SENATOR BROWN AT SEWARD

National Issues Involved in Present Campaign Are Discussed.

CONTROL OF CONGRESS IMPORTANT

Republicans Should Have Majority to Allow Them to Complete Important Railroad Legislation Now in Hand.

SEWARD, Neb., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Senator Brown made an address here tonight on the issues of the campaign. He said in part:

'This year you are called upon to elect a congressman in this district, the legislature you elect will be called upon to elect a United States senator. It is, therefore, of imperative importance to consider the public policies of our nation as well as the public policies of our state. The people of this country have not been taking any backward steps as far as our national policies are concerned. They have been moving steadily forward during all the history of the republic. In all parties and in all campaigns the endeavor of the citizen has been to make a good government better. No matter how good our laws are, they can and should be improved. The struggle in the last session of congress was notable for results. It was a continuation of the struggle which Roosevelt began several years ago. He began to fight to vest real power in that arm of the government known as the Interstate Commerce commission. He won a great victory. It was the first and therefore the most difficult step to take in a campaign to place the government in real and actual control of those common carriers doing an interstate business. He won because he was right—just as the people will win every fight in the end when they are right. But experience under the Roosevelt platform demonstrated that the law needed amendment, and that unless the law could be strengthened and further power be vested in the government, the public would still be without that full measure of justice to which it is entitled. So it happened that the republican platform promised and President Taft recommended to congress further legislation on the subject. The pledge was redeemed and a law was passed which every honest man concedes to be a tremendous victory for popular rights. It received every republican vote in the senate and I think every republican vote in the house. It also had the support at the end of the struggle of a few democrats in both branches of congress. It may truthfully be said to represent the best wisdom and conscience of both parties. It stands, however, as a monument to the integrity and insistence of a republican president and a republican congress.

Court of Commerce. 'This law created a special court to hear and determine all legal controversies arising under the law. The court shall have no other business. Its entire time shall be devoted to the one subject. It is likely, therefore, that the delays and conflicting judicial interpretations of the law heretofore arising under the old system of having federal courts all over the country pass on the questions involved will be avoided. You people know, because you remember how long our state was delayed by the federal court procedure in the collection of certain railroad taxes, how inevitable and unavoidable delay is in the circuit courts of the country. When a shipper finds himself in a lawsuit over freight rates an early and speedy judgment is his right. Delay in many cases amounts to a denial of justice. The commerce court created by the law must result in that expediency and uniformity and certainty so essential to the administration of justice. It means a square deal for the litigant before he has become exhausted or bankrupt by the delays incident to the old procedure.

'Again, the law vests the government with power to investigate on its own motion any rate or charge made by the railroads, with power to set it aside if found to be impossible or unjust. Under the old law the government had no jurisdiction over any rate unless some shipper or aggrieved person filed a complaint. This was a great hardship on the individual, because it made him, and not the government, the moving spirit, the plaintiff in the controversy, charged with carrying the burden of making a case before the commission. Of course, the public had a greater interest in the rate as a matter of fact than the shipper himself, but the burden of obtaining justice was on the individual. If he was successful the public, as well as himself, became the beneficiary. President Taft was of the opinion that the burden ought to be borne by the government because the general public had the larger interest in the controversy. That was the controlling reason for giving to the government the power to initiate investigations, bear the burden of the fight, save to the shipper the expense and allow all the people to obtain the rights that belong to them.

Regulation of Rates. 'Again, under the old law the railroads had a right to increase their rates and charges at any time, provided they filed a schedule of the proposed increases with the commission. After thirty or sixty days, I have forgotten which, these increases went into effect. The new law allows no increase in rates to become effective until the Interstate Commerce commission shall have had nine months in which to determine whether they are just and reasonable. If the commission finds them to be just and reasonable they become operative. If the commission finds them to be unreasonable or unjust, it has the power to suspend them. This investigation, with its difficulties, is made by the government. No shipper, no community, no individual is compelled to carry the burden of the investigation. Not only that, but the government has the power to compel the common carriers to furnish the facts, all of them, on the subject. In other words, the burden of proving that the proposed rates are reasonable and just is put on the railroad company. If the proof is taken on the real control and regulation by the government of transportation charges. It ought to receive the enthusiastic endorsement of all the people and the party which inaugurated it and the president and the congress which carried out this tremendous upward and forward policy deserving the commendation of the public. You withhold such commendation every time you vote for a man who stands as an enemy to the present administration.

Further Legislation Needed. 'But good as this law is it needs amendment. Congress should have followed the lead of President Taft and put in the law a provision making it unlawful for any railroad company to own stock in a competing railroad and placing the capitalization of the railroads under the control and supervision of the Interstate Commerce commission. These provisions were voted down by the action of democratic votes on the argument that the railroads were chartered by the states and therefore congress had no constitutional power to legislate on the subject of capitalization. That to do so was an invasion of state rights guaranteed by the constitution. The argument prevailed for the time being, but I promise you now the fight will be renewed in the next congress. It cannot be the law that congress having undoubted and absolute power over interstate commerce is without power to fix the terms and conditions on which corporations shall do business in that field, whether they be chartered by the state or the nation.'

MORE SPEECHES BY BURKETT

Senator's Time Kept Occupied by Campaign Work. (From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Senator Burkett left Lincoln this afternoon for Seward, where he was billed for an address in the evening to the people of that city. Saturday afternoon he will deliver an address at Cresco and in the evening another at Davey. The senator is very popular in that portion of the country and is assured of good crowds whenever it is known that he is to speak. Next week will be spent in the Third Congressional district, where he will make a dozen speeches at as many different towns. On account of his popularity as a campaign speaker his time will be very much taken up from now on until the campaign closes.

personal baggage. The fishing boats put out to sea, and at some distance from the harbor transferred their royal passengers to the yacht Amelia.

Dr. Jose Maria de Alpoim, chief of the progressive dissidents and a fervent minister of justice and worship, has joined the republican movement and his own party has been dissolved. President-elect Fonseca of Brazil, who was a guest of King Manuel when the revolution broke out, sailed for Rio Janeiro on the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo today. The Brazilian cruiser Barroco has arrived here. The customs house here has been reopened.

Plan of New Government. NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Associated Press this morning received a direct from Lisbon a dispatch from Senhor Bernardo Machado, the minister of foreign affairs in the newly constituted provisional government of Portugal, in which the republican leader sets forth the purposes and aims of the present government.

Senhor Machado, who speaks at the request of and for the people of Braga, the provisional president of the new republic, cabled as follows:

'The republic of Portugal has been proclaimed by the army, the navy and the people. The maintenance of order is completely assured. There is general adhesion to the government in the provinces. The enthusiasm of the public is unsurpassed. The provisional government has before it a great duty involving much work. It has, in effect, a country to make over. Concerning other programs, I can say that we will endeavor to put in operation the program of the republican party. This includes a policy of decent realization both in the local administration and the government of the colonies.

'The financial budget is to be equalized in the general interest of the nation and it will be made up with honesty and fairness. The national wealth will be developed.

'All national alliances now existing will be respected and friendly relations with all other states are desired. Freedom of the press will be assured and all star chamber methods and opportunistic laws will be abolished. Public instruction will be completely secularized, relieved from religious control, and the religious congregations will be suppressed. We plan the establishment of a broad system of public instruction, both primary and advanced, under government endowment.

'The re-organization of the army and the navy, whose patriotic services have been beyond all praise, will be proceeded with.

'The government has profound respect for public opinion and it approaches its task with a high resolve to perform its duties with unflinching honesty. Its wish is to serve the best interests of the country. The foregoing sets forth in a few words the purposes, the aims and the earnest endeavors in these moments of anxious labor of the members of the provisional government of Portugal.

'I send the above at the request of the president of provisional government Theophilus Braga. (Signed.) BERNARDO MACHADO, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

PIERRE, S. D., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—The report of the condition of the state treasury at the close of business September 30, showed a total of $38,507 in all funds in the hands of the treasurer. Of this the general fund had gone down to $3,790, which means that there will soon be a period of registration of state warrants up to the time of the receipts of the December call for taxes. The disbursements of September went up to $19,676, the receipts from the September call of taxes being but $8,772. At the date of the report the twine plant fund carried $2,827, and the game fund $2,958, which will show a decided increase when the county treasurers remit their collections for licenses granted this year. The interest and income fund for the common schools, which will be distributed in December, shows up well this early with over $125,000 now in the fund.

G. G. WEIGAND IN FEDERAL TOILS

Man and Mrs. Nancy McDevitt Accused of Using Mails to Defraud Mrs. M. J. Cross.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 7.—(Special Telegram.)—Extortion of $4,000 by representations of an immense fortune in England is the charge made by Mrs. M. J. Cross, an 84-year-old Shelton (Neb.) woman, against Mrs. Nancy McDevitt and G. G. Weigand, a spiritualist of Des Moines. Marshal George E. Bidwell arrested Mrs. McDevitt and Weigand. Both were arraigned before United States Commissioner McArthur on the charge of using the mails to defraud.

Mrs. McDevitt is 39 years of age. She is the second wife of the late William McDevitt, a well known farmer. Weigand is little known in this city. He was found by Marshal Bidwell living in the Florence apartments. United States Postoffice Inspector C. E. Caine unraveled the details of the strange case. He has been collecting evidence for six months. The theory of Inspector Caine is that Weigand, the spiritualist, has converted Mrs. McDevitt to his faith and that together they worked on the sympathies of the aged Nebraska woman until they extracted so much money that she became suspicious.
