(From a Staff Correspondent.) Frost of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital corps arrived in the city today, and Secretary Summer of the State Board of Health arranged immediately for a conference with him and prominent members of the state board at Mason City for the purpose of investigating the many cases of alleged infantile paralysis which have occurred there. They will go there tomorrow and take all the time necessary to find out, if possible, all about the epidemic. It has not been understood and there is desire for more of an inquiry than has ever been given. The report came today that five cases elsewhere in the state had been found.

Death of William Coleson. Although William Coleson was a colored man, the news of his death yesterday at Okoboji caused more sorrow among the people than would have been the case with many prominent white men. Coleson was for many years the messenger in the state executive offices, the faithful servant and friend of many governors. He went into the office with Governor Jackson, and was in the position with Drake, Shaw and Cummins, retiring with the latter. He had accompanied these governors all over the country and as he was stationed at the door of the chief executive office, he became acquainted with all the leading politicians of the state. He was ever faithful and honest, a man in whom everyone had confidence. He was reared in Henry county. He went to Okoboji about six weeks ago to open a barber shop and yesterday.

Has One Wife Too Many. Two Women at Nora Springs, Ia., Claim Robert R. McClellan as Husband.

Nora Springs, Ia., July 29.—(Special.)—Nora R. Shannon, of Nora Springs, Ia., by what name she may be known, is finding herself in a peck of trouble and all because too many women are claiming him as husband. Soon after he was married to wife No. 1, she came down from Fairmount, Minn., and claimed him all her own. According to the first wife's story they were married about four years ago and she lived with him until last May. Life was anything but a path of roses and she finally had to leave him, and taking her two children, went to her home near Fremont, she called upon her husband's people and there for the first time found that her name was not Shannon but McClellan, since which time she has been going under the latter name. About the first of this month McClellan was married to Miss Rosella Flanagan. They were among their home with Mrs. Hefner, mother of the bride, where wife No. 1 pointed down upon them, and with County Attorney Lockwood and Sheriff Flesher, the "bad man" was arrested. McClellan was formerly a resident of this county, living at Rockwell. One of the two children from wife No. 1 recognized his father and romped about with him a great deal. What will be done with McClellan has not been determined. Mrs. Hefner, mother of wife No. 1, is quite wealthy, and she is disposed to push matters.

John Junkin Hanged at Noon at Fort Madison

Murderer of Miss Clara Rosen of Ottumwa, Ia., Confesses Before He Pays Penalty.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 29.—John Junkin, the negro convicted of the murder of Clara Rosen, a white girl, who was killed while returning from choir practice in Ottumwa in February, 1908, was hanged at noon today in the penitentiary at Fort Madison. Sheriff Clarke cut the rope at 11:15. Junkin lived fifteen minutes before he was declared dead.

The negro made the following statement through Father Zaiser of Fort Madison, the priest who had been with him for several hours prior to his death: "I, John Junkin, now on the point of death, desire sincerely to obtain mercy and forgiveness from God for all my sins. I like to ask forgiveness from my mother for the sorrow I have caused her, and I earnestly and sincerely ask forgiveness of the parents and relatives and friends of Clara Rosen for the pain I have brought upon them. May God have mercy on my soul. JOHN JUNKIN."

John Junkin, colored, was a native of southern Iowa and was born in either Van Buren or Davis counties about thirty years ago. His parents were wholly uneducated and Junkin grew up without any education. He was employed in a factory and was employed in hotels and as a laborer. February 5 of last year he killed Clara Rosen, a white girl, in Ottumwa. He evidently lay in wait for her, whether for the purpose of robbery primarily or otherwise, will never be known. He killed her and after horribly mutilating her head he took from her body the jewelry she wore and went away. In fact he left Ottumwa and if he had remained away perhaps his crime would never have been traced to his hands. When he was arrested a mob threatened to hang him and he was taken to Albia and later to Des Moines, where he remained some time. He confessed in the Albia jail, but later tried to withdraw the confession. The defense made for him on the trial was that he lacked moral responsibility and that a life term was sufficient punishment. Neither the court nor the jury took this view. Governor Carroll signed the order for his execution and entrusted it to Sheriff Clark of Appanoose county, where he was tried.

Arrest of Man at Mason City for Hauling Beer Consigned to John Doe Raises Legal Point.

MASON CITY, Ia., July 29.—(Special.)—From the justice of the district court and then from the district to the supreme court, and then possibly to the United States supreme court, in the possible course of the trial that was heard here today, Peter Mable, a drayman, is charged with hauling beer contrary to the laws of the state of Iowa. Attorneys could not agree upon statement of facts, but in the evidence introduced the state endeavored to establish the fact that Mable was not a unit in the delivery of the beer; that under the state law he had no right to handle it and under the interstate commerce law he had no right. Ten cases of beer came consigned to two individuals of the city. It came without any street address and the defendant did not try to establish the owners of the beer. Mable loaded the beer on his dray and was about to haul it away when the sheriff seized it. Mable could not show that he had authority to haul the beer, either from consignee or consignor, and it was seized. The defendant claimed that he was as much of a factor in the delivery of the beer as the railroad, and the beer came under the interstate commerce law from the time it left the brewery until it was delivered to the on buying the beer. This beer chance to be addressed to John Doe, Mason City, and the state holds that when the railroad company delivers it to the Mason City station the interstate law ceases and the state law applies. The state admitted in argument that if it came addressed to John Doe, 231 East State street, Mason City, then Mable would have a right to deliver it and become a part of the original contract. The case is creating a great deal of interest. The brewing company at Austin is really defendant in the case, it is alleged. Two of the leading legal firms of the city are defending Mable. The justice court bound him over to the district court.

Land Mixup in South Dakota

State Experiment Station is Leased to Farmer, Who Goes In and Takes Possession.

PIERRE, S. D., July 29.—(Special.)—On account of the failure of the state board of regents to report to the state land department their selection for a state experiment station near Cottonwood, there is a mix-up in that part of the state. The department, having no report, did not withdraw the tract from the lease books filed with the county auditor of Stanley county, and when the lessee of state lands were made last spring, an old German, M. M. Mouser, leased the tract on which the station and buildings are located. He was in control, and the state experiment department was wondering where it was at. After attempting to secure a settlement with the lease holder, and making an agreement of some kind with him in regard to hay, the representative of the experiment work came to the state lands board with his troubles, and the lease was ordered canceled, and the lease holder instructed to call for his money. He comes back with a letter to the department, in which he intimates that it will have trouble to allow his lease to stand, but does not say in what way. In the meantime the experiment station people are in the saddle and waiting the outcome.

ONLY TWO SALOONS FOR LAMRO

Judge Tripp Decides Against the Contention that it is Entitled to Five.

YANKTON, July 29.—(Special.)—Lamro township, Tripp county, of 750 inhabitants, according to a court decision here Thursday by Judge R. B. Tripp, will have to worry along with only two liquor licenses granted, instead of the five granted by the county commissioners. The decision was on a state law of 1907, restricting liquor licenses to townships, incorporated towns or cities under 1,000 population to one for each 300 people. After the action of the commissioners the taxpayers took the matter up into circuit court, with the above result. The commissioners supported their action on the grounds of the absence of a state or federal census of their township, settled since the 1900 federal census and the state census of 1908, which view was not upheld by the court, making the law of general application over the state and that the matter of census was merely a means of information and could not be used to defeat the law. Liquor men watched the case closely.
