BUSINESS AFRAID OF CUBA

Property Owners Pay the Taxes and Politicians Misrule.

LITTLE INTEREST IN POLITICS

Millionaire Plantation Owner Says He Sees No Hope for a Betterment of the Political Conditions of the Island.

"The property owners pay the taxes in Cuba and the politicians use the money for their private pleasures." This is the tenor of the indictment of the Gomez administration by Senator Rafael Benitez Rojas of Havana, who was a guest at the Taxton Monday. Senator Rojas is a millionaire sugar grower, manufacturer, banker and steamship owner of the island. He is returning to New York, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Carolina Rojas, and a business friend, Oliver Hill, after an extensive trip to the Pacific coast.

"The sugar crop in the islands this year is good and prices are fair, but business conditions are fearfully demoralized. The business interests are hopelessly in the minority in Cuba and the country is ruled, or rather misruled by the ruff-raff. The best citizens take no interest in politics, since a protest on their part would be of no effect, so far as bringing about a change in government is concerned, and the class now in control would not hesitate to apply the boycott in town or to the torch in the country, Gomez has not the confidence of the business interests of the country and he never did have it.

"I see no other outcome for Cuba but the continuance of this cut-throat policy, with business fighting shy of actual development of the island, with little revolutions from time to time, with property at the mercy of the low and the worthless, who pay no taxes and who will not work, till the United States is forced to establish a protectorate over the country and thus bring order out of chaos. My family has been residing in New York for the last two years, where I am educating my children, and we shall be ready for the change when it comes. And it will come within the next ten years, though I doubt if it comes by the electorate of Cuba asking for it; that lawless, grafting element does not want order."

Senator Rojas speaks no English, and either Mr. Hill or his daughter acts as interpreter on this trip. He said he was greatly enjoying his tour through the United States and declared that he was astounded at its greatness.

BENNETT'S

Autumn Opening Week

It's an "opening" in its real sense. Not so much a display of the artificial in flowers and things but a comprehensive exhibit of the newest and best styles in Fall garments, fabrics and accessories to the dress. It's an informal occasion in which every part of the store is putting forth its best efforts to show its choicest wares. We invite and even urge you to come and spend as much time as you choose.

The Fall Millinery

Bennett's Millinery gives an accurate interpretation of the most authoritative styles. It is everywhere conceded that this store maintains a masterful leadership of the Omaha millinery situation. Here you find the greatest variety of practical designs—hats that have the artistic influence prominently in evidence. Our designers are experts from the large Eastern shops, who know the art as thoroughly as one knows the alphabet. The hats on view reflect the most advanced ideas, still you'll find prices on the same low basis that has made this the most widely popular millinery emporium of this section.

New Tailored Suits

Our suit stock is splendidly replete. The woman who from necessity or choice pays $15.00, $19.50 to $30.00 for her suit will surely be best served here.

We have strictly new models in all wool broadcloths, worsteds, serges and rough effects in the leading colors. They show the handwork of the master tailor, being shaped, padded, interlined and stayed equal to tailored-to-order garments, yet at half the cost. See the fine lines at—

WESTERN ANIMALS IMPROVE

Prof. H. R. Smith Tells of Betterment of the Grades.

JUDGE AT MANY EXHIBITIONS

University of Nebraska is Doing a Great Work in the Animal Industry Department and is Getting Results.

"There has been a most wonderful improvement in the grades of cattle at the various state and interstate fairs in the west in 1910 over the previous year, and breeders and farmers are better posted, I might say better educated than ever before," said Prof. H. R. Smith, chief professor of animal husbandry at the University of Nebraska, who was in Omaha Monday on his way to attend the interstate fair at Sioux City, Ia., which opened Monday.

Prof. Smith is one of the leading and best known judges of cattle in the United States and has received high recognition from the federal Department of Agriculture and from other sources. When the fair season closes he will have judged high-grade beef cattle at the following state, interstate and international fairs: Nebraska, Kansas, Wyoming, state; Sioux City, St. Joseph, Interstate, and the International at Chicago.

Benefit All Breeders.
"These shows have done a great work for the breeders of pure-bred cattle and of high-grade live stock generally," said Prof. Smith. "When an intelligent farmer or breeder witnesses the judging of his cattle and also of his neighbor's cattle, he notes the points that score and those that do not score and profits thereby. To this I attribute the wonderful improvement in the cattle exhibited this year over those exhibited in past years."

"In the line of my work at the Nebraska university I would like to tell the people that we have a first-class exhibit of all the high grades of horses, cattle, sheep and swine at the university, and we have taken approximately $4,000 in prizes at the Chicago International live stock fair in the last few years. In the beef carcass contest, with the United States and Canada in the field, the University of Nebraska took three-fourths of the prizes. This shows that our feeding and our beef foods in Nebraska are pretty near perfection, and I think we should be proud of it."

Prof. Smith has lately prepared, at the request of Secretary Wilson, a bulletin on animal production for use in the high schools of the country. His "Profitable Stock Breeding" has received high praise. Prof. Smith leaves this evening to attend the interstate fair at Sioux City.

Cometh Now the Fair Co-Ed and the Athletes

Here She Is—Also the Chap with the Slant Pockets—Hazing in Order.

Cometh now the season when the undergraduate flourish like unto the over-quoted green bay tree; when numerous young men dressed generally in exaggerated styles or as like Georgia Cohan as they can get, do swarm upon the dear old campus; when cries of "Old man! how are you?" ring out; when baggagemasters are engaged in mountainous trunks and suitcases; when boarding house mistresses set a table which is better than it will be some weeks hence; when the fair (sometimes co-ed) thinks once of what courses to take and twice of prospects for a prom invitation—generally called a bid.

The college student is getting fairly numerous in these days in Omaha as well as in Lincoln, Ann Arbor and Madison. And the brand here is like the article everywhere else. The shopkeepers are taking notice of his advent. Pictures appeared to portray undergraduate life appear in windows of book stores and others to make a special suggestion to meet his or her supposed fancies. The haberdashery windows are aglow with fervid neckties, the clothing stores have suits with pockets turned at extraordinary angles, while the sporting pages of newspapers are beginning to sound the usual crop of "bear" stories from the campus.

A week ago all over the country the college correspondents were declaiming that according to Coach — prospects were never better for a championship team for old —

The hazing story is next in order and may be looked for any day.
