Three Small Boys Caught on Long Trip

Omaha Lads Found on Blind Baggage of Fast Train Going to Chicago.

Possessing a total weight of 30 cents between them, three small Omaha boys, ranging in age from 3 to 10 years, were taken off the blind baggage of a fast Northwestern train at Marshalltown, Ia., Thanksgiving morning, according to a message received by The Bee. The lads, who were apparently in high spirits over the prospect of seeing the world, explained they were going to pay a visit to the aunt of one of them in Chicago.

COLORADO AT THE LAND SHOW

Representatives of State Arrange for State Exhibit.

MESSAGE TO DENVER TIMES

Associate Editor Tells the People of the Aim of the Western Land Products Exhibit to be Held at Omaha.

Ride Dudley, associate editor of the Denver Times, was in Omaha yesterday securing for his paper information concerning the plans for the Colorado exhibit at the coming Omaha Land Show.

"Colorado is to be decidedly well represented at the Western Land Products Exhibit to be held in Omaha January 18 to 23 inclusive. Alfred Patrick, Colorado state immigration commissioner, stopped in Omaha on his way to Chicago recently and arranged for 1,200 square feet of exhibit space in the Omaha Auditorium, where the Land Show is to be held.

"The exhibit will be on the stage in such a position that it will attract more attention than any other in the building.

"In the rear of the stage will be constructed a paper mache mountain. From the mountain will run streams of real water. These will irrigate imitation fields. Electrical effects will be used in the plan to add brilliancy. Products of Colorado soil will be shown, too. The Colorado exhibit will be the largest and most attractive at the show.

"Mr. Patrick has elaborate plans for the Colorado exhibit," said C. C. Rosewater, general manager of The Omaha Bee and one of the foremost boosters for the Land Show. "We are particularly anxious to have Colorado well represented, as it is to the interest of Omaha, as well as Denver, to have people attracted to that state."

Ten states will be represented at the Omaha show. They will be Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Washington, California, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Oregon and Nevada. The slogan of the show is: "See the whole west under one roof."

Arrange Colorado Day

A "Colorado Day" is being arranged for Oct. 31st, if he will consent to the plan, Governor Shafer will speak at the exhibit. Other Coloradans will be invited to make addresses also.

"There is a distinct object to this show that concerns Colorado vitally," said C. C. Rosewater. "In the Missouri valley there exists a surplus of money in the hands of the farmers. Many of these farmers keep investing their surplus money in land. At this time they are buying Oklahoma and Texas or Canadian land. The movement of this money is either north or south. It should go west, naturally.

"In this country the general trend of everything is from east to west. The object of this Land Show will be to educate the people along the line of what the west can do in a farming way.

"Colorado, to my notion, is a great state of opportunity. Its resources, to use an expression, have hardly been scratched. It has untold millions in its land possibilities. All it needs is people. The farmer in the Missouri valley with $5,000 in excess money is the fellow Colorado needs. The state profits, undoubtedly, when an easterner puts $100,000 in Colorado, but it does not profit nearly so much as it does when that same sum is put in by twenty men. The twenty men go with their money, as a rule, and that means population.

"Nebraska need not be jealous if Colorado gets the farmers from it. This state has no abandoned farms, as have some of the New England states. If a Nebraska farmer goes to Colorado, he will do so only after he has arranged for someone to occupy his farm. Nebraska loses nothing. On the other hand, it gains because Omaha counts Colorado in its territory so far as various commercial products are concerned. Denver is the commercial center of the intermountain district and will always grow and prosper, but Omaha will always do business in parts of Colorado. Therefore, the more people Colorado has, the better off both Denver and Omaha will be. Both should boost for an increased population for the state.

"This land exhibit," continued Mr. Rosewater, "will afford Colorado a great opportunity to show these Missouri valley farmers what a mistake they are making by putting their money in Canadian or southern land instead of investing in Colorado and the west. It is decidedly to the interest of Colorado to make a good showing at the Omaha Land Exhibit and, judging from the plans of Mr. Patrick, the state will be elaborately represented."

Architect Would Give Ten Thousand Worth of Service

John McDonald Says that He Will Offer Big Judgment as Part Pay.

John McDonald, architect, who once got a judgment against the Board of Education of Omaha because his plans for the high school building were not accepted and John Latenser was employed instead, says he intends to offer to give the board the equivalent of this money in architect's services on the completion of the high school.

Mr. McDonald got his claim from the fact that he was the regular architect on the board and employed on a contract to do all the work. Ten years ago when the first wing of the high school building was to be constructed the board did not accept the McDonald plans but gave the work to Latenser, who drew plans for the whole building and has supervised the construction of the two wings.

The Board of Education has succeeded in getting the people to vote for $50,000 for the completion of the high school, among other buildings. Mr. McDonald intends to submit to the board an offer to accept as compensation in advance the $50,000 judgment already paid and go ahead with this work in accord with the general scheme of the original architect.

The members of the board are not likely to accept the offer, however, and some of them feel rather strongly about the matter. Three of them, James C. Lindsey, Dr. Holovitchner and Frank H. Kennard have expressed themselves as opposed to the acceptance of any such offer, and although they will not be committed until the offer is made, they believe that the general sentiment will be against it.

Bar Association Session to Be Open

Inquiry Will Begin Saturday Afternoon Into Charges of Misconduct Made.

The Omaha Bar Association, through its president, F. W. Weaver, has decreed that jury bribing, if it is going on, must cease. A meeting will be held in the criminal court room, county building, Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at which there will be free and frank discussion regarding the evil which is said to exist. While jury bribing in general will be the issue before the meeting, the recent Kemmerling case will be taken as a main text.

"I suppose it will be an executive session," suggested a Bee reporter, after Mr. Weaver had announced the meeting.

"No," answered the bar association president. "That has been the trouble in the past when there have been such matters for consideration. We have nothing to conceal. The more the truth is known and the more people who are inclined to bribe and accept bribes are given to understand that there will be no suppression in connection with such affairs the fewer we shall have of them."

In addition to plans for the Kemmerling bribery probe the association will probe the charges of intimidation of a juror lodged against Kemmerling and other jurors by Attorney Isidor Ziegler in his motion for a new trial of the suit of Alexander Shkurzo against Aaron Feren.

COUNCILMEN CAN GET LIGHTS

Lighting Department Finances Are in Healthy Shape.

COMPTROLLER MAKES REPORT

Surplus is Indicated for More Lights—Only Departments in Trouble Are Police and Health, Which Drew Heavily.

By the most recent report of the city comptroller the treasury of the city now contains in the general fund $31,887.02, on a 90 per cent collection. Of the special funds the lighting department division seems to be in particularly healthy condition. Out of the $20,340.85 which was collected on the levy, warrants have been drawn for only $7,232.44. Almost all of the remainder has been certified to, however, and further expenditures of $12,888.91 are all provided for. In spite of this the city electrician figures that if the full 100 per cent of the levy is collected, as is now expected, there will be a surplus in this fund and more lights will be allowed the councilman who have not already furnished their consultants with more than their share.

The intersection bond fund, the Omaha sewer fund and the park bond fund are entirely expended and a great many others have only a few hundred dollars left.

The general fund, which is divided up among a number of small departments, has still $4,297.74 left if 100 per cent of the levy is accounted for. The amounts set aside for advertising, several grading funds and special amounts for illumination and city buildings are all expended. The biggest surplus is in the judgment fund, which contains $4,200.01.

The alarming condition of city finances which existed some weeks has been partially relieved by the collection of the occupation tax, which fills out the levy to 100 per cent and provides 10 per cent more in nearly every department, but the health department and police department are still left in their predicament because they drew on 100 per cent of their resources from the beginning.

RECEPTION AT NEW STATION

Coffee and Sandwiches Served by Postmaster Thomas to Jobbers and Manufacturers.

By way of celebrating the formal opening of the new Union depot postal station, which is scheduled for some time early in December, Postmaster Thomas is arranging to give an informal reception to Omaha wholesalers and manufacturers, whose plans of business are made in the limits of the depot postal station.

Charles H. Pickens, widely known as a pillar in the commercial structure of Omaha, will be asked by Mr. Thomas to serve as master of ceremonies. A program is yet to be decided upon, but whatever details may be worked out along that line, it is certain that the whole affair will be in the nature of a boost for Omaha.

Inasmuch as the new station is of special benefit to the wholesalers, Postmaster Thomas considers it within the limit of normal fitness to bring about this informal justification. There will be no requirements as to dress suits and if some busy wholesaler happens to come in at the eleventh hour with a two days' growth of scraggly beard on his face there will be no unkind remarks about the incident. In short, this celebration is commercial rather than aesthetic and the room that might be taken up with floral decorations will be reserved for sandwiches, coffee and other things that appeal to the practical side of man.

There yet remains much work to be done on the new station, but it is being rushed as rapidly as possible, and it is hoped to have everything in working order for the Christmas rush.
