Hearst is not a man who does just now will cause many people to ook at the matter in this light. That is why, no doubt, Mr. Graves refers to Ohio's governor as "Glamis he is and Cawdor and shall be more hereafter." The "hereafter" manifestly means the 1912 national campaign, and then concluding one of his sweeps of rhetoric, the Hearst editor Whom does the governor blame, his speaks of the "gental face of the presfriends, the brewers, or his friends, ent transcendant man in the politics

It may be up to some others to "prepare to stand aside" then and yet even with the prestige of another election as governor behind him, Harmon and his friend, Hearst, will yet have all the fight on their hands that shrewd politicians need covet, for if Mayor Gaynor recovers, as seems likely, he will be a stronger man, and he is already strong with his party. But so many complications will enter into the democratic free-for-all race for the next presidential nomination that the contest cannot be narrowed down at this early date between Harmon and Gaynor, or any other two candidates, though they may be the most prominent as things now stand.

So here's where I landed las' We'n'ed'y,
Right here wid de come-one an' rubes,
Wid nothin' around me but scenery, breat'in' fresh air t'rough me But rest? Jumpin' Felix! where is it?

Well, mebbe de country is fine,
But, say, if dese noises is 'quiet,''
De clang o' de trolley fur mine!

I ain't slep' a wink, on de level!
I ain't closed a peeper at night.
Say, listen, I'm canned be de racket
Dese country birds makes when dey fight. "Katie did," yells one bird; den anydder He ups an' he tells him. "You ile!"

Den dey're off in a bunch, de whole party,
An' chee! how de langwidge does fly!
Flynn's boiler-shop simply ain't in it
Wid dat aggregation. Nit. Nein!

If dese country noises is quiet, De clang o' de trolley fur mine! Back! Back to ole civilerzation
I'm makin de straightes' bee-line.
Rest up wid de rubes if youse wants ter—
De clang o' de trolley fur mine.
