MRS. FORSTER IS ARRESTED Woman Wanted at Aberdeen Traced by Sultane Expressed by Husband. ABERDEEN, S. D., July 30.—(Special.)—Word was received here on Friday of the arrest at Portage, Wis., of Mrs. George J. Forster, wanted here for passing worthless checks and for obtaining goods under false pretenses. Her husband, George J. Forster, was brought back from Minneapolis to answer to a charge of trying to make way with mortgaged property. It will have its preliminary hearing today. It developed that Mrs. Forster, who absconded nearly two weeks ago, came back to Aberdeen last May, but when he found he was wanted by the police department, he packed a suitcase full of watches and hastened back to Minneapolis. Arriving there he expressed the suitcase to a brother-in-law at Portage, Wis., where his wife was staying. This action, it is said, led to the discovery of Mrs. Forster's exact whereabouts, although she was supposed to be somewhere in Wisconsin.

DR. CRIPPEN IS SUSPICIOUS

Alleged Murderer Does Not Know He is Under Observation. CHIEF INSPECTOR DEW TALKS Scotland Yard Man Says There is No Doubt of Identity of Suspect—Will Reveal His Plans Later. FATHER POINT, July 30.—The following message from the steamer Montrose, directed to Associated Press, was received here this morning: "July 30, 7 a. m.—The Montrose now is about the Health Point, Anticosti Island. 'Regarding your wireless news item of importance has happened yet. Suspect more retiring than ever. No arrests have been made and they are still unsuspecting of observation. 'The weather is bright and clear. 'Marconi Operator Montrose.' Chief Inspector Dew Talks. Chief Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard threw off his reserve to some extent today as to the plans in tracing the Crippen suspects. He remained in close communication with Chief McCarthy of the Quebec police department until late last night, and again this morning the two men consulted on the plans for the stroke when the Montrose arrives off Father Point. To one of the press representatives, who had been of personal service to him, Dew said: "I am absolutely certain that the persons on board the Montrose are Dr. Crippen and the Levea woman. The Laurentie was in touch with the Montrose on the way over and I received messages from Captain Kendall, which leaves no room for doubt about the identity of the suspect. 'Crippen and the woman will be greatly surprised when I step aboard the Montrose and confront them, but my surprise will be just as great if the suspects turn out to be not the persons I expect. 'My trip across the Atlantic was without incident. Nobody on the ship knew of the captain and the wireless operator knew of my identity. The passengers merely thought me a London business man coming over to Canada on a visit. The first intimation they had of my real mission was shortly after we passed Belle Isle and messages began to come from the wireless stations. Since then I have been beset by newspaper men and by others asking for them. 'When I get ready I will tell the press men of my plans and they will all learn them together, as I will play favorites. 'Asked as to whether he had received any word from Scotland Yard since he left, the inspector replied that he had received several messages, all of which tended to confirm his belief that the persons on the Montrose were the much sought Crippen and his typist. 'Detective is Cautious. The man from Scotland Yard appeared very nervous today. There is no doubt that he takes his mission most seriously. Every movement suggests caution on his part against a possible failure of his program. An illustration of this was furnished when he telephoned to Quebec to have a special pair of London handkerchiefs, a description of which he gave, purchased and held for him. 'They are,' said the inspector, 'the only kind in which I would be willing to hold a prisoner for a long time.' The steamer Montrose is plowing its way slowly through the eastern end of the St. Lawrence river with the suspects, the inspector believes, in ignorance that they are under surveillance. The steamer is expected here about 6 o'clock tomorrow morning. When the pilot boat puts out from Father Point to put a river pilot on the Montrose it will carry Chief Inspector Dew and the Canadian officials who will make the arrest in case Dew identifies the suspects as Crippen and Miss Levea. MONTREAL, July 30.—Today's Star prints another wireless dispatch from Captain Kendall of the Montrose, reading as follows: "The vessel is in the fog last night. The supposed Crippen was on deck early looking at Belle Isle. He had a worried look and paced the deck like one in thought. The supposed Miss Levea was in her room all day. She wears a gloomy expression. We stopped in the fog last night. The suspects said they did not sleep. Both appear haggard. I will send another wireless tomorrow. (Signed.) KENDALL, Commander."

Hired Man Gives Details of Murder Which He Says He Witnessed. PONGA, July 30.—(Special Telegram.)—The dock which tried to protect the sister from the hands of her brother, William Fleige, kept her dead body away from her brothers after she had been killed by her brother, according to the testimony of the hired man, Albert Eichtenkamp in the presence of the grand jury. Fleige, charged with the murder of his sister, Fleige was bound over to the district court and his bail fixed at $15,000, which was furnished by his two brothers, his brother-in-law and himself. BREAK BETWEEN SPAIN AND POPE queen of Spain some day is by no means so vague as to be impossible. Spain is essentially a Roman Catholic nation and the pope clinging to the faith with more tenacity than patriotism. With the Spanish, the Church of Rome comes before the state and the king. It is no wonder then, considering these circumstances, that Don Jaime has rallied to the cause of the Spanish people, volunteering to lead a revolution by defense of the vatican and against the government of Alfonso. Regarded as a Hero. Don Jaime has been hailed throughout the provinces of Spain as a hero. His threat to throw Spain into civil war coincides with the fiery determination of the Spanish people to punish Alfonso for the waging of the war in Morocco and the Barcelona riots the excitement throughout Spain has been tending more and more towards anarchy. The jails are filled with prisoners, soldiers are stationed at strategic points, provincial towns are overrun with government spies and wholesale arrests are universal. The hatred of the people against the government has grown to fever heat. The powder train of bloody internecine strife has no other thing now necessary to the application of the torch. Don Jaime will apply the torch. In fact, according to the Paris view, the name of Don Jaime is firebrand enough to throw Spain into a frenzy of revolt. In the last three years the followers of the late Don Carlos have grown in numbers. Don Jaime has been living quietly upon the continent, but he has not been idle by any means. His agents have been busy throughout Spain. Some of them have suffered arrests and banishment; others are still in prison, but they are not disheartened by punishment. This seems to goad them on to further endeavors in behalf of their chief.

Moeck of Burlington, president of the board, and Harry Albert of Iowa City, state bacteriologist, arrived, and with the local physicians the afternoon has been an exceedingly busy one. The new case of Will Pine, aged about 2, who was stricken Thursday and died today first received attention. About two and one-half miles distant from the city is the peculiar case of Martin Palmer. He was attacked about four months ago. Physicians said that he could not possibly live. He is in little or no pain, but he can hardly move a muscle. The tips of his fingers on the left hand he can move a little if his arm is extended in just the right position.
