CZARINA IS IN ILL HEALTH

Czar is Visibly Worried Over Her Condition.

EARNST SEARCH FOR REMEDY

Decision to Travel for Health Over Foreign Countries is Considered by Many a Grave Omen.

BY GEORGE FRASER.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Bee.)—The czar is very seriously worried over the health of the czarina and has decided to accompany her on her journey, where the doctors say she has a chance to recover her health, partially at least.

The decision of the czar to travel with his consort to a foreign country is very serious, in view of repeated statements to the effect that the malady of the empress has reached its final stage. Friedberg, where the czar and czarina will stay, is within fifteen minutes' drive of Nauborn. The palace, since the Duke Ludwig IV's death, has not been occupied and extensive preparations are being made to make it ready to receive the imperial visitors. A hundred rooms were got ready at Friedberg, and a full contingent of secret police have arrived from Danzig and Frankfurt and are subjecting all visitors and foreigners to a close scrutiny. According to present arrangements, their majesty's stay will last six weeks.

It is probable that while away the czar will receive a visit from Kaiser Wilhelm, and the two monarchs will discuss the Balkan situation.

Czar's Expense Account.

The statesman frequently made that the czar's civil list is $5,000,000. The fact is that the emperors of Russia have no civil list, as they draw at liberty on the imperial treasury, every ruble, which is supposed to be at the absolute disposal of the sovereign, who is the owner of vast estates and forests, with mines of great value. A diplomatist, newly arrived at St. Petersburg, asked a functionary of the Russian foreign office the amount of the imperial civil list and received the answer, "Quo vobis-vois avec une Liste Civile? Tout appartient au Tsar, et il prendra tout ce qu'il veut." It was said that during the year before his assassination the Emperor Alexander II drew $25,000,000 from the treasury in order to make what he considered to be an adequate provision for his morganatic wife, Princess Dolgorouki, and her children.

Tale from the Caucasus.

The term of terror in the Caucasus reached its climax of dramatic horror last week. Hussein Khanoff, a wealthy robber of Elisavetpol district, on being refused the hand of AgaFya, the daughter of a petty official named Kasimireff, carried her off by force. Next day, after a fierce struggle, in which several of the brigands were wounded, the girl was rescued. But Kasimireff, terrified by the bandit's subsequent threats, determined to migrate from the town. Hussein seized this as an opportunity for revenge. As Kasimireff, his wife, and three daughters were driving to their destination, they were swooped upon by his band of cut-throats and hurried off to the hills, where the father and mother were told to prepare for death. The elder girls were given the choice between death and entering Hussein's harem, a chance of escape which both refused. "AgaFya," said the bandit, "is reserved for a better fate."

The four victims were then roped together and placed in a leaking boat, which was towed into the middle of a small lake. As the boat settled down the wretched family prayed and sang hymns, while the brigands jeered and threw stones on them. For an hour they clung to the boat, but as each sank the burden upon the survivors became greater, and finally all disappeared. Three days later AgaFya, rescued in a pitiable condition by soldiers, told a very pathetic story which was related above.

Strange Story of a Child.

Very pathetic is a story that comes from Krasnobrod, in the government of Lublin, near Odessa. Two years ago there disappeared the 7-year-old daughter of a well-to-do family in Krasnobrod. A few months ago the mother paid a visit to the district Yahrmarka. There near the church door she gave alms to a blind girl saying, "Pray for my child, my dear, when I meet two years ago. She is certainly dead." The blind girl had scarcely heard the lady's voice before she recognized, and sprung to her feet saying, "Mamma, I am your child, Marie." She had been stolen by beggars and ill-treated.

Cornhuskers Get Pay at Fort Riley and Will Return

Probably Will Not Entrain Before Sunday for Return Trip—Officers Praise Them for Work.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., Aug. 27.—(Special to The Bee.)—Although last night witnessed still another great drop in the temperature, and though many of the soldiers encamped at Fort Riley spent an unusually chilly night, none of the Nebraska men suffered the least discomfort, being well provided for emergencies.

An almost impenetrable fog over the camp this morning compelled company drill to be abandoned save for a short time just before midday mess.

Adjutant General Hargan arrived from Lincoln this afternoon and in less than an hour afterward the men were mustered for their half pay due them for service during the maneuvers. The other half will be paid them by the state after they return home. Regular army engineers today expressed themselves as well pleased with the work of the newly organized company of engineers from Omaha and on account of their interest in engineering lines have promised to send a company of regulars to the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities this fall.

The general maneuvering of the Nebraska men has received high commendation from all army officers stationed here and some but words of praise has been heard for the conduct of the men and officers of both regiments. The camp has been referred to as one of the most orderly ever held at Fort Riley military reservation.

Remembering Each Other.

He sat on the sand at Atlantic City in a bathing suit. About ten feet away she was drawing him in with a small, brown foreigner. He noticed her complexion, her curves and the glint of gold in her hair. He wanted to speak, and yet—Finally he summoned courage and walked over to her. "Didn't I talk with you for about five minutes, two summers ago?" he asked. "Two years ago," she said, "I was here. Two years ago—let me see—did I wear blue silk stockings?" Philadelphia Times.

RAWN'S NAME ENTERS CASE

Attorneys' Objections Useless to Protect Former President's Reputation.

DEFENSE RECEIVES SETBACK

Judge Bruggemyer Refuses Defendants Bill of Particulars or Change of Venue—Reuther Tells of Osterman Company.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Attorneys for three former high officials of the Illinois Central railroad, Frank B. Harriman, formerly general manager; John M. Taylor, storekeeper, and Charles L. Ewing, superintendent of the lines north of the Ohio river, received a setback on the first day of their criminal trial today when Judge Bruggemyer refused the defendants a bill of particulars or change of venue. The men are charged with participating in frauds by which the railroad company is alleged to have been mulcted out of more than $1,000,000 through inflated car repair bills.

Despite objections by attorneys for the defense, names of Ira G. Rawn, former president of the Monon route, who met death recently by a bullet wound; J. E. Baker, and William Renshaw, former superintendent of machinery of the Illinois Central, were brought into the case in the testimony of Tenipille Reuther, formerly general manager of the Osterman Car company, now employed as a locomotive engineer for the Illinois Central road. His testimony was placed on the record, but Judge Bruggemyer asserted it might be stricken out later if attorneys for the prosecution failed to prove it material. Reuther testified as to the organization of the Osterman company, a concern, to which Illinois Central cars were sent for repairs. He declared he had been ousted from his position as general manager and director, that John M. Taylor, one of the defendants, might be made director. He declared the company was organized in 1906 to make grain doors, that it later made cement blocks, and subsequently entered the business of repairing cars for the Illinois Central.

"Did Mr. Taylor become financially interested in the company?" asked Attorney Walter L. Fisher, who is aiding Assistant State's Attorney Borne. "Yes," he became a stockholder," answered Mr. Reuther.

Tells of "Easy Money."

Counsel for the defense here sought to prevent further examination of the witnesses, asserting that the Osterman company was not on trial. "What do you expect to prove of this witness?" was asked of Mr. Fisher. "I mean to show," he answered, "that material was sent the Osterman company by Taylor, which was not paid for and that fraudulent bills subsequently were rendered, that the Illinois Central company paid."

Reuther then narrated a conversation he declared Osterman had held with him, in which the car company head told of presenting Taylor with a block of 2,000 shares in the company, adding that he would present a similar block to Ira G. Rawn, at that time vice president of the road. Frank B. Harriman, J. E. Baker, assistant superintendent of machinery, and to William Renshaw, superintendent of machinery of the Illinois Central.

Reuther was permitted to continue his narrative and said:

"One day I was walking through the yards with Osterman when we came upon a huge pile of lumber. He pointed to it and said: "How much do you think that pile of lumber is worth, Reuther?" "I told him I did not know, and asked him where he expected to get the money to pay for it."

REFUSE TO BOMBARD SKIES

War Department Figures Rain Would Cost Hundred Thousand.

TEN ROUNDS PROBABLY REQUIRED

Costs Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars Apiece to Fire Biggest Guns in Coast Artillery—Graves Telegraphs.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 27.—Estimating the cost of the experiment at about $100,000, the War department officials have declined requests to order a bombardment of the skies by all its guns on Puget Sound, and at the mouth of the Columbia river in an effort to bring on rain in the burning forest district of the northwest. In addition to the objection of cost, the army officials regarded the proposal as certain to prove futile. The Navy department, in which a similar request was made, expressed its willingness to co-operate with the army with six or ten guns, the only ones at its disposal.

The experiment would have been one of the most spectacular ever attempted in the United States. Around Puget Sound, at Forts Worden, Casey and Flagler, the army has fifty twelve-inch mortars, six twelve-inch rifles, eighteen ten-inch guns, and twenty six-inch guns, besides a large number of guns of smaller caliber. At the mouth of the Columbia in Forts Columbia and Stevens are eight twelve-inch mortars, eight ten-inch guns, three eight-inch guns, and eleven six-inch, in addition to the smaller ones.

United States is to Be Overruled By Liberalists

Dr. Mendoza Will Be Elected Acting President of Panama in Spite of Reported Objections.

PANAMA, Aug. 27.—The political crisis due to the reported intention of the United States to oppose an unconstitutional election by the National assembly of Dr. Carlos Mendoza as acting president is growing in intensity. The declaration of R. O. Morse, charge d'affaires of the Panama legation, regarding the illegitimacy of Dr. Mendoza has united the liberal members of the assembly whose prominent leaders have decided, it is said, to elect Dr. Mendoza first vice president and acting president without regard to the objections of the United States.

The Panama government has as yet received no official confirmation or denial from Washington of the attitude reported to have been taken by the United States, although inquiries have been made by the Panamanian minister in Washington, D. C., Arosemena to ascertain the opinion of the Department of State.

The friends of Dr. Mendoza publicly assert that they will elect him, since the National assembly is the only corporation having the power and right to interpret the Panamanian constitution and laws. They believe that the American government cannot and will not refuse to recognize the Panamanian citizen chosen by the assembly no matter who he may be.

Y. M. C. A. Passes Half Million.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The new year book of the North American Young Men's Christian association, now being issued, shows the membership of the association to have well passed the half million mark. There are 2,617 associations, an increase of 103 during the year. Of these 888 alone report 66,581 members, more than 150,000 of which are boys in their teens and 68,000 are in industrial occupations.

"The associations have made a net gain of $5,040,350 in property, making the total $67,865,000. They have also $5,534,929 pledged to erect new or larger buildings."

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Business Confidence Strengthens as Harvests Are Gathered.

POLITICAL MATTERS UNCERTAIN

Contraction in Number of Lines Undesirable, Mainly in Reduction of Speculation—Better Retail Trade in Dry Goods.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Dun's Review of Trade today says:

Business confidence is strengthened as the harvests are being gathered and the period of the midsummer inaction draws to a close. On the other hand, renewed political activity makes for that uncertainty that tends to retard enterprise.

That there has been an still in contraction in a number of important lines cannot be denied, but the contraction consists mainly in the reduction of speculation and in the cutting out of transactions for the future.

In dry goods there are signs of expansion among the jobbers, as the result of a better retail trade. The footwear and hide and leather trades are unsatisfactory.

Recent developments in iron and steel appear to warrant expectations of a brisk revival in demand as the season advances, and the sentiment is now more cheerful than for some time past.

BRADSTREET'S TALK ON MARKETS

General Reports All Over Country Are More Favorable.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Bradstreet's today says: House trade continues to expand at leading markets, food crop advices are more favorable, iron and steel trade reports display a better undertone, the movement of what is heavy, buyers' excursions are general and collections show a little improvement. However, the general situation remains rather irregular. In that current trade reports the country over are not uniformly favorable. Thus those from the west and southwest tell of activity in fall buying; returns from the south indicate only slight improvement, while those from the north-west are characterized as satisfactory.

"He was a little bit of a chap," began the surgeon, "scurry up to my knee, but when he was brought in with crushed legs and one arm hanging by a thread he tried not to cry—and succeeded. My favor, he always said, 'Be a sport—Joe.' He piped, 'Yes, sir, I'm a soldier.' Let me take him in my arms and just mother him as long as he lasts."

"But of course," resumed the surgeon in his professional tone, "it was my duty to operate."

"Just as he was about to be taken out he made us understand that he wanted something in his clothes, and with his sword fist he found what he wanted in one of his pockets, and clutched it tight."

"It turned out to be a brass button from the tunic of his father, who was a soldier, and the little chap wanted it to give him courage in his ordeal."

"Afterward," said the surgeon, "Miss Griggs strung the button on a ribbon and put it round his neck—the button rested beneath his folded hands.—Youth's Campaign.
