ADMITS WAS DRIVING FAST
Hamilton Tells Father He Was Moving Twenty-Five Miles an Hour.

TESTIMONY OF OFFICER HELL
Others Testify as to the Speed of the Car at the Time of the Accident Which Cost a Life.

That Robert Hamilton, the youth charged with manslaughter, had told his father he was driving his machine at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour when he struck down and killed Elliot Robinson, was a statement by Detective Joe Hell Saturday morning. Detective Hell testified on the witness stand in the preliminary hearing of Hamilton that the youth had confessed his excessive speed when he and his father were riding to the police station with the detective, after the accident had occurred.

"Well, my boy, how did it happen?" Mr. Hamilton asked his son, according to Hell. Trembling in his fright over the affair, young Hamilton replied.

"I was going twenty-five miles an hour, and—"

"You surely were not going that fast," his father interrupted.

"Well, papa, I was going at least twenty miles an hour," the boy answered.

Elliot would have been 15 years of age in August.

Julius Rachman, who was driving the car which followed behind young Hamilton down Twentieth street, testified that his machine was going between ten and twelve miles an hour, according to his speedometer and he estimated Hamilton's speed at not greater than fifteen miles an hour; estimating by the distance Hamilton covered. He said: "My machine contained my mother, sister, father and self. We were returning from Tekamah, where we had spent the day, and I looked at the speedometer to see the distance we had covered. Hamilton turned off of Binney onto Twentieth and proceeded down the right hand side of the street close to the curb. He was one-fourth of a block ahead of me at the time and increased this distance less than a half block, making a distance between us of about three-fourths of a block. By this and the speed at which I know I was going I would estimate Hamilton's speed as not more than fifteen miles an hour."

TELL OF HAMILTON'S SPEED
Witnesses at Preliminary Say Auto Was Going Fast.

Ralph P. Rance, 712 North Twentieth street, who was seated on his front porch within a few yards of the scene, was probably the most important witness sworn yesterday. He testified that as he came onto the porch he saw the Robinson boy coming south on his bicycle and some distance behind him two automobiles. He then began reading his paper and glanced up just in time to see the Hamilton auto strike the Robinson boy. He stated that the machine was going about twenty-five miles an hour and attempted to pass on the right of the boy, who was turning at a slight angle toward the curb. The automobile turned as far toward the right as was possible, barely missing a telegraph pole which is at the alley on the curb line. Mr. Rance said he ran to where the boy was, at the same time calling to Hamilton to stop.

"He continued down the street to Miami," said the witness.

Mr. Rance declared that the water cap on the automobile was bent back. He said in regard to Hamilton's turning to the right: "The car couldn't have gone further west without striking the pole. For a moment I thought it had collided with it."

Dr. C. C. Morrison, who attended the Robinson lad after the accident, stated that the boy was carried to him by Mr. Rachman at 7:45 o'clock, and at the time he was in a state of collapse. He was unable to tell anything of the accident and gradually sank until he died at about 8:15 o'clock. The doctor declared that he examined the boy and found that he was cut and bruised in many places, but that the most severe injury was the contusion over his left eye. He stated that in looking over the lad he could not tell whether his skull was fractured or not and he did not know from what particular contusion he died.

The afternoon testimony bore out what was said in the morning, but none of the witnesses had watched the Hamilton machine as it went down the street and struck the Robinson boy. Nearly all heard the crash and looked around just in time to see the last wheel of the automobile pass over the boy's body and testified to the speed after the machine had collided with the bicycle as being about twenty-five miles an hour.

E. G. Patrick stated that he bought a paper of the boy about a minute before the accident occurred. The machines passed his house and as they did he remarked to himself, "They are going some."

W. H. Bell was standing with a motorcycle talking to George Turney before the latter's residence when the accident happened. He stated that at first he thought the lad was not going to stop the auto and that he was starting to go after him when Hamilton stopped at Miami street.

Mr. Turney stated that the Hamilton machine was not going faster than machines usually go past his residence. He heard about as the machine ramed over the boy. Those who testified yesterday were: Dr. C. C. Morrison, Ralph P. Rance, George Redman, Dr. S. McInnesan, Joseph Turney, Walter Bell, Frank Neubaer, William Brown, E. G. Patrick and Mrs. George Siers.

BOARD TO CONTROL EXPENSE
Suggested Remedy for the Present Tax Situation in Omaha.

ESTIMATES ARE NOT SCRUTINIZED

John L. McCague Gives a Pertinent View of the Trouble with the Financial Methods of the City.

Unlike many prominent business men approached on the topic, John L. McCague was not backward about expressing himself against the apparent tendency to a very material increase in taxation.

"The situation is very serious, and growing more so," said Mr. McCague. "The tendency of recent years seems to be not only to expend all of the money raised for any particular purpose, but to go further and impinge on the income of the future. This policy is dangerous and should be stopped."

"As the law stands, business men of experience and capacity cannot be induced to stand for public office, where a salary is attached, because the pay will not warrant them in giving all their time to the work. In the honorary positions which business men sometimes consent to fill, no sooner are they competent, by study and investigation, to give the most valuable service, than they are out and someone else goes in, under the necessity of spending a term to become acquainted with the problems they have to face. Thus, there is no adequate check, no thorough understanding of all the elements entering into a given problem."

Board of Estimate.
"In my judgment, we will have to come to the establishment of a board of estimate, official, or voluntary under appointment by the mayor, to supervise the levies and the expenditures of the various city boards. If this board cannot be established under the present law, then the legislature perhaps should be asked to amend the charter, or let us have a new one, that will provide a better and a closer system."

"Take the matter of bond issues, with the very serious element of interest, with the business interest on interest, and we will find the question does not involve the attention of business men. We have bonds for parks, for water works and for this, that or the other purpose, proposed and voted without the due and necessary consideration they deserve. Just as an instance, our school expenditures have been growing at a tremendous rate, with promise of a heavy increase, and how many of the men who carry on the business of Omaha can tell anything about it? Not very many, it will be admitted."

"Personally, I know this firm has been busy explaining to clients the increase of taxation from time to time, and it is not a pleasant duty. Undoubtedly other firms have the same experience, and it is time all concerned were brought to a realization of the exact situation."

"Little Fellow" Jolted.
Postmaster E. F. Thomas has heard a good deal of the kicking on the sharp increase of taxation.

"The little fellow gets a jolt that makes him sit up and take notice," said Mr. Thomas, "because everything he has in sight. Business men feel it, but they accept it as a matter of course, walk up and pay, and they forget it. While I do not go the limit of favoring the tax ferred law, such as Iowa has, for Nebraska at this time, I do know, and other men know, the law has equalized taxes in Iowa to an extent that is making it popular with the ordinary taxpayer."

"There is no question but something should be done here to reduce the tax rate instead of continually boosting it. Perhaps we should have more team work, closer co-operation, between the various boards and tax-levying bodies, and good results ought to flow from such a policy, instead of every board following its own sweet will."

Hopewell Runs for Lieut. Governor
Tekamah Jurist Will Go on the Republican Primary Ticket for the Office He Now Holds.

At the urgent solicitation of party friends and people all over the state, Lieutenant Governor Hopewell has consented to run again for that office on the republican ticket, and word comes from Tekamah that he has perfected his filing there today. Judge Hopewell has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for governor, but intimated that he could not assume responsibility of that office, but held himself ready to continue in his present position if the party leaders thought it desirable. At last accounts, no other candidate was in the running for this place.
