was notable that the wheat bought here today to arrive was largely from Indiana and Illinois, where rains have been frequent and sheavy of late. Weakness at African and Illinois, where rains have been frequent and sheavy of late. Weakness at African and the southwest had a decided effect here in the latter part of the day. During the first half of the session, dry weather, northwest crop damage in France and a notable collection of bullish statistics pushed prices upward. Selling of nearby options and the purchase of deferred deliveries was done on a large scale by elevator interests. The tone of the market at the windup was nervous and unsettled. Suprember ranged from $1.07% to $1.074 c.

September corn fluctuated between 614c and 63%c, with the close cash market was firm. No, yellow closed at $14,065c.

High and low points for the day in the keptember option in oats were 40c and 23%c. With the close cash market was firm. No, yellow closed at $14,065c.

They was a see-saw market in provisions. In the end prices were a trifle above Saturday's final figures, except July pork, which was 20c lower, but was inactive.
