NOTICE

To Our Customers and the Public

Although our Omaha plant was entirely destroyed by fire Sunday morning, we have already perfected means for serving our customers and transacting our business so that they will experience no inconvenience.

We would like to reach each one personally with this message, but, masmuch, as that is out of the question, we ask each one of you to consider this a personal message to yourself.

At this time, we take the opportunity to thank you for your patronage in the past and to say to you that plans are being prepared and work will be rushed on the constuction of a larger and more perfect plant than the one destroyed. In the meantime our business will go on as though nothing happened, so far as it will effect your interests.

For the present, our offices are located in the National Fidelity and Casualty building at the southwest corner of Twelfth and Farnam streets.

All shipments to us will be received as usual and our trade promptly supplied with our products.
