

WORK ON MANY BUILDINGS

Union Pacific Starts on Big List of Expenditures.

MATERIAL IS NOW ON THE JOB

Headquarters, Shops and New Post-office All Start Superstructures Monday, with Many Workmen on the Buildings.

Construction work on buildings totaling $1,500,000 value was begun by the Union Pacific railroad in Omaha Monday morning.

Each of the pillars is thirty feet in length and weighs five tons. One pillar will extend two stories of the building, seven of the length being needed to complete the height of the building.

Thirty cars of huge steel pillars and beams are on hand at the new Union Pacific headquarters, and already a large number of the pillars for the first story are up and the cranes for the first story, or the main floor, laid.

Charles Miller, general superintendent of the James Stewart company, who are the contractors arrived in Omaha in the latter part of last week and will have the general charge of the building from now on.

"As soon as three of the stories of steel have been put up we expect to begin the brick work and will push it as fast as possible. We do not want to have to work nights, but will do it if necessary. As we stand now it is probable that the work will be completed in the time of the contract, August 1."

The scene of the building is a busy one with two big derricks working, one capable of lifting fifteen tons and the other twenty. Another derrick also will be added later.

Goff Family in Queer Mixup

Father Complains Against Juvenile Officer and Finds Himself Under Several Charges.

More troubles of the Charles Goff family were aired in juvenile court Monday morning, when Goff came before Judge Sutton to make defense to a charge that his son, Charlie, does not attend school regularly.

There followed a loud argument between Goff and Bernstein, in which Bernstein called the attention of Goff to the fact that most of his "butting in" has been along the line of donating money to the family. Goff finally declared that he would move out of the state to some place where the juvenile laws don't interfere with a man's children working.

Electricians Are Ready for Meet

Varied Program is Prepared for Their Entertainment This Week.

Members of the Western Association of Electrical Inspectors, numbering seventy-five or more, began to come to Omaha last night to attend their annual convention.

Mr. Michaelson, who has been prominent in the association since he helped to organize it, will have charge of the local entertainment. He will take the visitors through the Omaha theaters to demonstrate the case with which the regulations are carried out in this city.
