

GET-AWAY DAY FOR MILITARY

Soldiers Go Through Their Entire Program with Precision.

RACE BETWEEN THE REGIMENTS

Roman Standing Starts Pull of All Sorts of Excitement and in for Blood Because of the Great Rivalry.

Unlike the usual run of public exhibitions or entertainments given by professionals, the last performance at Fort Omaha was not shortened, cut, skimped or rushed in any way. It was, in fact, about the best given during the week and to a crowd that gave the officers in charge some anxiety to keep unruly and thoughtless spectators out of the line. When cavalry and artillery was working at a fast gait, it is no time for butting in by anybody whose duty does not call for his presence on the field.

A Roman standing race was added to the many stunts heretofore put on, just to show that the soldier lads have everything in their repertoire that any state can demand. It was between teams from the two cavalry regiments, and was for blood. Everything these athletic and clever warriors do is in dead earnest.

As usual, the grand review of all the troops opened the afternoon's program, and then followed cavalry drill, the Roman race, the shoulder test and "call to arms" exhibition, artillery drill, musical calliope by the Thirteenth, monkey drill by the Seventh, bridge building and demolition and dress parade by the Seventh cavalry, a fine and dandy sight that holds attention to the last minute.

Actual breaking of camp by the troops will not begin until Sunday morning, but the engineers left last evening for Fort Leavenworth and the cooks and bakers left during the night for Fort Riley. Both of these bunches went by train.

Sunday morning the Seventh cavalry will start away on its 24-mile overland hike to Fort Riley, and Major Nicholson, commanding in the absence of Colonel Hunter, on leave, expects to cover the distance in ten days. The Thirteenth infantry will also get away this morning, going by train to Fort Leavenworth. It will be in barracks at its home post by evening.

The artillerymen and the hospital corps will pull out Sunday afternoon. The battery goes to Fort Leavenworth and the hospital corps to Fort D. A. Russell. Both travel by railroad.

The squadron of the Fifteenth cavalry will remain at Fort Omaha for a few days, so that the officers stationed here can make their test rides on the horses of the Fifteenth.

Within a short time I and D companies of the signal corps are to march to Fort Leavenworth to spend a month in gaining more knowledge. After the tour of instruction D company will return to Omaha and I company will proceed to Fort D. A. Russell.

CHILDREN HAVE FINE BALL

Girls and Boys Enjoy Selva at Ak-Sar-Ben Function.

The children of the knights of Ak-Sar-Ben and all the boys and girls who have taken part in the children's fairy balls that have been given by the knights in the last five years were assembled at Chambers academy Saturday afternoon for a dance of their own. There were over 500 of them of all ages and sizes from little tots whose first steps at the waltz and polka were rather uncertain to those who have been trained for fancy dancing in several years' lessons.

The ball was opened with a grand march circling around the hall, which was decorated with Ak-Sar-Ben colors. Then came a spectacular march in which every one took part. A special vaudeville program was made of recitations, singing numbers and all kinds of features. A special program was given by the pupils of Mr. Chambers' private classes. Fifteen numbers were on this program.

Dancing cards were distributed after the vaudeville to all the children and the floor was given over to them. Fourteen dances were played by the orchestra, waltzes, two steps, schottisches and many sorts of steps that older folks do not care to try, and it was ended with a grand Virginia reel. The board of women managers of the 1909 Japanese tea party acted as patronesses.

ISH VERDICT IS REDUCED

Judge Bears Reduces from Thousand to Six Hundred Dollars Instead of Granting New Trial.

When the injury a man suffers is so slight that he is able to be about his business twenty-four hours later the monetary value of his suffering is less than $1,000. In the opinion of Judge Bears, who reduced the jury's $1,000 verdict to $600 in the case of Elmer Johnson against James C. Ish in district court Saturday. The reduction was made after Ish had moved for a new trial, on the ground that the verdict was excessive. Judge Bears ruled to let the trial stand, but reduce the amount of recovery. Ish gave notice of appeal to the supreme court.

The case was the outgrowth of trouble between Martha N. Ish, mother of Ish, and some young men and boys who trespassed on her property. The son engaged in a fight with them and struck Johnson on the head with a club.

CLERK GETS FIFTEEN DAYS

Is Sentenced When He is Caught with Marked Five-Dollar Bill in His Pocket.

Caught with a marked $5 bill in his possession, C. E. Greenwell, until yesterday a clerk at Hayden Bros' store, was sentenced to fifteen days in jail by Judge Crawford Saturday morning. Greenwell's arrest occurred Friday evening as the result of long suspicion against him and a well laid plot to incriminate him.

Superintendent Jamison, who says he has suspected the clerk for some time, caused a woman to make a purchase at Greenwell's counter with a marked bill. It was then charged against the man that he did not register the purchase or turn over the money. The bill was found in Greenwell's possession.

Church of Unique Origin to Be Dedicated Today

REV. JULIUS F. SCHWARZ

1ST GERMAN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Built piece by piece with odds and ends of material picked up here and there throughout the city, the First German Presbyterian church at Twentieth and Spruce streets is completed and a standing monument to a persevering pastor and congregation. The dedication today constitutes a fulfillment of dreams in years gone by and marks a period of two years since the first steps were taken in the erection of the strange church in the city.

Probably nowhere else in the country is there such a church as this one, nor a church of such a history. Curbing stones form its foundation sill, steel street car rails are its rafters, tilting from the roof of a wrecked railroad station now in the roof of this place of worship. There is not a single corner in the interior of the edifice, the walls at every section being rounded out to preserve acoustic properties.

Rev. Julius F. Schwarz, pastor of the church, is the man who conceived the plan of building a church out of odds and ends, or as he calls it, "junk from the streets of the city." That his plan was a good one is proven to the eye by the finished church, symmetrical in its every detail, quaint, but substantial as any sanctuary in the city.

When the church building scheme was first advanced and the designs for the edifice were inspected expert contractors shook their heads. It would cost $5,000 to erect such a church, they said. According to Mr. Schwarz's figures on the actual cost, the church has been built for just $3,000, including labor and material.

Mr. Schwarz dreamed his dream and told it to his congregation two years ago. After a single meeting in which the congregation voted unanimously to start work, the work was begun in November, 1908. There was $67 in the church building fund as the total amount to start on.

The first step taken was that of selling the old church property on Eighteenth street, between Cuming and Burt streets, for $1,850. With that money the lots covering 100x122 feet of ground was bought for the new edifice.

In putting up the new church Mr. Schwarz and his helpers drove many a shrewd bargain and resorted to many an original makeshift. On one occasion the clergyman contrived to purchase a quantity of lumber at $2 a wagon load and sell the unavailable portion of it as kindling at such a price that the entire supply of 10,000 feet used in the church cost only $2.00.

Instead of growing old, the church is growing new; its tiled roof, the material of which had been blackened by locomotive smoke on the railroad building, is taking on cleanliness with every rainstorm. Mr. Schwarz and the male members of his flock are loud in the praise of the women who had their part in the church constructing. Mrs. Schwarz, it is explained, as head of an industrious little band, did all the interior painting and varnishing of the church parsonage. The women otherwise took a hearty interest in the work and helped the masculine members to a great extent.

The program is as follows: Services at 10:30 a. m., dedicatory sermon by the Rev. Jacob Conzett, D. D.; services at 2:30 p. m., sermon by the Rev. W. H. Kearns, D. D., and dedicatory prayer by the Rev. Dr. Conzett; services at 7:30 p. m., in the form of a popular meeting, with addresses by these laymen: Warren Switzer, Harry Fisher and Henry Kieser.

Rev. Conzett, who will deliver the dedicatory sermon and prayer today, has himself a history of achievement. Dr. Conzett has been preaching for forty years, his early days having been those of a pioneer minister.

A Remarkable Recovery.
Mrs. Frank Stroeb, R. F. D. 1, Appleton, Wis., writes: "I began using Peruna a few months ago, when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck, could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live. Peruna made the look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength. 'I certainly think Peruna is without a rival as a tonic and strength builder.'"
