er vacation. For an admission fee of 25 cents you may hear at least once a week what is called an "Artists Concert," where may be heard the greatest soloists in Europe, both vocal and instrumental, supported by the finest orchestra. The outdoor band concerts are free. The stranger is impressed with the universal love for and appreciation of good music in Germany. What an inspiration it must be for ausician and composer to do his best, when nation waits in appreciation to applaud his highest efforts. You are not allowed to amoke within fifty feet of the orchestra at an open air concert.

The rights of the non-smoker are recognized and no smoking is allowed, for instance, in the postoffice, where people call for letters, and, contrary to our customs there is no smoking in first class dining rooms. There are tennis courts and golf links, illumination of the park with Japanese lanterns, daylight fireworks, children's games, and parties and fancy dress dances for the grown-ups. The simple life in the open air, invigorating and cool from the mountain forest, with wholesome diet; entertainment without excitement, together with the exhilerating carbonic acid baths of pure, sparkling, bubbling water, as if you bathing in champagne, altogether makes this an ideal place to recuperate on a month's vacation. Think what outdoor living means here; no wind, no dust, no fleas, no bugs, no mosquitos, no smoke. You may read by lamplight in your garden in the cool of the avening undisturbed by the winged pests that we have at home.

There are probably 500,000 visitors per year to German watering places. The baths are the property of the state, and return a large income for the investment in buildings and management. State ownership makes for substantial, symetrical and artistic buildings, beautifully finished and sanitary. I am convinced that we have at Excelsior Springe, Mo., at Thermopolis, Wyo., and in Hot Springs, S. D., and elsewhere valuable universal springs capable of being developed into something equal to the best here. They awalt only the enterprize of capital and medical men equal to the European product.
