

IOWA TEAM WINS FARMER CUP

Sharp Competition at Bluffs Fruit Show for Omaha Paper's Trophy.

TAKES IT FROM NEBRASKA TEAM

Sixteen-Year-Old Boy of Sargent's Bluff, Ia., Raises Best Ear of Corn—Stock Yards Sweepstakes Prize.

The beautiful and valuable silver cup offered by The Omaha Daily Bee and The Twentieth Century Farmer, contested for in fruit judging competition at the National Horticultural congress at Council Bluffs by student teams selected from state universities, was won yesterday by the Iowa team. Last year the cup was won by the Nebraska State university team, with Kansas second and Iowa third.

The grand sweepstakes trophy for the best ten ears of corn, a big silver cup, was given to Pierson and Wilson, two young men of Silver City, Ia.

Fruit Judging Contest. The teams competing for the Bee and Twentieth Century Farmer cup were made up of the brightest young men in the horticultural departments of the state universities, who have been especially trained in judging apples.

The Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas teams undertook their work yesterday with tense determination. Every known variety of every apple was earnestly discussed by the young men until a decision was reached and all of the fruit submitted for examination was classified and judged. The plates were then submitted to the judges, Prof. C. E. Chase, Park College, Mo., and Prof. W. N. Hunt of Raleigh, N. C., at the head of the North Carolina state college.

Last year the judges had an easy task to decide the winning team, but this time it was far from simple and it required many conferences before it could be decided that Iowa had beaten Nebraska and Kansas.

The determination of the teams and the constant improvement of their work makes it possible that the beautiful cup will be contested for a number of years before it is finally won twice by the same one.

Many Features at Show. Exposition crowds had much to entertain them yesterday. It was "Southwestern Iowa Day," "Elks' Day" and the day of a great many other good things.

Exposition crowds had much to entertain them yesterday. It was "Southwestern Iowa Day," "Elks' Day" and the day of a great many other good things. The educational program was one of the best of the week.

Many Spectacles Come. There were several special trains carrying excursionists from adjoining counties in southwestern Iowa, which swelled the exposition crowds, and made the attendance for the day up to the record figures.

In the corn show section the work of judging the exhibits and awarding the prizes was finished. Prof. Crossley and all of the other corn experts pronounce the winning ear of corn to be the very best in all respects that had ever been produced and declare it to be superior to the $1,000 ear developed at the National Corn show in Omaha.

ST. LOUIS ORGANIST GIVES RECITAL AT HAYDEN BROS.

William M. Jenkins of Second Presbyterian Church Does Some Decidedly Clever Work. An organ recital was given last night at Hayden Bros' piano room by Mr. William M. Jenkins of St. Louis. Mr. Jenkins is organist of the Second Presbyterian church in that city.

An unusually unique point in the recital was the alternating of groups played by Mr. Jenkins with groups played by the automatic self-playing action. While not in any way belittling Mr. Jenkins' work, it must be said that the automatic did some very astonishing work, making rapid and clear runs with the ease and grace of a magic touch.

The numbers chosen by Mr. Jenkins to display his work were from the opera, symphonies and organ compositions, as well as transcriptions of the sextette from Lucia, and Macdowell's "Wild Rose." Mr. Jenkins was greeted with much applause by the large assembly and the following program was rendered:

(a) Pilgrims Chorus.....Wagner (b) To a Wild Rose.....Macdowell (c) Prize Song.....Wagner (d) Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 14.....Liszt (e) Marche Militaire.....Schubert (f) Sextette.....Donizetti (g) La Route d'Omphale.....Saint-Saens (h) Celebrated Air.....Bach (i) Funeral March.....Kroeger (j) Andantino.....Lemare (k) Semiramide Overture.....Rossini (l) A Royal Procession.....Spinnay (m) Largo.....Handel (n) New World Symphony.....Dvorak (o) Andante Cantabile, fourth symphony.....Wilder (p) The Lost Chord.....Sullivan

This is the second organ recital to be given by Hayden Bros., and the piano room was decorated and brilliant in appearance. Fingers Off Without Knowing It. WATERLOO, N. Mr. Bronson left a newspaper berth in New York over forty years ago to seek health and fortune on the Western frontier. The types he met, the early Indian fights, brushes with bad men, and the whole adventurous side of the cattleman's life, are covered in these reminiscences, which are now reprinted with some new chapters. The book has an air of realism that makes the reader feel that he is reading pages from his own diary or that of a friend.

Naturally We Do Not Like the Idea of Selling Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Goods at Prices That Allow No Profit to Us

But we must do it, as it is simply impossible to move our immense stock, especially furniture and stoves, from this to another building without great cost and damage, and besides we have no positive location to move to. Our judgment tells us that it requires extraordinarily low, low prices to sell thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise more than we usually sell, so we have reduced right and left, up and down; and the public gets the benefit. Come and see for yourself.
