Loses Everything in Three Years

Oakland Man, Hardly Able to Walk, Tells Police Prize Hard Luck Story of Years.

Three years ago happy and in the prime of good health with thriving cooperage ousiness and several thousand dollars to his credit in banks, now penniless and but the shell of his former self, George Craus of Oakland, Cal, is in Omaha friendless and alone, and dependant upon the city for With his wife and two children at home needing his support, and he hundreds of miles away, unable to reach them and in a condition unable to care for himself, Craus was brought into the police station off the street Tuesday morning.

His story began three years ago, when the Safe and Deposit bank in San Francisco falled with $12,000 of hm money on deposit, Following this he slieges he purchased $1,000 worth of steel tanks of the Bull Head Oil works, paying for them, and afterward finding that he had bought property not belonging to that company, and that another oil concern had succeeded in a replevin suit, leaving him in the hole, Following this he lost $600 in the Union National bank of Oakland, at which time he furnish coal were advertised as well as to left Oakland for New York, where he went haul the same. Filing of Suit to Compel the City to Pay Rentals is Followed by Another.

The judgments given the water company in federal court against the city of Omaha are not yet fully decided, declares Assistant City Attorney Dunn, and the mandamus suit brought before Judge Munger to compel the city to levy taxes and collect the money is not a regular proceeding. Before the council committee meeting Monday Dunn declared that since John L. Webster, attorney of the Water board, has otions on file for a new trial in all the trant cases and until Judge Munger comes back and passes on these motions the mandamus suft cannot threaten the city. The opinion was given by Mr. Dunn when asked by the council whether or not it was required to go ahead and take some action toward getting the money in case the water company was successful in its

Chief of Reclamation Work Will Inspect the Projects that Are Demanding Completion.

Mr. F. H. Newell, chief of the United States reclamation service spent a few nours between trains in Omaha, leaving at noon for Lincoln, to have a conference with the state engineer with reference to ome irrigation matters in Nebraska. "I am an my way west," said Mr. Newell, to join the army engineers, who have been made a consulting board for reclamation service, and who are to advise what works are to be pushed to completion with the $2,000,000 which congress provided as a loan to the service. This $2,000,000 is to be paid back with 3 per cent interest from the receipts from the sale of irrigation lands and water rights. "I want to say that there is absolutely no friction whatever between me and the consulting board of the army engineers. but, on the contrary; we are working to gether in cordial co-operation. In fact, there is no friction so far as I am concerned with any other division of the Interior department. I am an engineer and my work is to do the things which my superiors decide should be done in the way it and complete and fellow up the plans which have been worked out heretofore.

"I want to keep on good terms and get along with all the other branches of the government with which I must come in contact officially. No, I hardly believe I me which will keep me busy, and I hardly expect to find the time to attend that meeting."

The army engineers started a day ahead of Mr. Newell, and he expects to catch up with them either at Guernsey or Mitchell.

The boys by their cries attracted the attention of Charles Anderson; motorman on the Raiston car. Anderson ran to the place, but the boy had disappeared and as Anderson could not swim his efforts were futile. A call for help was given by telephone and some of the men of the neighborhood conducted a mearch. It was two hours before Chief Briggs and E. C. Craig of Raiston arrived. They went into the ditch above the bridge. There the body was found two hours after the drowning in seven feet of water.

In the meantime, Henry, William Martin Jetjer had arrived, Dr. E. L. De-Lanney also came in an automo immediately began the work of resuscitation. Strong men of the party worked for an hour steadily and used artificial respiration, but at the end of that time there was no response to the treatment. For a few moments Dr. DeLanney made the heart throb, but there was no blood in the arteries and the organ soon stopped.

The members of the family said that Arthur Jetter was able to swim. He had ridden to the place on a bicycle, and was very warm, so it is thought no was seized by a cramp. Deputy Coroner B. J. My brother advised me before I went to the hospital to see you, so, hoping that I might be saved from the horrors of the knife, I took his advice. I went home happy after sending for my little girl, for I had already made arrangements with a neighbor to care for her while I was in the hospital. After calling on you, instead of suffering from the knife, I done my housework, lost no sleep and suffered but very little pain, and the cancer was removed in eight days. The treatment is mild but surely positive.

I am not only willing but anxious that others suffering from this horrible disease should write me or call on me that I may guide them to where they can get relef as I did. I wish to thank you and God for the relief you gave me, for I was suffering, not only physically, but mentally, and only those who have been afflicted with this horrible disease can realize what you have done for me. Providence surely intervened and saved me. Wishing you success, I am, gratefully yours, MRS. F. SEROY,
