STATE HOUSE MINUS LIGHT

No Coal at Penitentiary and Electric Plant Shuts Down.

WATER MAIN ALSO BURSTS

Penitentiary Case Preliminary Arguments Will Be Heard This Morning in Supreme Court—Archibald Scott Dead.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Sept. 23.—(Special.)—The state house was dark today and it was not caused by speculation over the outcome of the campaign. The electric light plant was closed down at the state penitentiary as usual on dark days, because there was no coal on hand. The officials there said the contractor had failed to deliver the coal, while the contractor said the officials never order any coal until the supply is exhausted and they expect the order to be filled in about a minute. To add to the troubles of the prison a nine-inch water main burst and the reservoir was thus shut off from its supply.

HALF-MINUTE STORE TALK

There's a fellow down east with a reputation for saying bright things. His latest is: "You must tune up to concert pitch if you wish to be heard above the noise." We knew in the beginning that if we made this store like other stores it wouldn't succeed, so we have tried to reach a pitch that no matter how noisy competition became we could be heard. Our argument in favor of better clothes is being listened to today by more people than ever before.

CHIEF DONAHUE TELLS OF JESSE JAMES' MOTHER

Police Official Was Much Impressed on Visit to Aged Mother of Bandits.

Chief of Police Donahue who, with Mrs. Donahue and daughter has been spending five days at Excelsior Springs, Ark., paid a visit while he was there to Mrs. Samuels, the mother of Jesse and Frank James, who lives on a farm near the springs, and is visited by hundreds of tourists who come to see the grave of Jesse James and the mother and familiar haunts of the famous bandits.

"Mrs. Samuels is 85 years old," said the chief, "and seems as bright and intelligent as a person of half that age. She takes a great deal of pleasure in showing strangers around the farm and bears upon her own person the mark of the detectives who were chasing her boys. In the boys' explosion in her bedroom in an attempt to kill the bandits, her arm was blown off, her 8-year-old son was killed as well as an old negro servant and her second husband, Dr. Samuels received injuries that afterward drove him insane."

"Mrs. Samuels does not believe that her boys ever very bad, and says that their father, Rev. James, a Baptist minister, that ever lived, and if the boys have any evil in them it came from her. She hates the Pinkerton detectives and anyone who comes from Chicago because of them. Until recently she was a democrat, but her son Frank, who is now living in Oklahoma, made a republican of her and she thinks much of Roosevelt because he is a fighter."
