ROCKEFELLER THE GOLF LINK

Aged Billionaire Makes a Furious
Drive, Stops and Talks for Publication.

EXPECTS TO ROUND A CENTURY.

Tells of Some Things that Go to Produce Good Health.

CHANCES FOR AMERICAN BOYS

Opportunities Just as Many as Fifty Years Ago.

GREAT FORTUNES NOT FOR ALL

Young Man Who Selects Work Most Congenial and Then Sticks to
It is Bound to Win.

CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—(Special Telegram.)—Upon rolling golf stretched away from Forest Hill, upon the outskirts of this city, was a tall, spare man yesterday furiously driving a golf ball before him. Attired in cool flannels, a golf cap and keenly following the course of his game, he moved across the links. Despite the heat he seemed to be coolly getting the best of the game; he did not even perspire. That man was John D. Rockefeller.

Mr. Rockefeller celebrated his seventy-first birthday yesterday and passed the day as quietly as he passes every day. He received many telegrams from friends on this and the other side of the Atlantic, but he did not break his routine. He played golf, took an automobile ride, entertained some visitors and retired early.

The man who stood upon the links this afternoon did not look to be seventy-one years old, nor did he look as though his shoulders bore the burden of one of the greatest individual fortunes in the world.

The brown-skinned face of the "billionaire" is criss-crossed by hundreds of tiny wrinkles. His eyes are watery blue, but direct and keen. His shoulders are narrow, but everything about him is prime, from the toupes upon his head to the highly polished tan golf shoes on his feet.

Talks for Publication.
Mr. Rockefeller likes seldom for publication, but upon this occasion—just after turning his seventy-first mile stone upon the long journey, he was willing to say something. Briefly they were:

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That he is in the best of health and hopes to live to greet W. W. Harding when he comes back to America in 1910.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

"That the young men of today must blame themselves if conditions seem against them.

New York Gets Reports from Western Men

Tell the East that Crops Are Good and that There is No Great Money Shortage.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(Special Telegram.)—President E. H. Bailey of the First National bank of St. Paul, writes to correspondents in New York:

"While it is true that in some parts of the west there has been an unusually large traffic in land transactions, I do not think that, generally speaking, the burden assumed by interior banks in connection with that line of business is sufficiently serious to affect money prospects incident to the crop moving period.

"Reports from the producing sections of the northwest very greatly, and in most cases are greatly exaggerated. While the long continued drought and heated term have caused considerable damage, it seems reasonable to expect that with ordinarily favorable conditions from this time on, fair returns from the agricultural districts."

Charles W. Bartlett, cashier of the Merchants' National bank of Springfield, Mo., writes:

"I cannot say that speculation in the west in land affects the immediate locality, though it may to a certain extent.

"The crop outlook at this time is decidedly bright. What is good; the oat crop better than it has been in years, and the contrary to earlier expectations—at this time in time; we should have better than an average apple crop, and taking it altogether the outlook for fall business is good."

NEW YORK, July 10.—(Special Telegram.)—Mayor James C. Dahlgren, candidate for governor, addressed a large audience last night at the band park and from the frequency of applause which greeted him, his sentiments met with hearty approval.

The principal features of Mayor Dahlgren's talk were: Removal of the state capital from Lincoln to a more central point of the state; arbitration boards between labor and capital; his opposition to county opinion, and his strong statement in favor of home rule.

After his address he was entertained at dinner. Mayor Dahlgren has many friends in this section.

Valuable Find of Omaha Engineer

W. S. Greenleaf Finds Rich Deposit of Placer Gold of Unusual Proportion Near Cody.

CODY, Wyo., July 10.—(Special.)—W. S. Greenleaf, a mining engineer of Omaha, has discovered a placer in the Sunlight camp, forty miles from Cody, which is said to be unique in the history of mining. The gold is not found in the customary black or garnet sand, but coats the gravel and porous, nonmineralized rock of a blanket some four feet in depth, 300 feet wide and 2,000 feet long. This gravel and rock runs 300 to the ton and a treatment similar to quartz is required. It is the mining engineer's theory that the deposit has been made by the action of sulphuric acid. But whatever its origin, it is unlike any known placer deposit and is in violation of all geological facts and mining traditions.

The ground had been located and abandoned by nearly every prospector in the country for the reason that they invariably worked below the four-foot blanket with its rich intervening values. Machinery has been ordered and will be installed as quickly as possible. It is owned by Mr. Greenleaf and Floyd Coman of Cody. Aside from the importance of the discovery to its owners, it may mean the opening up of what is considered by mining men to be one of the most promising camps in the state could railroad facilities be had.

DEATH RECORD.

Keogh Mentioned.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(Special Telegram.)—Up to the present time nine men are actually in the race for the democratic nomination for governor of New York, or their friends are urging their fitness for the place. They are:

Thomas W. Osborne, Auburn; Herman Ridder of this city, Congressman William Sulzer, Carey L. Ely, Buffalo; Justice Martin J. Keogh, Worcester; Martin W. Littleton, Congressman James H. Havens, Rochester; former Comptroller Herman A. Metz and Mayor W. J. Gaynor.

In addition to these the name of William R. Hearst is mentioned in connection with the honor. As to Mayor Gaynor, who, although named as last in the list is doubtless first as regards the interest taken to possibly his candidacy, the opinion of the political sharps seems to be that he has no eye for the governorship and no desire now but to be mayor and carry out his ideas about the proper administration of government in this city.

News from Minnesota, received by the publicity bureau of the Omaha Commercial club, is to the effect that a joint session of the Town Clerks' club of St. Paul and the Publicity club of Minneapolis is to be held to close the list of delegates and make final arrangements for the Minnesota party that is to attend the national convention of ad men in Omaha next week.

The notice received also says: "The advance guard of the Minnesota delegation, consisting of Curtis L. Mosher, manager of the St. Paul city advertising bureau, and also Martin of Minneapolis, representing the publicity bureau of 900 members of that city, will be in Omaha two days in advance of the convention to prepare the way, fix things with the chief of police and learn the free lunch routes."

The Minnesota delegation will establish headquarters at the Paxton and will spend three days in Omaha with the national advertising men.

The Minnesota representatives will travel in a special car and will form a joint delegation representing not only the state through its highest executive officers, but the civic bodies of the principal Minnesota cities, the leading advertising and publicity organizations, the general associations of the state having to do with state advertising and promotion, and the leading business organizations and commercial clubs of the state.

DECISION TO BE SUSPENDED

Investigation Into Freight Rate
Situation to Go Ahead.

MUCH TERRITORY IS AFFECTED

Commission to Hold a Meeting
This Week and Decide Upon
What Shall Be Done.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—At a meeting of the Interstate Commerce commission the coming week that body will decide to suspend pending examination, the general increase of freight rates which have been filed with the commission recently. These increases of rates cover the most important territory of the United States from a railroad and commercial standpoint.

The commission will meet July 12. All the members but Commissioners Lane and Clarke, who are in Europe, will be present.

The commission will hear the parties interested in the proposed exchange of rates and will decide what to do about them. No hearing is planned with respect to the general increases of freight rates.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The attitude of the Mexican government toward the Madrid case before Judge Carland and the light in which President Taft views Central American affairs are made plainer today when the text of the correspondence which recently passed between President Diaz and President Taft on the subject became public.

President Diaz wrote to President Taft, the result of a circular telegram Madrid sent to Central American governments, protesting against the attitude of the United States in Nicaragua.

President Diaz assures President Taft that if his "good offices" should prove useful, he "will gladly extend them." In reply President Taft assures the president of Mexico that he esteems his friends' interest in the matter.

SAYS ACTS OF PARTY UNCLEAR

Patrick Calls Own Committee Treach-

Omaha—Metcalfe Yields to W. B. Price.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
LINCOLN, July 10.—(Special.)—Those who attended the democratic county convention here Saturday witnessed real tragedy when Mr. Bryan read old-time leaders out of the party—leaders who fought for the principles of democracy when he was still a stripling and who fought without reward or expectation of reward. These men made no attempt to conceal their deep feeling when the list they had read out and wrapped for so many years closed the door of their party against them. They realized that in the campaign at least they can no longer honorably be within the ranks, for their leader decreed that the principles they honestly oppose are the principles for which the party must stand. He not only read them out of the party, but upon their backs he burned the brand of Cain and to all the public he held them up as agents of the brewers and the liquor interests, and the evidence is that they are not in favor of the democratic state convention endorsing county opinion.

"I shall make no minority report," said T. J. Doyle, a member of the resolutions committee, "though I voted no on the proposition to endorse county opinion and instruct our delegates to vote for it." That was all this old war-horse said when the resolutions were put through the committee and throughout the proceedings Mr. Doyle sat dumb.

P. L. Hall, whose advice has been sought by democratic candidates and chairman for a quarter of a century and who has been a faithful defender of the presidential candidate, sat with bowed head during the candidate convention and his bearing was that of a man thoroughly saddened and who feared for the future of the party he has loved so many years. P. L. Hall, the man whose wisdom in affairs political secured for him the position of vice chairman of the national democratic committee just two years ago.

Many Make Objection.
Beside him sat A. V. Johnson, head of the Traveling Men's Bryan club in 1906—the man who spent his time and money working for the election of Mr. Bryan that the principles for which he fought might be enacted into law. M. L. Blackburn, a life-long democrat, sat next to Johnson. He spoke once. That was to request a roll call on Mr. Bryan's resolution to endorse county opinion.

Then there was John Keenan, a stalwart from the country, who told of the growth of democracy in his precinct because of the belief in democratic principles and of the foreign-born citizens who oppose the principles of the old party. He, with his neighbors, were driven out. And so on down the line to T. J. Davis, another county delegate.

Then J. H. Harley, a fighting democrat, argued and pleaded, but to no avail. There is no place in the Bryan democratic party for him. He told the convention what county opinion in the platform would mean. He said:

"It means that John Maguire will stay home from congress.
"It means the defeat of a democratic executive.
"It means Horace Bishop will leave his place at the assay and return to his former vocation."

But Mr. Harley could not stem the tide. Mr. Bryan charged the brewers with having defeated him for the presidency or contributed to his defeat and the day of reckoning was at hand.

And in the place of the militant democrats who have been kicked out of the party, Mr. Bryan has taken in W. R. Patrick; he is consorting with Frank Harrison, the man who abused him so a few months ago for joining the Eagles, and some republicans who may or may not vote his ticket.

Official Organs Debauched.
Mr. Bryan denounced his official organ as being untruthful and he defied them all to turn him down as a candidate for a place on the delegation to the state convention. The old war horses were not his real enemies. They were the things they advocated democracy and the things they were forced to listen to Patrick's conversion from republicanism to democracy and of the great fight he was making against the brewers and his statements that they spent $40,000 to defeat him for a seat in the state senate.

The delegates listened while A. G. Vair, ambassador and Claffin and other prohibitionists and Bryan and long-haired men cheered him.

These real democrats whom Mr. Bryan equated with the party's enemies, told them that his democratic committee had taken his own money and used it to defeat him; they heard him refer to Omaha as "that reeking, rotten, quarter of the state that has been demanding home rule and that has the territory offer a candidate for governor," and many of them have worked with Mayor Dahlgren in various campaigns and respect him for his honesty and for the principles for which he stands.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY LAW ATTACKED

Burlington Railroad Resists Damage
Suit Brought by Government on Ground that Act is Invalid.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 10.—(Special.)—Judge Carland of the United States court in this city, has taken under advisement a case which is expected to determine the constitutionality of what is known as the double indemnity law, enacted by the state legislature at its 79th session.

The suit was instituted by the United States government, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company being the defendant. The government seeks to recover from the railway company damages in the sum of $42,728 for the destruction of timber by fire alleged to have been started by sparks from a locomotive belonging to the railway company on its lines in the Black Hills. The timber destroyed by the fire was in the Black Hills forest reserve.

The actual value of the timber destroyed by the fire was $20,314.20, one-half of the amount sued for. The interest, N. K. Griggs, an attorney of Lincoln, Neb., argued the case before Judge Carland for the railway company, while the argument in behalf of the government was made by United States Attorney E. E. Wagner.

The railway company based its defense on the ground that the double indemnity law is unconstitutional, for the alleged reason that it is in conflict with both the state and federal constitutions. Owing to the importance of the case it may be several days before Judge Carland renders his decision.

OMAHA GUARD COMPANIES
READY TO GO TO FORT RILEY

Necessary Quotas of Men Enrolled to Entire the Militiamen to Mix with Regulars.

In preparation for the encampment at Fort Riley, Kan., the three Omaha companies of the National guard are doing their best to swell their ranks with new recruits. Company I, of which it was rumored that the required quota would not be able to go, has a chance to get forty and will join with companies G and I.

Monday evening, under the direction of Sergeant F. O. Haseman of L., a new engineering corps of sixty men will be formed at the army, 1814 Harney street.

The trip to Fort Riley is a very attractive offer for the members of the militia, providing a chance to get actual experience in the field, including sham battles against several regiments of regulars, and those who take part have their expenses and a salary paid them. Company G, which is composed largely of high school boys, is particularly anxious to enlist more men before going.

Five men from each company will go to the rifle range at Ashland, and try for the chance to represent the Nebraska regiments at the national rifle meet at Camp Perry, O., later in the summer. The men from L. and G. have already been chosen.

From company I, Sergeant Christanson, Corporal Hill, Muscular, Parkinson, and Privates Kael and Swanson; and from company G, Sergeants Wells, Stevens and Hysler and Corporals Shrum and Belsel will compete in the rifle trials.

Boatmen Still in Cody Reservoir.
CODY, Wyo., July 10.—(Special.)—All hope has been abandoned of recovering the bodies of the four reclamation service men who were drowned some two weeks ago in the lake formed by the backing of the Shoshone river behind the recently completed government dam. Their motor boat overturned in the deeper part of the lake, which now covers what was known as the Timmer ranch, and it is believed that the bodies have become lodged in the tall cottonwoods which grew upon the plain.
