SEWER EXPLODES FROM GAS

City Engineer Says Gases Come from Dry Cleaning Plants.

ALSO FROM THE AUTO GARAGES

Ordinance Prohibits Sewer Connections with These Concerns, but Does Not Tell Who is to Enforce It.

Gasoline from cleaning establishments and garages has so filled up the sewers of Omaha with gas that it is no longer safe for men to do the necessary repairs, and serious explosions are liable to occur at any time, according to City Engineer Craig. A sewer main exploded at Thirteenth and Leavenworth Thursday when an electric light workman, William Jameson, entered a manhole with a light, and the extent of the damage has not yet been determined. The human was shaken up, but not injured, although the damage to the sewer may be considerable.

Consumer Does Not Get a Cut

Three Slashes Have Been Made in the Price of Gasoline to Retailers.

Three unexpected cuts in the price of gasoline and other oil by Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Gates have caused a quandary among wholesale dealers and consumers in Omaha. Rockefeller and Gates.

In many fires in the business district, probably in an overwhelming majority of cases, loss by water or smoke is far greater than damage by fire. This is not the fault of the fire department, which has not the time to remove goods from a burning building before flooding it.
