Judge Baker is Murderer Trial—Judge Ben Baker went to Plattsmouth at noon Wednesday to represent Louis Kesser and leader Sittman, who are charged with killing Mike Gené at Cedar Creek September 1, this year. It is alleged that the defendants first attempted to rob their victim and that the killing came in connection with the attempted robbery. The case is one of the most noted that has been docketed in the Cass county courts for a long while, and it is expected that the trial will continue several days.

See for Men on Farm—Action for an accounting with Henry Kessler, to whom they leased their farm on a combined share and cash rental plan, was started by Alvin A. Clark and H. A. Clark in district court Wednesday. They allege that Kessler now is refusing to pay them their full share of the crops and the cash rental agreed upon, basing his refusal upon the contention that he has performed services in the improvement of the farm for which they should pay. They ask that the court order him to submit an account and then rule in the matter. In case their contention is sustained and judgment is entered in favor of Kessler they want the judgment to be decreed a lien on Kessler's share of the crops.

City Hall Now is Dismal Place. Officeholders Become Grimly Silent—Dahman Grabs at Shreds of Hope to Last.

The city hall had a lonesome, deserted look Wednesday morning and Dahmanite officeholders sat about in their offices with their feet in the well worn places in the roller tops of their desks and spoke not to each other and only occasionally to themselves. It is really a miracle to believe that all the Dahmanite workers went through election day without the preliminary shadowings of doubt disturbing their enthusiasm. In fact, there has been a faint suggestion of trouble in the air for days, and everyone about the Dahman quarters has felt a chilly change in the atmosphere. The Dahmanite sentiment which had been rampant for weeks at the time of the primaries began gradually to die down and the normal republican senses of the majority of the voters was beginning to make itself felt.

Wednesday morning Mayor Dahman came downtown in an injured condition, and the eagerness of newspaper men what their returns showed and took the information quietly that the additional precincts also showed badly for him. "We might pull but yet," said he hopefully, but not expectantly. "Anyhow, we made a good fight."

The mayor and his county chairman, Tom Flynn, were both completely effluviated by the campaign and spent most of the day Wednesday at home. Mayor Dahman's family has been planning upon sending him on a vacation trip as soon as the great question is settled so that he may recuperate for the duties of whichever office he is to hold.

Naturally, now that the election seems almost settled, every politician in the city hall knows exactly how it happened. Once in a while a dispute over just why what has happened is caused gets a part of the six-time trial from the demagogues that are sitting quietly and thinking it over, but most of them cannot even get up an imitation of interest over it. The one sentiment that fairly fills the atmosphere in the city hall and breaks itself through the corridors is resigned nihilism. It is all over, and had as it were, it cannot happen again for a long time.

Man Shoots His Head Nearly Off. Herman Busch is Found in the Woods with Revolver by His Side.

With the top of his head almost completely shot off, the body of Herman Busch, 25 North Twenty-first street, was found in the woods at Eleventh and P streets, in South Omaha, Wednesday morning.

A thirty-two-caliber revolver lay at the side of the dead head, and it appeared he had killed himself by thrusting the revolver into his mouth and shooting upward, the bullet tearing through his head and tore away the top of his skull.

Busch was an employee of the Swift Packing company. He was a member of the Eagles' lodge, and had passed Tuesday evening at the club rooms, apparently in good spirits. No cause is known for his apparent self-destruction. Deputy Coroner Larkin has the body in charge.

Will Pinkerton, head of what is reckoned the world's greatest detective force, was in Omaha on a little respite trip after the agonies of the great fire. While in Omaha he stopped to visit with various railroad friends at the Union Pacific headquarters and presented Mr. Gerrit Fort with a copy of the famous "Duchess of Devonshire" picture.

This picture was painted by Thomas Gainsborough and after some years was sold to Earl Dudley for $25,000. It was stolen from him on May 3, 1871. Twenty-five years later it was recovered by the Pinkerton brothers and restored in 1897. P. Morgan paid $25,000 for the original picture.

AUSTRALIAN METHODS BEST

D. Clem Deaver Sees Clever System in English Provinces.

HOUSES ARE GIVEN TO SETTLERS

Local Land Dealer Explains How Canada and Australia Supplies Railroad Fare and Houses to Landseekers.

"America is taking a back seat in regard to homestead conditions," declared D. Clem Deaver, head of the homeseekers' information bureau of the Burlington railroad. "Australia and Canada are both coming far ahead of the United States in all branches of conditions for homeseekers, and both countries are getting their waste areas settled with the best of the classes of farmers."

Irrigated lands are sold to the would-be homesteaders at the very easiest of terms, any individual over 18 years of age being allowed to take a farm. As an additional feature houses and even passages and railroad fares to the farms are provided, to be paid back later. The plea of settlers are needed at the markets available farms are ready and the markets available all inducements possible are being thrown open to the homeseekers.

"Experts in all kinds of farming are hired by the state and these men spend their whole time in aiding the settlers to make successful farms. Stock raising, poultry raising, fruit growing, care of the soil, selection of seeds and care of crops are all taught by these men."

Mr. Deaver has made quite a study of the Australian method of handling this problem and thinks that it is far in advance of any homeseeker's offers ever made before.

American in Back Seat. "My observation compels me to come to the conclusion that this great and glorious country of ours that has helped so many people to find homes under the homestead law, is taking a back seat, so to speak, in the matter of helping worthy people who have no homes, but who want farm homes, to get back to the farm. The problem of homeless people in the large cities in our country is the problem that demands the best thought of our wisest statesmen," said Mr. Deaver.

"Canada on the north of us is offering far more liberal terms to homesteaders than the United States. Ireland has even made provisions that the tenants can buy the lands, having sixty-six and the Irish tenant that we heard so much about in the years gone by has now passed into history."

"Australia has borrowed the money from individuals to buy lands and to build irrigation plants and built houses on the farms, putting them in condition to make money on from the start; and in offering these lands with homes built upon them to farmers, giving them fifteen years in which to pay for the improvements and thirty-one years in which to pay for the lands, and it occurs to me that as our country has so much free land, free water and free money, for the reason that the money derived from building irrigation projects is derived from the sale of public lands, it should offer more liberal terms to people who have no homes of their own, but who want to get back to the farm."

WOULD AVOID SPECULATORS.

"In order to avoid having these lands taken up by speculators it might be well further to restrict the qualifications for homesteaders upon government irrigated farms and to certainly would be a great help to the people who live in the cities and want to get back to the farm, if the grubstak homestead law now pending before congress is passed. This proposed law provides that two persons may take a homestead jointly in the same manner that other lands may now be filed upon, one of the homesteaders being required to reside upon the land and cultivate it, the other being permitted to remain in the city and earn wages with which to help improve the homestead."

HONKING FROM GAY TO GRAVE

The Automobile Hearse Not Yet in Sight, but is Coming Fast.

The automobile hearse has not yet come into general use, but at least one such hearse has actually been built and it has been used on two occasions.

The hearse in its general outline and appearance is of the conventional type. It is a hearse body mounted on an automobile chassis. From the front edge of the body's roof there is carried forward over the driver's seat a sheltering roof which is supported by two posts. The roof is carried a foot or so above the head of the driver and is held in place by a cord which is attached to the front of the body and runs to the rear of the automobile lamp, and the vehicle carries an automobile horn. The only lamps carried forward are two conventional coach lamps by the driver's seat.

In the details of its construction and finish this automobile hearse is exactly like its sides are each divided into three panels, the central panel of glass and the two end panels on either side of carved wood. The lamps and all the mechanical fittings and ornaments of the hearse are of silver plated. So this is a costly hearse made to sell at about $3,000. Automobile hearse of simpler design would, of course, be made at lower cost, perhaps for $1,000 or less. The present cost of the automobile hearse is given as one reason why it has not sooner come into general use.

automobile carriages and vehicles generally constantly increasing in number he looks to see in the not distant future the automobile hearse coming into extended use.—New York Sun.

Real Estate Men Hear Talk on United Action

C. G. George Advises Co-Operation and Study of Commission Government.

Co-operation between the commercial and business organizations of Omaha, South Omaha and other Nebraska cities was urged by President C. G. George in a talk to members of the Omaha Real Estate exchange Wednesday noon, the meeting being the first under the new administration. Mr. George suggested several concrete lines along which he thought the various organizations might work together, but the keynote of his remarks was a plea for unanimity of effort, rather than a scattering of fire.

Study of the commission form of government, Mr. George announced that the Real Estate exchange members would be invited to the dinner given the evening of December 1 at the Commercial club under the direction of the Omaha Ad club at which Charles Frederick Adams of Brooklyn will speak. Mr. Adams is a specialist on civic and municipal administration and had made a particular study of commission form of government.

"It is not the purpose of the Real Estate exchange," said Mr. George, "as I understand it, to appear to be endorsing such a form of government at this time, but it will be well for us to co-operate with the city of Omaha in a study of this system of municipal administration and later to join in making some recommendation."

In this connection, as well as others, the speaker urged that the Commercial club and all other similar bodies of the city of the state, as well as the Real Estate exchange combine in study and activity.

With respect to parks and boulevards, Mr. George declared that these bodies should urge upon the legislature an appropriation of at least $100,000 for Omaha instead of the present maximum, which is $50,000. Better street lighting and better paving and better cleaning of the business district streets were also emphasized.

Also, the speaker said, the Real Estate exchange ought to lend its good will or other assistance to anyone who will build in Omaha a new, large, up-to-date hotel. "I have no objection to anyone who will build a hotel of this kind," he said, "but Omaha is ripe and the traveling public will support a new, up-to-date hotel, and we ought to have it."

Two committees were appointed, on membership, the new president named A. I. Creigh, S. P. Borchers, secretary, W. H. Thomas. The old committee on revision of by-laws was reappointed because it is in the midst of this work. The members are B. C. Hastings, C. F. Harrison and D. C. Patterson. No appointments will be made to a number of old committees, which have been so much "dead wood."

A Lesson in Banking.

In the drawing room car of a Washington limited the conversation turned on the way interest mounts up. "It's like this," said R. B. Brown, of the American Surety company. "The leading negro loan office started a bank and invited persons of their race to become customers. One day a dandy, with shoes on, down at the heels, a gold watch on one shoulder, and a cotton shirt, showed up at the bank."

"See, huh?" he said, "I want million ten dollars."

"Who is you?" asked the cashier. "I'm John Johnson, and I want ten million dollars."

"You ain't got no money in it here bank," said the cashier, after looking over the books.

"Yes, I has," insisted the visitor. "I put ten dollars in here six months ago."

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Eleventh Street Viaduct Ordinance Unanimously Passed.

ROADS, NOT TO OPPOSE IT

Not Thought Fight in Court Will Be Made Against Structure, Which Will Cost About Eighty Thousand Dollars.

The city council of Omaha last night unanimously ordered a new viaduct on Eleventh street, this making the fifth structure of the kind which will be built in a short time, provided the legal complications with respect to three of these viaducts result favorably to the city and against the railroads.

The three viaducts carried into the courts are ordered by the Bancroft, West Dodge and Nicholas street ordinances. The building of the Locust street viaduct is not thus obstructed and it is not expected that the railroads will fight the Eleventh street ordinance.

The new viaduct over this street will cost about $80,000 and will take the place of an old one.

The city council passed ordinances providing for Howard street between Ninth and Sixteenth and Seventeenth and Twentieth streets to pay for paving recently laid.

Acting Mayor Brunker presided. Mayor Dahman not being at hand. The council adjourned after the above, being all the business save a few committee reports which came before it.

Pictures of Local Stock Yards for Chicago Show

Exchange Prepares Films to Be Exhibited at the Land Show in Chicago.

Omaha is to have some real live advertisement at the Chicago land show, which opens November 15 in the big auditorium there, in the shape of the moving pictures of the Omaha stock yards, which the South Omaha Stock Yards exchange has had prepared and which tell as nothing else can the size and activity of the cattle, sheep, hog and horse and mule trade in South Omaha. The films are to be exhibited in connection with a number of other moving pictures and stereoscopic views of western products and western industries in one of the big audience halls at the exposition.

G. L. McDonough, consolation agent of the Union Pacific, who has charge of the Union Pacific exhibits at the land show, returned from Greeley, in Weld county, Colorado, where one of the largest exhibitions of both the Chicago and Omaha Western land show is to come from. Because the amount of space allowed their exhibit was not large enough, the citizens of Weld county held a meeting when Mr. McDonough was there and subscribed the necessary amount to take twice the space at both the shows.

A car of exhibits from different points in Colorado was brought in by Mr. McDonough upon its return, part of the contents of which are now on exhibition in the Council Bluffs Horticultural show this week. In the Pittsburg show, which he attended, he says an awaker was found for the western farmers and now they are all anxious to have representation in the big event.
