He presented an array of figures to show The nursing mothers drink Anhouser-Busch mait. Rosenfeld Liquor Co., 619 and towns of the state are placed. disadvantage under which the cities

The law was enacted in 1872, when the very smallest proportion of the population was in the cities. The assessment of the railroads and all interstate corporations in the state is made by a state council, com posed of the governor, auditor and secre tary of state. The entire mileage of each retiroad or wire line in the state is taken and the total amount of taxes to be asthe amount to the assessed per mile for each township in the state through which the corporation property extends.

In railroad assessment only the main line mileage is considered. The townships thus uniformly get a larger proportion of the taxes to be paid by the companies than do the cities, and the cities having the rallway terminals derive no tax revenue whatever from the enormous investment in yards and depots, but only from the few miles of main trackage, and even this is assessed in a first, second and third rate, the third rate embracing the mileage nearest to the city limits and escaping taxation for about all municipal expenses, leaving only the small mileage near the center of the towns to bear its share of the municipal burden.

Our tax levies are so great, amounting to from 75 to 100 mills on the dollar, in consequence of our reduced valuation, that the burden is more upon the ordinary real estate in our cities than it can stand, making it of speculative and uncertain value, nor is it an encouragement for people to improve property within the city, when investments can be had so much more favorable.

Thousands of industries should be within our state limits which of necessity must be promoted and fostered by the cities and towns. Our commercial organizations are working for them, offering bonuses, remitting taxes and making personal donations and sacrifices. A 7 to 10 per cent tax does not look good to prospective industries, and our sister states, where the conditions are better, are more liable to get their location.

The Bouth Omana city clerk received the blank bonds from Spitzer & Co., Toledo, O., yesterday covering the latest issue, which amounts to $200,000. These bonds will be signed and soon after the money will be available and will be applied on the numerous paving contracts for which the issue was floated. It will require two or three days for the signing and after that the bonds will have to be registered. The above issue is the largest single issue of bonds since $250,000 was voted for the general sewer system nearly five years ago.
