DAHLMAN GETS NOMINATION

State Canvassing Board Takes Action on Long Controversy.

THREE MEMBERS FOR ACTION

Barton, Brian and Junkin Favor Canvassing. While Shallenberger and Thompson Are Opposed to Action.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Sept. 3.—(Special.)—James C. Dahlman is the democratic nominee for governor of Nebraska. It was declared by the action of the state canvassing board this afternoon when a majority of the members signed a statement that the abstract canvassed was a true report of the votes in the late primary election. The board, however, did a thing to its declaration by taking a recess until Wednesday morning, at which time it will review the decision of the court relating to a recount of the vote, and make any correction necessary by said court's decision.

The following members signed the certificate that the abstract which gives Dahlman, a majority over Shallenberger is correct: George C. Junkin, secretary of state; E. G. Brian, state treasurer, and Silas R. Barton, state auditor. Attorney General Thompson and Governor Shallenberger refused to sign the certificate. Treasurer Brian voted against taking the recess. He insisted upon an adjournment without any hitch, but he secured only the vote of Secretary Junkin, Barton, Shallenberger and Thompson voting against the motion.

The same old arguments were put forth today for and against the canvass that have been used on several occasions before, the difference being that more feeling was displayed at this meeting.

On several occasions Governor Shallenberger said: "Of course whatever the board does is all right, but I want to take the advice of the attorney general. That is the only reason I want to postpone the canvass. The attorney general says that may lose some of my rights if the canvass proceeds and we adjourn. It is possible in his opinion that we may not be able to meet again if we adjourn. I want to stand by the attorney general."

Junkin has said: "I don't propose to take the advice of an attorney who is interested," said Junkin.

"Do you mean to say that I am interested in this affair?" said Thompson, his voice indicating considerable wrath.

"Certainly I do," replied Junkin. "You are a member of this board and you are interested. And I don't propose to take your advice."

"You are not responsible for what you said," Thompson answered. "You never have taken my advice, and I don't expect you to."

"You have never made it plain to me why we can't meet if we adjourn. If the recount shows that a change should be made, then we can meet any time and make the correction," said Junkin.

"Well, I don't suppose, George, that I could explain anything clear enough for you to understand it, even if I talked all day."

"You certainly can't the way you have been discussing this canvass," retorted Junkin.

Brian and Shallenberger had a little squabble after the governor had again repeated that he was taking the advice of the attorney general in the matter.

Brian said: "You are always willing to take the advice of the attorney general when it helps you, governor."

"I've always taken the advice of the attorney general. The attorney general has done good work for the state during the last four years and he has been called to make a very responsible position in the national government, so I have considered his advice is good," answered the governor.

"Do you mean to say that you have never gone back on an opinion of the attorney general?" said Brian.

"I don't know that I have," answered the governor.

"Very well then I apologize to you. I thought you had," said Brian. The treasurer had in mind the suit the governor forced the attorney general to bring against Luther B. Ludden, secretary of the normal board, to prevent him from drawing salary. The attorney general had advised against the suit.

Vote to Canvass.—In the main session, Brian and Junkin voted to canvass the vote, Shallenberger and Thompson voted no. The three members proceeded to compare the table with the original abstract. Thompson watched for a few moments, while the governor examined the abstract as they were handed to him by the men at work.

"Here Thompson, get around here and help do this work," said Junkin.

"I won't do it," replied the attorney general.

"Why won't you?" inquired Junkin.

"Because you can't make me," said Thompson, and he left the room.

When that comparison had been finished the three members signed the certificate attached to the table. Thompson and Shallenberger refused to sign.

Brian started to leave the room and then Barton proposed that the board adjourn. This brought on a new wrangle, finally concluding as above set out. Barton voted against his own motion for the reason, he explained, that the attorney general had said such a move might prevent the board reconvening if it desired to make any correction in line with the decision of the Douglas county court on the question of the legality of the recount.

John Rine, attorney for Mayor Dahlman, asked the attorney general if he would take the position that the courts could not compel the board to reconvene if it was shown by a recount that a serious error had occurred.

The attorney general said he would not go that far, but he insisted that it was not right to compel the governor to go to the courts.

Following is the certificate signed by the three members:

In testimony whereof, we, the undersigned members of the State Election and Canvassing Board for the State of Nebraska, hereby certify that the above and foregoing abstract is a true and correct report of the vote cast at a primary election held on the 16th day of August, 1910, in the state of Nebraska.

The county canvassing boards for the several counties have been called to the attention of the board and the vote on the constitutional amendment relating to suffrage.

Done at Lincoln this 3rd day of September, 1910.

Automobile Turns Turt.

MINDEN, Neb., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Romney Clearman, while running his automobile near Kearney on a trip from Minden to Hastings, was severely hurt. It seems that the authorities in Adams county have left the road at the particular place in bad condition for a long time, and Mr. Clearman, not knowing the condition, and it not being easily discernible in the night time, was running at a fair rate of speed when all at once he noticed that the beaten path turned out of the middle of the road, and in trying to follow the machine turned turtle completely wrecking the machine. This point in the road has been the cause of a considerable number of accidents, and Mr. Clearman is contemplating an action for damages against the county.

Ballot Controversy.

MINDEN, Neb., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—The error in the primary ballots by fusion County Clerk Jensen has now reached a furious stage in the local newspapers. Mr. Jensen has come out with a written confession admitting that he failed to print the name of the voters of Kearney county on this point. A great many foreigners are very much displeased with the fact, since it is now admitted that they were deprived of voting for or against the same within their respective parties.

Paper Boils Dahlman.

MINDEN, Neb., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—The local democratic paper has come out openly against Jim Dahlman for governor. It says: "We cannot believe that Jim Dahlman will ever be governor of Nebraska. We have been in the state since 1893, and have many times been chastened and humiliated by freaks of election, but Jim is the limit."

Washington Horse Fanatics Ambitious for Annual Event and President Taft Interested.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(Special Telegram.)—It is understood that President Taft is much interested in the movement to establish a big annual horse show in this city. President Taft is fond of horses, although he usually travels by automobile to save time and recent reports from Beverly state that Miss Helen Taft is showing unusual interest in horseback riding this season.

Virginians, especially are desirous of seeing established an annual horse show which will draw entries, not only from neighboring states, but from points as far away as Boston and Chicago.

The present arrangements are for a horse show which will be held here on October 19 and 20 and which may be graced by President Taft's attendance. There is, at present, but one known show in the Virginia circuit. This circuit of shows has been very popular in the past and at times there have been several entries from London.

However, Washington turfmen are becoming more ambitious. It is feared by some followers of the turf that a big annual horse show in Washington would conflict with the National Horse Show in New York, which is held annually in Madison Square Garden. On this account it is urged that the Washington horse show be held in the spring instead of the fall.

Breeders from Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky and the Carolinas, have communicated with Kelvin Hazen of the Washington Horse show association and other local men and have pledged their hearty support to a movement for holding an unusually big horse show here every year. Mr. Hazen said:

"We are very much encouraged by the attitude of turfmen from other states. Many members of congress and men in official life are lovers of horseflesh and we are expecting them to co-operate with us in this movement."

Leaves for Europe

Dodges a Reporter and Gets Into a

Stateroom in Order to Prevent Being Interviewed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(Special Telegram.)—Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island sailed for Europe today on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, accompanied by his wife and his daughter, Lucy, and son, Richard.

Inasmuch as the senator occupies with Speaker Cannon the storm-center of the insurgent movement in the republican party, his departure from the scene of action on the eve of an important election furnishes occasion for comment in political circles. Efforts to see Senator Aldrich before the liner left the pier, and obtain from him some expression of opinion, were fruitless.

The senator was on deck when a reporter approached him. He dodged into his stateroom and did not come out again until the ship was well out in the river, headed down stream.

Richard Aldrich said his father was bound for Aix Les Bains, France. No information could be obtained as to the probable date of the senator's return.
