GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Wheat Prices Hold to Low Ebb and May Go Lower.

CORN IS ALSO GOING DOWN

Unless Outlet in Guise of Export Demand or Milling Demand Transpires Wheat Will Continue to Fall.

OMAHA, Oct. 1, 1910.

A week-end rally was expected in wheat prices having been liquidated so severely.

Traders all concede that bearish conditions still exist.

There appears to be no bullish news to prevent corn from selling lower despite the irregular decline of the last two months.

October 1 is here and no accident has occurred to the growing crop and this situation is very bearish.

Wheat firm as was expected and Liverpool showed a firmer tone.

It is thought that milling demand may improve now that values have had some advance.

Conditions are bearish and only temporary advances are probable.
