

What Women Are Doing

RESIDENTS, chairmen and other club dignitaries are returning from their summer outings and activities among the club committees also sound the call of the season.

Mrs. M. D. Cameron, president of the Omaha Women's club, returned Friday from Lake Okoboji, where she has spent the summer, and with the other members of the executive committee will this week complete the list of appointments to their membership and other appointive offices.

The president says that already the names of many new members have been sent in and there is good reason to anticipate a year of spirited interest.

A feature of the coming meeting of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs at Tecumseh October 26-27-28, will be the art program. The painter, Dudley Crafts Watson of Chicago, whose pictures have before now been a feature of the Nebraska club art exhibits, will be represented by a splendid collection of paintings and will give the art lecture. Among the paintings promised for the exhibit are several marines and landscapes not previously exhibited.

In the absence of the chairman of the art committee, Mrs. Anna Moorey of Hastings, the arrangements will be completed by the president, Mrs. Frederick Cole, Mrs. Moorey, who spent the summer in Europe, arrived in New York the first of last week and is now visiting in Chicago.

Publicity day for the Young Women's Christian association will be Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The explanation of the term is, briefly, that on those days directors of the association, members of the committee, the secretaries, and also some of the lay members, form themselves into a large committee to visit the stores and offices and personally provide the young women therein employed with a prospectus of the association's plans for the opening year. Publicity thus explained means talking to young women an introduction to what the association has to offer them. The city is divided into districts, each district in charge of a chairman.

The first of the series of public demonstrations to be given in the domestic science kitchen of the Young Women's Christian association illustrative of the work of this department, will be given Monday, September 13, at noon. The subject of consideration at this first expostory session will be cocoa. Tuesday morning the second demonstration will consider the manufacture of tea biscuits and coffee. Thursday evening, the preparation of creamed beef. The dates of the other public demonstrations are September 20, 27 and 28. The noon demonstrations are given at 12:15, mornings at 10 and evenings at 7 o'clock. All are open to any one interested in the study of cooking.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Methodist Episcopal church Friday elected Mrs. G. W. Wickham as president, Mrs. James Hodge first vice president, Mrs. Leonard Dietz Nelson second vice president, Mrs. W. H. Head recording secretary, Mrs. C. C. Belden treasurer.

Mrs. Edward Phelan, chairman of the current topics department of the Omaha Women's club will entertain the members of this department at a social afternoon Monday.

The rally of the clubs of the Young Women's Christian association will be held tomorrow evening. This is the opening of the fall work for the organized clubs—the Y. W. C. A. Bible Band, the In His Name circle, the Business Girls' club, the Fellowship club, the D. A. Baum club and the Bible study league.

Mrs. W. P. Dorward, president of the Young Women's Christian association, returned yesterday from her summer home on Madeline island.

The Story Tellers' league will resume its meetings Thursday, September 22. The program for the afternoon is "A Story from the Life of Benjamin Franklin," Miss Josephine Grant; "Betsey Ross," Mrs. George Sampson; miscellaneous, Mrs. O. S. Chittenden.

A model village, within the 5-cent car fare limit, built by women and conducted by them, where the poor may, for the same price they now pay for a miserable, unsanitary court dwelling, obtain a concrete house, sunny, clean, sanitary, with a bit of garden where they may grow their vegetables and flowers—that is what is to be accomplished by Los Angeles women.

The plan, as outlined by the club women and which will be discussed at the coming meeting, when means of financing will be taken up, includes building the houses with space for gardens. It is believed a sufficient sum could be obtained not only to pay for the actual maintenance, but to cover the expense of the plan, whose business it would be to teach the women to adopt American methods and live in cleanly, hygienic manner.

Mme. Cavallieri Stands on Rights

Prima Donna Coming to United States to Enforce Claim to Chanler Wealth.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Counsel for Mme. Lina Cavallieri, the singer, said today his client proposed to fight for her rights and was coming to this country to see that the pre-nuptial agreement, whereby Chanler turned over to the diva what is said to be his entire fortune, was carried out.

W. Russell Osborn, counsel for the singer, flatly denied that Mme. Cavallieri has asked for or accepted a compromise from the Chanler family rather than engage in litigation to defend the pre-nuptial agreement.

"Mme. Cavallieri," said Mr. Osborn, "stands on her rights and she is coming over here to see that she gets them."

Omaha Women Plan Missionary Rally

Mrs. E. G. McGilton, Vice-Chairman. Mrs. George Tilden - Chairman.

MEMBERS of Omaha's foreign missionary societies of every denomination are just now occupied with the important matter of preparing for the big missionary meetings, which are to be held here October 26 and 27, part of the 30th anniversary of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning in America of woman's organized work for foreign missions.

In Omaha the preparations for the two days of special meetings are being planned for directly by a large central committee, composed of representatives of the larger churches; indirectly for by every member of every foreign missionary society of every church. Each member is supposed to constitute a special committee to spread interest in the big meeting. The interest, moreover, is not confined to the Omaha societies, but includes the women of the missionary societies throughout Nebraska and South Dakota, the Iowa societies being, for the most part, included in the plans for the Des Moines meeting.

The officers of the central committee are Mrs. George Tilden, chairman; Mrs. E. G. McGilton, vice chairman; Mrs. R. G. Schaeffer, recording secretary; Mrs. Philip Potter, treasurer. Leaders possess them merely because it is quite the thing. Some of the society folk, but they are in a minority, go so far as to declare that the restful countenance of the sitting Buddha, in meditation, or the reclining Buddha, in a soothing influence, and that the upright figure of the standing or preaching Buddha, signifies to them a new hope.

Among those who own Buddhas are Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane, wife of the senator from Massachusetts; George Howard, Mrs. Clarence Moore, wife of the master of the hounds of the smartest fox pack in the District; Mrs. Franklin Ellis, and among the society and clubmen, Frederick May, Rosh Marshall, the architect; Charles W. Wheeler and Lara Anderson are the possessors of collections of Buddhas.

Buddhas range from the tiny ivory amulet, which one may purchase from the fakirs at Atlantic City, for little worth of value, to the great golden sleeping Buddha of Siam, 150 feet long, before which thousands of half clad men and women creep daily. Yet the finer examples, many of which are in the hands of the Washington millionaires, sell for good prices. Hundreds of dollars some of them bring.

"Washington society women," said B. R. Collins, a veteran collector of Washington. "are perhaps not quite such extreme faddists as their New York neighbors, but within the last year the desire for Buddhas and for jade amulets has been remarkable. There are lots of things which come into the United States without a shadow of moral right to justify their presence, and the Buddha is the most notable example. Forty or fifty years ago many were imported. The presence of so many of the smaller Japanese Buddhas here is easily explained. The little gods were hung in their black lacquered cases in front of the doorways of the Japanese homes. Sailors on shore leave would go through a village and despoil whole streets.

Colonel John Jacob Astor denies that he will open up his Newport villa after his former wife leaves America. Colonel Astor says he will spend the late fall and winter in this city with perhaps a couple of short trips abroad. Vincent Astor may enter college this autumn, although that is not decided definitely. It is more likely that he will secure his education through the medium of private tutors.

Tennis, an always, is a favorite pastime, and many of the women of the colony take their tennis as they do their reduction exercises, systematically and prayerfully. The result speaks for itself. Newport women all aspire to be sylphs.

Washington Social Gossip

Many New Faces Will Be Seen During the Coming Season, Due to Changes in the Diplomatic Corps—President Taft May Get Chance to See Part of Big Golf Tourney—Buddha is Now in Great Favor.

BY CONSTANCE CARRUTHERS. WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(Special to The Bee.)—Many new faces will be seen in Washington society during the coming season. With the recent retirement of Lagercrantz, the Swedish minister, the social world faces an unprecedented number of changes in the diplomatic circle in the next few months.

Mr. De Lagercrantz and his family were extremely popular. They entertained unceasingly. The two daughters of the family, Miss Eva and Miss Mary, came over with their parents two years ago and made their debut the following winter. Last winter they remained in Sweden.

The first break in what might be called the old guard of the diplomatic circle came with the transfer of Baron Max de Planches, the Italian ambassador, and dean of the corps at Washington. Baron and his wife were leaders in a series of brilliant entertainments given for the younger set. In later years, however, they confined their program to dinner parties and really charming entertainments of a smaller scale. The departure of the Italian ambassador and the naming of his successor not only placed Italy at the foot of the list of embassies in Washington, but advanced the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, Baron Henselauer von Henselauer, to the dignity of dean of the corps in this country.

Then came the death of Senator Joseph Nabors, the Brazilian ambassador, and the consequent withdrawal from Washington of his family, who had been brilliant additions to the social colony. The Nabors were generally liked on all sides. This gap in the list of ambassadors has not yet been filled.

The departure of the Spanish minister, the Marquis de Villalobar, was accompanied by more or less gossip of an interesting nature. He is said to have taken effect at one of the White House receptions because somebody connected with the White House staff prevented him from overstepping the rules of diplomatic etiquette and joining several ambassadors who were in close conversation. The story was quickly reported in private channels that the Marquis was transferred to Lisbon.

Interesting rumors also accompanied this move. Villalobar used to be secretary of the Spanish legation in London. He stands in high favor with King Alfonso, and it was currently reported in private channels that it was the legation secretary who engineered the match between Alfonso and the Princess Enza of Hattenberg—that he so successfully played the go-between for the young lovers that he was promised one day to be Spanish ambassador at London—a favor he has long coveted. It is in order to reach London, however, it was necessary that the minister serve at least at two important posts. Washington—where he remained less than a year—being the first and Lisbon next.

The sudden death of Ole Gude, minister from Norway, at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., in the early part of the present summer left another vacancy in the list of ministers. Mr. Gude and his two daughters were among the most popular members of the diplomatic set. The young women, Miss Sigrid and Miss Ingeborg, were brilliantly educated. Miss Gude is an accomplished musician, a violinist of ability.

President Taft may be present next week to see a part of the golf tournament played over the Myopia Links at Beverly Farms near New York. Philadelphia and Chicago will take part.

Mrs. John A. Johnson, widow of the former governor of Minnesota, has been visiting in this city. She was the house guest of Mrs. A. J. Smith of Lamont street. She has now returned home.

No society salon or boudoir in Washington is now complete unless the placed face of Buddha is there. On the eve of the great revival of the Buddha, a faith that has more than 100,000,000 of devotees throughout the world, has been caught on the high tide of fashion in the nation's capital. Many and unique are the examples of good and stone images which have found their way here. No religious significance is attached to the possession of the god of the Orientals, however. Many of the society

Gathering of Rich Widows in Newport Gives That Sporty Place a New Name—Plans for Next Winter's Dances Are Being Arranged—Colonel Astor Waits on His Ex-Wife's Going, So He May Open Up His Villa.

BY MARGARET WATTS DE PEYSTER. NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(Special to The Bee.)—During the present month widows, grace and age, representing an aggregate fortune of $200,000,000, all eligible for remarriage, some anxious for the chance, others in a receptive mood and others who are decidedly not, are gathered in Newport. The fashion town has been dubbed "Widowville," and the name will stick throughout the present season, which is now about ended. Word has been received that a large delegation of foreign noblemen is headed toward Newport with all sail set. Dukes, earls, lords and barons, with a prince or two thrown in, are coming. All carry credentials which they are willing to sell to the highest bidder.

Among those who will have an opportunity of selecting titles are Mrs. Owen Golet, Mrs. Robert Golet, Mrs. Oliver H. Belmont, Mrs. Alexander S. Clarke, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. Harold Brown,

Even before the season is over arrangements are being made for next winter's dances. Thursday, December 23, and Saturday, February 25, and April 22, have been chosen as the dates for the metropol-
