CONVICT ATTEMPTS ESCAPE

Elliott Saws Hole Through Door and Works with Rope.

BULL DOG DETECTS PRISONER

Convict Tries in Vain to Climb Wall with Rope of Bedding, but Support Breaks; Dog Leads Guard to Hiding Place.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Nov. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—Elliott, a convict from Douglas county, who lacks four years of having served out a fifteen-year term for burglary, made an attempt to escape Sunday night. He kept the prison authorities busy until Monday night searching for him before they found him.

Elliott had been working as a nurse in the hospital, which Sunday night contained only one patient, an epileptic. He sawed the bars in the door of the hospital, making the opening in the door through which food is passed large enough to get through. While he was doing this the convict-patient threatened to give the alarm, and was promptly silenced by Elliott, who used for the purpose a wooden revolver which looked like the real thing.

He finally sawed his way out, taking with him his bed clothing, which he had made into a rope, to the end of which he had attached a hook for the purpose of fastening it to the top of the wall around the prison.

Patient Sounds Alarm.

As soon as Elliott left the hospital the patient whistled until he had attracted the guard, whom he told of the escape. A general alarm was sounded, lights were turned on and a search started for the escaped prisoner. The guards discovered where Elliott had hung his blanket rope on the wall. It appeared the rope had broken and evidently he had fallen back into the yard. Further on they found where he had patched together another rope and that also had failed to hold him. But the prisoner could not be found that night. All day Monday the prisoners were kept locked in their cells and the search continued for Elliott without success.

Monday night while one of the guards was making his rounds he was followed by a pet bulldog at the prison. Suddenly the dog made a dash for a pile of wood and began to growl.

"Come out, Elliott," said the guard, "or I'll shoot you."

"Don't shoot, Ed," replied Elliott, "and I'll come out."

Elliott told Warden Smith that when he failed to get over the wall Sunday night he made his way into the shirt factory and concealed himself until Monday night. When it became dark he again sallied forth to try to get over the wall. When he heard the guard coming he hid away in the wood until discovered by the dog. He refused to tell where he hid the wooden gun, but as he is in solitary confinement he probably will tell before he gets out.

Opinions of Legal Department.

In answer to many inquiries Attorney General Mullen has ruled that on the official ballot in every county in the state the republican candidates must appear first. One county clerk insisted that where the democratic party received more votes in the county that party should be first on the ballot in that county. Mr. Mullen rules, however, that the republicans cast the highest number of votes in the state and therefore the name of that party should be at the head of the ticket throughout the state.

One county clerk of Perkins county sent in a ballot like those used in the primary with the several tickets running side by side. The attorney general sent back word that the ballot must not be more than six inches in length and one ticket shall appear above the other.

Shallenberger Ignores Dahlman.

It seems now very probable that the next national meeting of the National Guards of the United States will be held in Omaha during next Ak-Sar-Ben. Adjutant-General Hartigan has received answers from a dozen of the states and each is willing that the meeting shall be held in the Nebraska metropolis. General Hartigan feels sure that Omaha will get the meeting.

May Stipulate Facts.

John L. Webster, representing the National Biscuit company, has been in Lincoln several times lately to discuss with Assistant Attorney General Ayres and County Attorney Tyrrell a stipulation upon which the pure food law may be tested in that portion which refers to the branding of packages with the net weight of the contents. The attorney for the company insists that the law interferes with interstate shipments, in that no fraud is practiced upon the people nor adulterated food food is sold by the company. Mr. Webster had many suggestions to offer as an agreement, but so far the attorneys have not got together, but may later.

Old Man Sure Falls Down.

Walker Smith, corporation clerk in the office of the secretary of state, had another experience with a man who knew it all, and then some, the other day. This party is the head of a corporation doing business in Lincoln. He blew into the office of the secretary like a house afire.

"Why wasn't I notified that my corporation had to pay a tax?" he demanded to know. "Here you have let this thing run and now I will have to pay a penalty through your carelessness."

Deputy Secretary of State Addison Walt hustled the irate man back into the office of Mr. Smith, where the demand was repeated.

Mr. Smith explained that every corporation had been notified of the tax and in case the letter came back the original articles were looked up and some officer of the company was then notified. At this time no letters were held in the office and besides, the law does not provide for a notification.

"But I tell you I was not notified," said the know-it-all citizen who is never to blame for mistakes.

Mr. Smith turned to the record. "Your notification was sent to you on such a date," he said.

"But I never got it.," snorted the man.

"Your tax was paid on such and such a date," continued Mr. Smith, reading from the records.

"But I never paid it!" fairly roared the man. "Somebody else paid it then."

"Your name is signed to the application for the permit," continued Mr. Smith, as he looked further into the records.

"I never signed it," shouted the man.

Mr. Smith pulled the application from the book and handed it to the man. "Isn't that your writing?" he asked.

"Well, it looks like it," admitted the man.

The man sneaked out of the office as though he had been caught stealing sugar.

MANUEL SCORES MR. BOLES

weeks ago it was decided we would open headquarters in Lincoln for at least a week, and I am carrying out the instructions of our committee."

Manuel's Letter.

C. B. Manuel, chairman of the populist state committee, appeals to the populists of the state to vote for Senator Aldrich for governor.

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 1, 1910.—Dear Sir: election day will be November 8, and before the close on this campaign I want to call your attention to some of its features and make a last appeal to you to stand by the principles for which we have fought for years.

Since '96 we have been working with the democrats under the leadership of that great commoner, W. J. Bryan. There have been a good many times when the populists knew that many democrats were opposed to the populist party and were doing all they could to break down our organization, but they needed our votes and by giving us small representation on the ticket kept us in line. Two years ago they shut us out entirely. We didn't have a man on the ticket, but still we were loyal to Mr. Bryan. Governor Shallenberger could not have been elected without the support of the populist vote and populists are proud of the part which they took in his election. Did he make good? Every voter in the state knows that he did. But what happened to him? The corporate interests within the party, drunk with success, became enraged at him because he stood by the homes of our people and they decreed that his political career must close. This same power decreed that no populist should be on the ticket, and if you will analyze the vote you will see that every democratic candidate in the primary received a strong democratic vote. The decree seemed to be, "no populist need apply."

The democrats and populists held their convention in Grand Island, but our former democratic allies forgot that we were in existence, they were so busy killing Bryan and booming Dahlman. The populists still stood by Governor Shallenberger, and many of them, at our request, voted as democrats in order to help the governor. The worst element of the democratic party is now in control, led by a corporation candidate, whose only plea is "personal liberty" and plenty of booze. Mr. Dahlman shows his utter contempt for populists by not even asking them for their support. He filed only as a democrat.

Two years ago I asked the democratic committee to take a weak democrat off their ticket and substitute a strong populist, but they wouldn't do it. This year every populist has had to get out of the way for a hungry democratic politician. Is this fair treatment? Is our only mission that of voting for democratic candidates?

This is the year we can and ought to assert ourselves and show the democrats that we cannot be relied upon to help them, when they don't even recognize our existence. There are 40,000 populists in Nebraska and, if we vote as a unit, we hold the balance of power. Let us make ourselves felt in this campaign.

The republican candidate for governor, Chester H. Aldrich, is a man above reproach. As state senator he fought the corporations to a standstill, and forced through the legislature of 1907 a number of bills purely in the interest of the people. The republican platform is nearly identical with the populist platform. Besides this, Mr. Aldrich is on the right side of the greatest moral question before the American people today.

Mr. Bryan, Mr. Metcalfe, and scores of leading democrats are opposed to Dahlman, and thousands of the rank and file of true democrats will not support him; then, why should populists hesitate when Mr. Aldrich stands for so many things for which we have fought.

I appeal to you as you love your home, as you believe in a clean, honorable government, as you stand for righteousness in men whom you elevate to places of honor to support Mr. Aldrich, and thus show unworthy democrats that we don't stand for such men and methods.

Yours for good government,
C. B. MANUEL, Chairman.

FREMONT, Neb., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Governor Shallenberger spoke at the district court room yesterday afternoon. Dahlman's name was mentioned only two or three times and scarcely anything said about him. He warmly commended the 8 o'clock closing law and wanted all other liquor legislation to be left to the popular will under the proposed initiative and referendum. The principal feature of his address was his almost entirely ignoring Dahlman.

ALDRICH ON PERSONAL LIBERTY

Makes Address at Lexington to Large Audience.

LEXINGTON, Neb., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—One of the largest political gatherings of the year greeted C. H. Aldrich, Walter A. George and Attorney W. A. Hoagland of North Platte today. Aubies' hall was filled to overflowing when Niles Oleson introduced Walter Hoagland, candidate for state senator, who briefly stated his firm belief in the success of the issues of the day, and that western Nebraska should have an equal representation in the state legislature with other sections. He stated that he would have sixteen counties to represent.

Mr. Aldrich entered into a brief speech and told of the work done by the legislature of 1907, which had stood by the people, and that today the issue was not one of personal liberty, but an issue whether the people should rule or the brewers and saloons. He showed that the farmers paid 80 per cent of the taxes, and therefore should be allowed to vote on the question of vital importance to them. County option gave them the opportunity of saying whether they wanted saloons or not.

The one thousand dipsomaniacs that have been sent to the Lincoln insane asylum have cost the people of the different counties $300,000, and $240,000 of this is paid by the farmers. Therefore the farmer should have a say in the question, saloons or no saloons.

Senator Aldrich was frequently applauded At the conclusion of the speech Mr. Olson introduced Mr. George, candidate for state treasurer, who had just time to say a word of greeting, as the train to North Platte had arrived.

BRYAN AGAIN RAPS DAHLMAN

Makes Extended Address Against Him in Phelps.

HOLDREGE, Neb., Nov. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—Speaking under the auspices of the Fifth district congressional committee, W. J. Bryan this afternoon addressed a crowd of about 1,500 people who had gathered from this and surrounding towns to hear the deposed democratic leader handle state and national issues. Mr. Bryan's audience was unusually attentive throughout his entire two hours' speech, the crowd consisting in a large measure of republicans who had come to hear the democratic orator discuss state issues.

Bryan's attitude on state issues and on the candidates who compose his party ticket was much the same as that which he manifested in his Lincoln speech.

After outlining his stand for the Oregon plan of electing senator as in his Lincoln speech he said in part:

The governor, however, stands in a different position and I owe it to the democrats of the state to define my own attitude set forth the reasons for withholding my support from Mr. Dahlman. It might be sufficient to say that he is not the choice of a majority of the democrats who voted at the primary. He received considerably less than half of the democratic vote polled, and owes his nomination to the support of wet republicans who entered our primary and converted a democratic minority into a combination majority.

Majority Was Small.

Even then his majority was only about 200 and while this majority, secured in the open primary through the aid of republicans, gives him a legal right to the nomination, it does not give him a moral right to the democratic vote of the state. He received 27,821 votes, including those of the wet republicans—a little more than one-fifth of the democratic vote cast two years ago. On the strength of this kind of an endorsement he proceeds to announce that he will veto, is passed, the proposition which the last democratic state convention—and he was a member of it—refused by a vote of 628 to 202 to condemn. And, not content with that, he announces that he will sign, if passed, a bill repealing the day light saloon law, a law endorsed by the last democratic state convention by a vote of 710 to 85. Surely, no democrat should be asked to vote for Dahlman on the ground of regularity.

He does not expect it, for he presents the issue which he embodies a non-partisan issue, and justifies his determination to veto a county option bill on the ground that his election will mean that a majority of the people want him to veto it. Since the issue is presented upon its own merits and not as a party issue, each voter is at liberty to cast his vote regardless of the party affiliations of the candidate. In the exercise of that right I withhold my support from Mr. Dahlman. National issues are not involved and the subordination of all other local issues to the liquor question makes it impossible for a democrat to vote for him without endorsing the position which he has taken in regard to liquor legislation."

KINKAID CAPTURES CRAWFORD

Enters Unannounced, but Has Whole Town with Him.

CRAWFORD, Neb., Nov. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—Congressman M. P. Kinkaid dropped unannounced into Crawford this morning, but before the day was over he was surrounded by the Crawford cornet band, accompanied by almost every citizen, headed by Colonel P. G. Cooper, carrying the Crawford banner, and the school children, who were dismissed for the purpose.

Judge Kinkaid was conducted to the Syndicate theater, which was soon crowded by an enthusiastic audience, and for two hours told some effective republican truths with telling effect. The people of this locality, irrespective of politics, have a high appreciation of Judge Kinkaid and recognize the value of his work in the past and his promises for the future. He will have practically no opposition at the polls.

Ralph Shotwell Ends His Life

Prominent Young Man, Troubled with Insomnia, Shoots Himself—No Motive Known.

The body of Ralph Shotwell, who shot himself yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. H. Lovely, 2301 F street, South Omaha, where he and his brothers, Ross and Fred, roomed, will be taken today to Marengo, O., for interment. The young man was only 25 years of age and had been in ill health for some months past. He was suffering from insomnia, which was accompanied by nervousness. Tuesday he seemed more cheery than usual and his disposition even yesterday morning when his brothers left for their respective offices, did not give the slightest indication of the tragedy that happened an hour later. They left the house at 7:30, but it occasioned no remark that he did not accompany them, as he had been excused by the head of his office at the Union Pacific from reporting early, as it was only in the morning he was able to sleep.

About 8:30, Mrs. Goss, a married daughter of Mrs. Lovely, who lives with her, heard a noise, but paid no attention to it at the time. A few minutes later, going into the room, she saw him lying on the floor beside the bed with blood flowing from a wound in the left temple. Dr. C. M. Schindel was called and City Physician Koenig arriving shortly afterwards, they had him removed to the South Omaha hospital, where he died at noon. The young man shot himself with a 38-caliber revolver and the bullet was extracted before death.

Coroner Crosby has decided that an inquest is unnecessary and the body will be taken from the mortuary of Deputy Coroner Larkin today for burial.

Shotwell, who held the position of assistant adultor at the Union station ticket office, was a brother of Frank, Abel, Ross and Fred Shotwell, all of whom are well knownu in Omaha and South Omaha. Absolutely no reason can be ascribed for his suicide except ill health. He is described by his friends and intimates to have been a young man of high character, generous and kindly in disposition. He was prominent in social circles and was a well known fugure at the South Omaha Country club.

FRENCH CABINET RESIGNS

Ministers Are Unable to Agree on Strike Legislation.

BRIAND TO FORM NEW MINISTRY

Premier Will Construct Cabinet and Eliminate Element that Resisted His Ideas—Pinchon and Bron Will Remain.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The cabinet of Premier Briand, which succeeded the Clemenceau ministry on July 23, 1909, unexpectedly resigned today in consequence of the bitter attacks made in the Chamber of Deputies on the government's action in suppressing the recent railroad strike and its proposed legislation for the avoidance of similar crises.

A strong republican majority in the chamber voted confidence in the government, but at a meeting of the ministers dissensions developed and Briand announced that new and serious problems had grown out of the labor trouble that must be met by a united ministry. Accordingly he suggested the retirement of himself and associates.

President Fallieres has asked M. Briand to form a new cabinet and the latter has accepted the task. It is expected that he will remodel the retiring ministry in harmony with his views on a parliamentary program to meet crises resulting from strikes.

It is likely that Foreign Minister Pichon, Minister of Commerce Dupuy, Minister of War Brun and Minister of the Navy Lapeyrere will remain in the new cabinet.

M. Millerand, minister of public works, posts and telegraph, and M. Viviani, minister of labor, dissented from Briand's program and their retirement is likely to be permanent. Millerand, especially, was dissatisfied, insisting that the principle of arbitration should be recognized more broadly by the government.

Just what Briand's program of future legislation provided had not been made known to the public when the resignation of the cabinet was announced.

At the meeting at which Briand suggested the resignations he thanked his comrades for having stood together in the national crisis and shouldered unitedly the harsh attack on the chamber. He said he had been violently accused and even charged with nourishing an ambition to throttle public liberty.
