently the result until the vote was taken in the way of an adjournment of congress within the next few days.

Roosevelt Will Keep Silent on Things Political

Says He Does Not Know that He Will Ever Deliver Another Speech of that Nature.

NEW YORK, June 24.—"I don't know that I shall ever make another political speech," said Theodore Roosevelt today. The colonel had just popped out of his editorial office late in the afternoon, his collar wilted and his face red from the heat.

"I have no idea when I shall make a political speech," he replied. "I shall make no speeches of any kind for two months, and my first speech in Kansas City, Cheyenne, Milwaukee and Chicago, will have nothing to do with politics. I don't know that I shall ever make another political speech."

But speeches or no speeches, conferences will continue. Clifford Pinchot and James H. Garfield, former secretary of the interior went to Oyster Bay tonight. Two or three of the Rough Riders will be the colonel's guests at luncheon tomorrow.

Mr. Roosevelt did not reach his editorial office until 10:30 o'clock today. The place was boiling all day long. Interviewers, photographers, old friends and people bent on every sort of mission besieged it.

On the way to the East river ferry, Colonel Roosevelt stopped at the home of Mrs. Bridge Flynn to visit her sister, Mrs. Mary Ledwith, who nursed his children during their infancy. Colonel Roosevelt kissed her and asked when she was coming to visit them. She will have a home with the family the rest of her days. She is 85 years old.
