BURKETT AT SCOTT'S BLUFFS

Senator Discusses Irrigation and the Tariff on Sugar.

TALKS ALONG PROGRESSIVE LINES

World-Herald's Editors About Foreign Names on Petitions Answered—All Men Become Americans When Naturalized.

SCOTT'S BLUFF, Neb., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—Senator Burkett and his party came steaming into town this evening on schedule time and spoke at the morning address to the people upon the political issues of the day. He had made a speech at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Morrill, and the sixteen miles to this place was made in record time. Notwithstanding the much traveling and speaking that the senator has been doing he seemed fresh and vigorous, and was very generous in his expression of appreciation of the reception that had been accorded him everywhere he had been.

He spoke along general political lines and took a good stiff walk at the World-Herald for a recent article criticizing him in which it also libeled and ridiculed, as he said, people who are of foreign extraction. He quoted from the World-Herald a few days ago criticizing him for giving heed to a petition which the World-Herald said contained only the signatures of persons of the great majority of whom had "foreign names," and most of which were written so badly as to be illegible and by men "unfamiliar with writing." The senator said an extract from the World-Herald which says:

"This petition contained the signatures of several hundred persons, the great majority of them having foreign names. Most of the names were illegible, and some of them were entirely illegible, written by men unfamiliar with writing, and with hands cramped with hard labor. But Senator Burkett looked at the mossy petition and thought that he heard the voice of the people.

"It may be," said Senator Burkett, "that the distinguished editor of the World-Herald, seeing my ancestry, can scorn the 'men' who have foreign names, and those who write with hands cramped with hard work. He may think that a petition, because it is 'mossy' with the dust and grime of those who toil, has no claim to consideration as the voice of the people, but they are those who love their land and that toll, those of us who cannot go back many generations until we trace our own ancestors to some foreign shore, and we are not ready with the editor of the World-Herald to reject or ignore a petition simply because it contains 'foreign' names as written by hand cramped with hard labor.

"Foreign Names Americans." "And that great paper, the World-Herald, was not content with its fling at foreigners in general, but in another part of the article, specialties and particularities in its another column, said that those who toil in our best fields." The senator quoted again from what the World-Herald said: "The petition contained the names of some Nebraskans who are interested in the sugar industry and who are familiar with the facts, and the very great majority of the petitioners were the Russians, who had worked in the beet fields."

"But these petitions were signed by more than three thousand persons. They lived here in your community and at Morrill and Bridgeport and all over this valley. Some of them lived at Grand Island and North Platte and other places in the state. They asked that the great sugar beet industry be not forgotten or overlooked in our tariff legislation. To be sure, they were interested in the beet sugar industry. Some of them had their every dollar tied up in land that produces the beet. Others may look to it as their means of subsistence as laborers. But whatever their interest may be, whether as producer of the beet, as laborers in the field, or manufacturer in the factory, they were entitled to a fair hearing and not an ignoring simply because some of them had 'foreign names' or had 'hands cramped with honest toil.'

Tariff on Sugar Explained. "You people realized the importance of the beet sugar industry when you sent that petition asking for protection to your product, which the World-Herald has criticized. The republican party has been criticized for its sugar legislation, but I want to submit that in the face of the history of the sugar production of all the world, there is no nation on earth that has managed its sugar legislation as successfully for the people, both producer and consumer, as the United States. It may be subject to criticism, for I have never seen anything that could not be criticized in some particular. But the fact remains that while some nations have been losing all their sugar production and their sugar factories, and while other nations like Germany and Austria and France have been paying large bounties to build up their sugar industry, our sugar production has been growing, and at the same time our consumers have been buying their sugar cheaper than any other people on earth except those of Great Britain, and its people are doing so cheaply at the cost of the complete annihilation of her own sugar industry.

"I do not believe that there is anybody in this country who purposely would destroy the splendid prospects that you meet in this valley here before you unless it were the great sugar trust. But unconsciously or individually, laws may be advocated that would do just that sort of thing. The World-Herald in this article criticizes the republicans because they refused to strike out the Dutch standard, but that Dutch standard is the protection that stands between the people and the producers of refined beet sugar, and the chemically bleached, cheaper grade of sugar from foreign countries. That Dutch standard is the protection to every consumer of sugar in this country against the fraud of the foreign producer, who would chemically bleach a lower grade of sugar and sell it to the people for what it is not.

Production is Increasing. "I shall tell the day when we can produce within our own territory all the sugar that we shall need. We produced in this country last year almost $50,000,000 pounds of cane sugar and we produced of beet sugar a little more than 800,000,000 pounds. This added to the sugar produced in Hawaii, the Philippines, Porto Rico and Cuba, as imported last year, constitutes four-fifths of all the sugar that we use. Under the new law, as the republican party passed it, the sugar from everywhere was reduced from $15 to $13.50 per hundred, and basing this year's consumption upon last year's figures, under the new law as it is expected to work out, there will be only 83 per cent of the sugar which we will consume in the United States this year that will have to pay the reduced rate of $13.50, while 90 per cent of all the sugar we shall consume will come in free of duty, or at 50 per cent of these reduced rates.

"Sugar has been our largest source of revenue. It was so under the democratic bill. Strike down the tariff on sugar and we would not only close the beet sugar

DAMAGE CASE IN LANCASTER

Case of Cora Whitaker Against Frank Young Transferred There.

BREACH OF PROMISE IS ALLEGED

Red Cloud Woman Seeks Fifty Thousand Dollars from Prominent Nebraska Banker—Winnett at Stubbs' Meeting.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Sept. 21.—(Special.)—Suit was filed in the district court of Lancaster county by Cora Whitaker against Frank Young for $50,000 for breach of promise. The petition, which was filed late this afternoon by Bernard McNey of Red Cloud and W. C. Dorsey, alleges that in Denver, in October, 1909, Young proposed marriage to Cora Whitaker, and since that time the young woman has been ready to keep her promise to become Mrs. Young. The defendant, it is alleged, has refused, and still refuses, to keep his promise.

Frank Young is a very prominent Nebraskan, having lived at Broken Bow for a number of years, recently removing to Lincoln. He is high up in Masonic affairs, and it is said his acquaintance with the plaintiff was due to his work in looking after the family, following the death of her father, who was also a Mason.

The suit was originally filed in Colorado, but was dismissed upon the advice of her counsel and refilled in Lancaster county. At the time of the filing of the suit in Colorado the newspapers were filled with sensational stories of the affair, owing to the prominence of Young.

At this time it is not known whether Young is in Lincoln. He was reported to have gone to Mexico some time ago, but it is also said he was seen in Lincoln within the last few days.

Auditor Barton has practically decided that A. J. Switzer of Lincoln is entitled to the remainder of the estate of John Moreley. The estate reverted to the state after the heirs of Moreley could not be found, and the auditor was instructed by the legislature to locate the heirs of Switzer. The estate amounts to $70,000. Switzer has proven that he is a cousin of the dead Moreley.

Star Takes News Man. E. E. Wolfe, who for a number of years has been employed on the Lincoln News, a portion of the time as the state house reporter, has gone to the staff of the Lincoln Star, under its new management.

Bergium Helps the Needy. Dr. Frank Bergium, formerly of Omaha, who removed to Lincoln a year ago, has opened up his office to poor people of the city and has announced that he will care for the sick, who are unable to pay, free of charge. Dr. Bergium is a son of the late Dr. Bergium of Omaha, and a brother to Guston and Solon Bergium, the sculptors.

Charges Against Burlington. George H. Werner of Burlington has filed a formal complaint against the Burlington railroad, alleging that it discriminates in the matter of freight rates between brick. He asks that the commission order the road to give him the same rates that apply out of Hastings, Holdrege and other towns in that part of the state.

Commission to Edgar. The railway commission will go to Edgar, September 30 and take testimony in the case wherein the Farmers' Commercial association has asked for a transfer of route to connect the Burlington and the St. Joseph & Grand Island railroads. Both roads have answered the complaint by saying that Edgar now has all the facilities needed to care for its shipments.

Winnett to Attend Conference. H. J. Winnett, railway commissioner, went to Topeka this afternoon to attend the rate conference called by Governor Stubbs for tomorrow. Governor Stubbs, who is a candidate, has called the governors and others of the neighboring states to meet and discuss a way to prevent the railroads from putting into effect a proposed increase in freight rates.

Want Clearance Out of Jail. The supreme court has ordered the sheriff of Cass county to produce John Clarence before it September 25, and show cause why the man is not out on bail. Clarence was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to the penitentiary. He appealed to the supreme court and was released on bond. When he returned to his home the sheriff again placed him in jail, on the theory that the bond given the supreme court had no effect. Today attorneys for Clarence filed a motion for his release under habeas corpus. Attorneys say that the fact that Clarence was placed in jail, his surety is no longer responsible and that it will be necessary to give another bond.

Suit Against Tabitha Home. H. W. Horton, doing business as the Western Supply house, brought suit Wednesday in the Lancaster district court against the Tabitha Home. The plaintiff asked for judgment for $2,965.52 for material furnished. The petition states that other claims are made against the defendant by the Woodman for $5,000, by Belmers-Kaufman company for $1,651.51, by the Kostka Glass & Paint company for $499.84, by H. J. Penfold for $200, by Hall Bros. for $1,407.78, by O. W. Vandover for $255.21, by 'Orsmyer for $122.25, by the Western Glass & Paint company for $338.70, by Spade & Chaplin for $584.77, and by J. H. Pompe, the exact interest being unknown. The plaintiff asks that these claims be declared secondary.

HOLDREGE, Neb., Sept. 21.—(Special Telegram.)—Following a distinctly strong sentiment, Coroner D. S. Palmer today called an inquest to look into the death of Mrs. C. J. Beedle of this city, who yesterday dangerously wounded her husband and killed herself.

Six of the leading business men of the city were summoned to the Beedle home, where the investigation was conducted for this bed. The well-known lawyer told the story of the events which preceded yesterday's tragedy. His story was practically the same as he told Dr. Palmer and Andrews last night. He declared that he did not see Mrs. Beedle when she attempted to gain admittance to a room in which she had hidden and into which he hoped to enter by passing through another room. He said that the first intimation he had of her proximity to him was a blinding flash and a report from the revolver which she had. The bullet struck him, and the next instant he fell to the floor, and when he recovered he saw his wife lying in a pool of blood only a few feet away. He managed to stagger to the door and morning neighbors to his assistance.

A letter found this morning seems to indicate that the deed was premeditated on the part of the wounded lawyer's wife. It read: "To the Public: When either a man or a woman takes their own life in their hands the people always say that person was
